A deep gash on the chin, 4 inches long, will remind M. M. Weisenbeck of Aloha of a narrow escape from death Thursday.

Mr. Weisenbeck was working on a tower car and in some manner his jaw was caught in the iron vise. He tried frantically to release his jaw with his hands but it kept crushing his skin. His screams for help brought several men who used a tackle to release his head from the clamps but a four inch gash had been cut to the bone and his jaw badly bruised.

He will be unable to work for some time but considers himself lucky that the vise did not catch him near the neck.

Work of Volta Bureau

Volta was a famous French electrician. The Volta prize, created by Napoleon, was conferred by France upon Dr. Alexander Graham Bell for the invention of the telephone. Doctor Bell took this money, 50,000 francs, added to it a large sum received from other electrical experiments, and founded the Volta bureau, "for the increase and diffusion of knowledge relating to the deaf." This bureau prints and distributes every year hundreds of leaflets containing helpful information for the hard of hearing, or for the parents of deaf children.

"Chowder" Really French

Chowders, although considered American, did not originate in America. They are supposed to have been made first by the fisher folk of Brittany. For them, everyone in the village brought their contribution for the dish and added it to the common caldron and the name "chowder" comes from the name of their caldron, which was chaudiere. Our early colonists learned this dish from the French and so chowders are associated with the history of New England and are thus linked with America in general.

Long Term of Darkness

In the Arctic region on March 21 the sun is just visible on the horizon and appears to circle about it. From this day onward the sun continues to circle around in the sky, each day at a greater elevation until on June 21 an altitude of 23 1/2 degrees is reached. After this date the circling is at a lower elevation and is again on the horizon on September 23; thus the sun is visible for six months. After September 23 the sun circles below the horizon, gradually descending until December 22, and then gradually ascending until it reappears on March 21; thus there is a period of six months of darkness.
