Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hawhurst and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richardson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Quinn and family at the Lloyd A. Lee Poultry Farm and Hatchery near Salem Sunday. From the home of Mr. and Mrs. Quinn the party motored seven miles to Hazel Green park, a beautiful spot on the Pudding river where a picnic dinner was held with three birthday cakes to especially celebrate the birthday anniversaries of Messrs Meyer, Hawhurst and Quinn. Boat rides and many juvenile attractions were indulged in by the party.

Pete Potvin, who has been in charge of the W. R. Hawhurst meat market at Tigard, joining the 20th Century store has purchased the shop from Mr. Hawhurst. The consideration, which was cash, is unrevealed. Mr. Potvin has a pleasing personality and has made many friends since he has been a resident of Tigard, about five months, and has built up a very satisfactory business. Mr. Hawhurst operates a meat market in Tualatin and has large livestock interests to look after leaving him very little time to devote to the Tigard market.

May Shed Arm at Will

A starfish may jerk off each of its five arms in succession; it may cast off an injured or paralyzed arm; in rare cases there is multiplication by division. Sex organisms discharge their viscera in the spasms of capture and may thus escape from an astonished foe. The replacement of the food canal is sometimes accomplished in ten days, though it may take as many weeks.

Keep Up Courage
