ONION HOUSE BURNS SUNDAY-FIRE AT WITCH HAZEL

That heavy showers of last week have not removed the fire hazard was emphasized Sunday when the Beaverton fire department was called by J. F. Keller to put out a fire on his place on the Canyon road.

The fire started in the dry grass and the onion house burned to the ground.

The house belonging to Henry Miller, south of Witch Hazel school house was burned to the ground Saturday. The fire was caused presumably by a defective flu. Nothing was saved but a sewing machine. A daughter had been canning fruit and a hot fire had been kept in the kitchen range. From the house the blaze spread to the barn, which was burned to the ground, including a quantity of hay. From there it spread to the fields threatening other houses. Neighbors rushed to the scene, and a telephone call to Hillsboro brought men and fire equipment. It finally burned out when it reached the River road a mile away.

A GOOD PLACE FOR THE CHILDREN TO EAT

Children can do more efficient work at school if they have a hot lunch. In the large cities the parents and teachers recognize this fact and urge students to eat at least one hot dish for lunch. Mr. Beach, of the Beaverton Feed and Produce Co. is now prepared to serve quickly "hot dogs" and also other sandwiches at the noon hour. He also has fruit ice cream and candy, etc., to top off the lunch.

They will give counter, table and car service and anyone can drive in at the East door.

ROAD BOSS SCARES 'EM

Frank Allen, road supervisor of road district No. 10 had some of the boys scared last week—it was on that hot day—he was working hard and perspiring freely—wiping the sweat off his brow with a large bandana handkerchief, finally he felt ill and laid on the ground for relief, he told some of the men he was feeling bad—they took a look at him—and to behold his face was a dark blue—from the colored handkerchief—sure they thought "he was going West"

MAKE THEIR HOME LIKE NEW

A little paint makes the surroundings beautiful. The home of Mrs. Hattie Kline and son Frank has been painted a nice shade of brown color trimmed with cream with a dark green roof, which receives much favorable comment by travelers along the Canyon road.

96 CORDS OF WOOD GO UP IN SMOKE

Boys swamping out wood roads at St. Mary's last week ran into a yellow jacket's nest in center of the road, they decided to burn out the yellow jackets to prevent the horses hauling wood from running away. This was carefully done and then the fire was put out—but later—winds fanned some smoldering coals and the slashing caught on fire. 96 cords of wood, 800 posts and a wood saw belonging to Frank Miller went up in smoke. About 16 cords had not been received but Rev. Heesacker made good all losses.

The Parent-Teacher Magazine will carry monthly announcements from Miss Hair on suggested courses, and the University Extension department of Oregon have arranged study courses which will be supervised by their department for parent teacher groups. There will be a fee of one dollar per group charged by the University Extension, and for this the Extension department will supply courses and give criticisms on the papers submitted. As Tom Leis said: last week at the Leis home on the East hills of Beaverton a commotion among their flock of geese attracted the attention of Tom; so armed with a rifle he went up on the hillside to investigate. Well sir—it was not Mr. Hoover or Al Smith that caused the excitement but brother coyote—Bang! Tom pulled the trigger—didn't quite get 'em—but hey that coyote did travel—he is still going.
