TAKE HUMAN LIFE IN INDIAN CEREMONIES

Writer Describes Secret Murders to "Save" Rajah.

New York.—The cold and calculated murder of a seven-year-old boy by members of the court of an Indian prince, who believed that the sacrifice would save their dying rajah, is described by Katherine Mayo, in an article written for the Cosmopolitan, as typical of the vicious practices which prevail in India in spite of British efforts to eradicate them. Miss Mayo, whose lengthy investigation of Indian life resulted in the startling disclosures recently made in her book, "Mother India," declares that while fear of British interference has curbed the once common practice of burning wives and concubines alive on the funeral pyre of their dead master, the sacrifice of human lives in secret ceremonies, prompted by the Hindu sorcerers and fed by native superstition, is still one of the gravest social problems.

British Investigate.
The particular case she describes, says Miss Mayo, is vouched for in detail by the records of the British viceroy's agent who investigated. Wit, the rajah near death, his first wife, or rani, who was childless, was seized with jealousy and fear that the small son of the second rani would succeed to the throne with his mother, her rival, as regent, the writer explains.

Calling in the sorcerer, she plotted with him to convince the rajah that his life could be saved only by the sacrifice of a child, preferably his son by the second rani.

The sorcerer, fully aware of his impotence to cure, nevertheless convinced the rajah that his only hope for life lay in human sacrifice. The second rani, with only her love of the rajah at heart, prepared to give up her son.

"But before the child could reach the sick man's bed, a swift grip dragged him aside and one of the palace women, pushing a boy before her, stood in the young heir's place, pleading that the boy, her son, be offered, in sacrifice instead."

"So they carried the rajah into his apartments, and there that night, in a shut-in place, came the first rani and the sorcerer, with certain principal officers of the state. And the sorcerer, with nuts and lamps and incantations, made strong sorcery. After this they dealt with the son of the palace woman until life passed from him."

"Then they carried the small body wrapped in a cloth and dropped it secretly into the fish pond that lies in the inner palace. And much money was forthwith paid the sorcerer."

The Rajah Died.
"But the rajah, nevertheless, died in three days and was buried on a gorgeous funeral pyre, although fear of the English had ruined the ceremony by preventing the burning alive of so much as a single wife or concubine at his side."

"That night the palace woman whose child had saved the heir of the state was quietly smothered in her bed."

Yet nothing would have been heard of the double murder but for a quarrel which prompted some of the palace dignitaries who had not witnessed the ceremony to carry the facts secretly to the British viceroy's agent, says Miss Mayo. Checked by Indian stolidity, secretiveness and adherence to tradition, the agent, however, could do nothing more than determine that the first rani had been banished from the palace, in accordance with Hindu law, and the second and had been installed as regent for her son.

Efforts to find the sorcerer, one of the class of holy men whose vicious sway over Indian life even the most rigid British measures have been unable to check, proved unavailing. With his rich reward for his incantations securely pocketed, he disappeared quickly, probably to prey later on the superstitions of another state, far removed from the tragedy.

TUALATIN

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Blank, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hawhurst, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Meyer and Mrs. Meyer's father, Mr. Johnston of Trece, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Malott, Prof. and Mrs. O. B. Krause and family, J. L. Byrom, Claude Nyberg, Gerald Avery, John Say, Charles Roberts were among those attending the state fair at Salem. In the poultry exhibit, the turkeys were in the limelight with a record exhibit while in the White Leghorn division there was one lone pullet and she was plastered with decorations. Judge Coats, whom we all know expressed much surprise that the great White Leghorn industry of the state was so poorly represented. He also stated that he hoped for a poultry division at the International Livestock show in Portland this fall as in his opinion it would be much more satisfactory than holding the show separate when it was so difficult to secure a suitable place in which to hold it. Besides judging, Mr. Coats has charge of the Fisher Flouring Mills interest at the poultry building. The Fishers furnish free of charge all the feed for the birds, which perhaps accounts for the caretaker throwing half the scratch feed on the floor when he might lift his hand six inches and put it all in the crates with a few exceptions.

Mayor John Nyberg has a new seven passenger Studebaker for the enjoyment of his family which was recently purchased from the Howard Automobile company of Portland.

M. Rhinehart, employed at Pilkington's has rented the Bert Mosher place owned by A. D. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Bacon of Oswego, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Boleen, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson with their families from Scholls were all among the visitors of the family of John Nyberg Sunday.

Earl Zuber, Fred Sagert and Adolph Delker of Stafford have returned from a hunting trip and it is reported that Mr. Sagert got a deer.

On Thursday the Tualatin school buses journeyed to Salem with loads of students for the enjoyment of the state fair. Prof. Krause took his band along and they helped furnish music of pep and quality.

Miss Trixie J. Johnson departed on the Admiral Farragut Thursday for Los Angeles. She will stop at San Francisco to visit two aunts and then plans to spend the winter in Los Angeles.

The cooperative association paid 48 cents for N. Y. Extras for last week of August, 44 cents for standards and 24 for pullets, the smallest size. There are not many extras given producers.

Road work on the market road south of Wilsonville is going on nicely with just the right brand of weather.

A heavy rainfall visited Portland Monday but went around Tualatin. Late potatoes will make a small crop with all this Republican weather.
