FIRE AT GAULT HOME TOTAL LOSS

A fire believed, to have started from an overheated furnace destroyed the Pem Gault home at Multnomah Wednesday evening about 8:30 o'clock. The local fire department responded wholeheartedly to the call but their efforts were frustrated by the severe weather of late and the hose not being long enough to reach from the only hydrant seven blocks away rendered them helpless. Even though the hose had been longer the pressure would not have been sufficient to throw the water that distance. When engine 4 of the Portland Fire Department arrived the house was so near gone nothing could be done to save it.

The Gaults who were not at home when the fire occurred were quite overcome to see their recently built home a total loss. Insurance adjustments are now underway and no doubt the house will be rebuilt in a short while.
