Commerce Boomed by Methods of Counting

For ages even the most intelligent men could count only to ten or twenty, the number of their fingers and toes. Then sticks and stone counters were laid in rows to indicate and compute numbers involved in barter and trade. In the earliest civilizations symbols were employed to some extent, then in Egypt they had the happy thought of drawing a picture to represent each quantity. Thus, a frog equaled 100,000 and a man with arms outstretched in admiration signified 10,000,000. The Greek and Roman systems of letters for numerals were considered a great advance, but only the most learned could do any adding or subtracting with them. The decimal system was brought by an ambassador from India into Arabia in 773 A. D., and European countries got their numerals from Arabia in the Twelfth century. It proved popular right away and teachers of the new system were in great demand. Trade and industry, so long dumpped up by a lack of any simple method of keeping accounts or doing business with persons at a distance, sprang into life—and the Commercial era was born.—Detroit News.

Difference in Height "Lucky" for Comedian

According to the Kansas City Star Andrew Carnegie once gave Harry Lauder a stock market tip which the comedian acted on and cleaned up a small fortune. Carnegie visited Lauder in his dressing room in New York one evening. The steel man was astonished and delighted to find that Harry was a smaller man than himself. Lauder denied the soft impeachment. An argument ensued. It was decided to settle the question then and there by measuring against the dressing room door.

Andy told Lauder that if it turned out that he (Carnegie) was right in his contention and proved to be the taller of the two, he would give the comedian "a good tip on the stock exchange."

The measurer—Lauder's brother-in-law—overhearing this "decided, I think (says Harry), that the steel magnate would win."

"In any case," chuckled Lauder, "he gave the verdict in favor of Mr. Carnegie by a tenth of an inch."

"Buy United States Steel Common," whispered the millionaire on saying good-night. It elicited.

TWO STUDENTS HURT IN BASKETBALL GAME

The Tigard-Hillsboro basketball games at Tigard last Friday night proved to be disastrous ones for the Tigard students. Dorothy McMichael fell during the first quarter breaking her right leg near the ankle. Dr. Bisset was called and Dorothy was rushed to the St. Vincent hospital in Portland. The girls game then proceeded normally until the last quarter when Viola McDonald, just recovering from a severe attack of the flu, collapsed from over exertion.

John Rankin injured his knee during the boys game and was compelled to sit out forfeiting his position to George Rankin. Later John entered the game again, bravely battling to the end although his knee pained severely.

Penny Wise

A penny saved is not always a penny earned. Sometimes it is two pennies lost. The merchant who spends nothing on advertising is practicing false economy; his losses in sales far exceed the pennies saved.

The money spent for plate glass windows is not looked on as best; nor is the money spent on better interior lighting.

Anything that increases favor, that adds to sales, that multiplies customers is very properly regarded as a good investment.

Advertising is a good investment—just as plate glass windows are. Advertising is the plate glass window the merchant can send into every home. Advertising sells more goods to more persons than shop-windows do.

A Word to the Public

Do you resent having a merchant address his message to you in the form of an advertisement in our columns?

On the contrary is it not your impulse to respond to his friendly overtures?
