MEMBERS OF M. E. LADIES AID PROVE TALENTED

The members of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church proved themselves very talented at the last meeting. The husbands were invited to partake of a pot luck dinner after which each lady told in verse how she earned a dollar. Below you will find a few of the poems:

To earn this dollar
So shiny and round,
Took some hard work
So I found.

I filled my tubs with steaming suds
And began to wash my duds,
I could not help but sigh
As the laundry wagon drove by.

But for our dear Ladies Aid
A dollar must be made,
So I tried to do my best
And went to work with a zest.

How I earned my dollar
Is a very serious thing,
So don't stand up and holler
And make the basement ring.

I washed dishes at the banquet
And almost all the night,
If you don't think I earned my dollar
I do not think you're right.

My hands were sore with taluses
My feet were tired too,
To wash dishes, let me tell you
Is not an easy thing to do.

There isn't much that a woman can do
To earn an extra dollar or two,
I didn't suppose I could earn a dime
My cafeteria work took all my time.

A lady came to my house one day
There was no place for her baby
to stay,
So I took him in, now wasn't it funny
I'd found a way to earn my money.

One day last March as I strove
in vain
To think of a way to earn money
again,
I suddenly heard the train rush by Without stopping at Greenburg-I wondered why?

For surely I'd seen someone waiting
there,
Yes- there she was standing deep
in despair,
She finally came to the store to stay,
I must get to Portland this very day;
A train leaves at two, but that is too late,
I must meet my children, I surely can't wait;
Of a sudden she spoke and said
Oh will you,

Take me to town in your car—
please do!
I'll pay you well for I must find a way,
To get to my children without delay;
I thought of the Aid and I thought of my need,
To earn a dollar and said Yes Indeed

First Book on Fishing

Credited to a Woman

The first book that was published about fishing in England was written by the prioress of St. Alban's about the time the Cabots were busy making their American discoveries, and the fundamentals of angling have changed but very little since outlined by the authoress, Thomas W. Juli, champion fly-caster of Ontario, said recently. According to "Fishing Julie," as the authoress is commonly known, "the sport is to be followed for its own sake and not for mercenary gain." Of the thirteen flies described in her book, twelve are in common use today. Mr. Juli said.

Walton's Compleat Angler, "the only classic that has ever been written on any sport," was written in 1653. An original copy at the time of publication was worth about 17 pence and now realizes a price around $2,500.

The Birds you see are called Scissor-Tailed Flycatchers. In perching they close their tails, occasionally giving a bee-bird like note. Then they suddenly dart into the air after a fly.

Scissor-Tailed Flycatcher

One of their favorite acts is flying up and down in a see saw fashion opening and shutting their tails while doing so.

They will attack white-necked ravens and other large birds, fighting on their back, screaming, and giving vicious assaults.
