Mabel Willebrandt seems to have the goods on some of the boys who put up a pretence of being ardent supporters of the prohibition movement. This is one time that we may look for a lot of surprising things in Mabel's room.

A deficiency of precipitation is reported for Oregon this week. Not only reported, but also obvious.

We are so busy trying to adjust ourselves to the heat, we appear coldly indifferent toward our friends. We assure them that there is no frigidity in our attitude.

The difference between Mrs. and Mr. Thinkawink is that she is concentrating upon a $10 permanent wave, while his mind runs upon a permanent wave of $10 bills.

The bright young man thinks a poem about an onion ought to be an "order."

It isn't that those smaller bills have a tendency to remain any longer in the family purse than others do.

"Come on out," said the gay young man to the trim-figured bathing beauty. "Not too far out, Dear," she replied. "I have on my prize suit, and if I get into deep water I'll get it wet."

The little boy was telling his mother what the lady who entertained him that afternoon said to him, and what he said to her.

"She said, 'Will you have some pie?' and I said, 'Yes, Ma'am.' Then she said, 'Will you have some more pie?' and I said, 'Yes, Ma'am.' And she said, 'Will you have some more pie?' and I said, 'Yes, Ma'am.' And she said, 'Will you have some more pie?' and I said, 'Yes, Ma'am.'"

But when she asked you the third time to have some more pie, why didn't you say, 'NO, Ma'am.'?"

Well, she didn't say, 'No more pie.'"

The Horoscope For Friday, Aug. 16. Those born on Friday in August are exceptionally talented. They were born to genius, achievement and fame, to acquire wealth, rank and station, to wield great power and influence, to be social and political leaders, to compose great literary works and grand songs, to write notable odes, epics and elegies, to enjoy the rarest love and happiness in life, in fact the best and finest that fortune can bestow.

Those born on Friday in August are prudent, sagacious, wise, yet are apt to yield to temptations, love thrills and are of nervous temperaments. They love rich foods too well, and are given to rich apparel and to lavish expenditures in the things of beauty. They are dreamers and their imagination runs riot at times, giving them hopes that they cannot possibly realize.

Those born on Friday in August need beware of being too generous, and must be careful that they are not deceived by those who pose as their friends. They must be ever upon their guard, never to relax their vigilance for any period of time, lest something unforeseen cross their path and collide dangerously with them. Those born on this day of days are apt to have a tendency toward jayhawking. They must be careful to eat only wholesome and nourishing foods.

Those who watch their diet carefully and avoid actions detrimental to their health will in the long run be successful, and shall become noted for culture, dignity, poise, grace and charm, for beauty and loveliness, and shall be adored and worshipped.

N. B. This applies to persons born every other day of the year.

LIGHTNING STARTS FOREST FIRES

With 500 to 600 fires started on the national forests of Oregon and Washington in the first week in August the fire season is now on. While the very large percentage of the August fires so far were caused by severe lightning storms August 1 and 2, up to August 1 man-caused fires were over two and one half times as numerous as lightning fires.

With the forest areas daily becoming drier, and the possibility of other lightning storms, federal officers urge the public to use the greatest possible care with cigarettes, matches and campfires while in the woods.

CLUBS PREPARING STOCK FOR SHOW

Sixty-three people attended the livestock field day arranged for 4-H livestock club members last Monday. Almost fifty of these were club members with quite an attendance of interested adults. The day was used in judging dairy cattle, hogs and sheep on the W. T. Putman, H. H. Boge, and Frank Schulmerich farms. The entire group brought their lunch and ate under the trees on the Boge farm. Matters of interest to the club members in connection with the coming county fair were discussed by W. F. Cyrus, assistant county agent.

"Interest over the county in livestock and crops club work is very keen," says Mr. Cyrus. There should be a very creditable showing of livestock and crop products at the fair if the present enthusiasm and interest mean anything. Calves are being brought in off the pasture and fed grain, and they are being brushed and trained now for the fair which comes in September.

Judging tours are arranged to give the boys experience in judging livestock. Two more such tours are planned before fair time. The two livestock clubs making the highest scores at the county fair in judging work will represent Washington County in the judging contests at the State Fair and the Pacific International Livestock show.

The Enterprise circulation is no mystery.

ANOTHER BEAVERTON LANDMARK BEING TORN DOWN

Another Beaverton landmark will be torn down in the next few days to make way for the new Beaverton Bank building. Destruction of the Hughson building will eliminate a structure that has stood in our town for forty years and was constructed by Howard Hughson. The first occupant being W. H. Freeman took possession and started a grocery business. Finally J. Pinder took over the store and has been doing business there for the past eight years. The room upstairs has been used for a community hall, dancing, parties and then was divided into rooms to be used as living quarters.

Mr. Pinder's many friends will regret to hear, that he is retiring from business having made an agreement with Wm. Manning to take over his stock of goods in the next few days.
