THE GILBRALTER OF INTELLECT AND LITTLE ME FEAR COMPLEX AND EDUCATION

School with that dignified matron at its head was to me a province ruled by a towering mind, a veritable Gibraltar of intellect who, I was sure, could by merely glimpsing me, perceive my every weakness, and who, it seemed to me, was ever ready to chastise me for the least error in my conduct.

It was wrong of me to be so afraid of that really kindly-spirited principal. Nothing of the kind of treatment I had expected at her hands was ever accorded me. I succeeded in going through school without having to confess to her that in truth I was a very bad boy, not at all the good fellow I made her think I was.

She was very good to me. And why? Hadn't I given her cause several times to suspend me? Didn't I play hooky often? Didn't I pretend to be so deaf that I could not hear the lessons my teacher assigned, when in fact I could hear just as well as any one should? Didn't I whisper in class? Didn't I mischievously break step when we were marching in or out of the school house to the beat of a drum? Didn't I tease the little co-eds? Didn't I violate rules and regulations of every kind? Of course, I did not do these things in a spirit of courage but as the coward does them. Spite of my misbehavior she treated me with kindness and affection. The mighty mind that I had so feared, proved, after all, intensely human, considerate and gentle.

Maybe other children, like myself, dreaded the clang of the bell of the school when they were yet a block from the schoolhouse notifying them that they should be tardy and likely to be called into the office of the principal to explain why they were not more prompt in arriving. Maybe, like me, they shrank from the tinkle of the little bell on teacher's desk a signal that one of us had been caught in the commission of some little mischief. Maybe others, like me, walked in the straight path at school because of constant fear of the wrath of authority.

Doubtless, though, they, like me, look back upon it all with high regard for the towering intellect who held them all in awe, and with a love and appreciation of everything connected with our school days.

TUALATIN

Louis Verdin, aged 16, who was buried Monday afternoon following his untimely death was a nephew of Mrs. C. M. Wilson. Mr. Verdin Sr., being her brother. The boy was a visitor a short time ago and enjoyed a trip to the beaches. Mrs. Wilson has been with her brother's family for the past few days. Relatives came from Salem and Grants Pass for the funeral.

Edward Lind who was one of the victims in the recent automobile accident occurring at the intersection of the Oregon City and Meridian roads was a brother to Dan Lind who operated Lind's Grocery here for a number of years. The point of the accident is a very bad corner and a sign at the corner is not apt to be motorists of the sharp curve. The observed until one is at the corner.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman of Berkeley, Cal., have been visiting Mrs. Goodman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Martinazzi, brother Art and sister, Mrs. Clyde Young and family. Mrs. Goodman was formerly Miss Irene Martinazzi, a local teacher.

E. C. Richardson has purchased of the Dunmire company, Oregon City, a new 1930, DeSoto six sedan, which is Walter P. Chrysler's latest motor car.

The low lands have been visited by a light frost.

School opened Monday. There

CITY DAIRY

Located at 2nd and Lincoln Sts., Portland, is One of the Most Modern Institutions of the Business Life of this Section of the State That is Aiding in the Progress of Diversified Farming and the Development of the Surrounding Territory.

The plant of this company is efficiency came to be appreciated, model sanitary institution, equipped with the very best modern machinery and under the direction of latter day creamery men. They have always taken an active interest in the development of this community and their institution is one of our most valued industrial assets. We wish to give them the prominent place which their modern creamery merits as being among the foremost concerns in this line of endeavor. They are a large contributor to the progress and prosperity of the community.

This well known institution probably typifies better than any other the material progress of the community, and the fact that this section of the state is organized along twentieth century lines as regards continual development of commerce and agriculture. Years ago there were small creameries in every community in which the producer sent to market his cream and to which the retailer looked for his supply of products for his customers. And many of these concerns turned out a very high grade of creamery products which won much favor with the general public. But as modern methods and twentieth century ef-are a number of new families in the district.

Miss Jane Dunstan is at home from California.

Mrs. Pete Hoffman is determined to retain her youth and has had the mumps. Yes, she caught them from the baby.

Mrs. Hattie Simmler and William Hoeft of the Roseburg garage, spent several days last week at the E. C. Richardson home while Mr. Hoeft had his Lincoln motor car checked over in Portland.

Forty cents per dozen was the price paid for extra eggs by the Association for the first week in September. $40,000 was recently distributed to all members who shipped eggs to the Association during the year 1927. A further distribution for that year will be made at a later date. There is also an accumulated reserve of undistributed proceeds for 1928 which will be released later. This is one of the definite and tangible benefits resulting from group action in which the so-called "independent" producer has no opportunity to participate.

Mrs. L. S. Harding has returned from a trip to Rhododendron where she enjoyed an outing with friends.

HITEON NEWS

LIGHT FOR OREGON CAVES

Residents See Opportunity to Obtain Electric Service (Grants Pass Courier)

To determine the feasibility of building a government electric plant to provide lights for the Oregon Caves, M. M. Lewis of the Siskiyou forest service is building a weir at Sucker creek in the Illinois valley 42 miles from Grants Pass.

Observations at the weir during the low water season will determine whether enough power will be available to run such a plant, and if this is found inadvisable power for the lighting will come from the California Oregon Power company. Measurements will be made daily by a forest service fireman.

Although authorization for lighting of the caves has been granted, no appropriation has yet been made. Residents of the Williams creek district are desirous of having the Copco line put in that they may have electric service in that territory.

Junket desserts provide an easy means of feeding milk to a child who does not like to drink it. It may be flavored in a number of ways, with extracts, concentrated maple syrup, or caramel syrup. It may also be served with sliced fresh fruits, or with a spoonful of jelly or jam.

It is best never to grease an electric waffle iron. If the waffle stick, one or two extra tablespoons of melted shortening in the batter will often solve the problem.
