EDUCATION AIDED BY MANY PEOPLE IN U. S.

Gifts to Universities and to Other Institutions Held to be Real Investment.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oregon. — People of means throughout the United States are coming more and more to a realization that the wisest investment of their surplus funds is in education, it is pointed out by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, President of the University of Oregon. Figures just received here, show that during the past year Harvard University received gifts and legacies amounting to $13,516,000.00, and Yale University received amounts totaling about $9,000,000.00. Another outstanding gift was made by Clarence H. Mackey, who gave $500,000.00 to the University of Nevada to establish the Mackey Science School in memory of his father.

"The people who generously gave these huge sums to Harvard, Yale and Nevada realized that there is no better way in which they can be of service to the world than by aiding and advancing education. They feel that they are making sound investments for the future. They are not moved by a plea of charity, but feel that the money will be wisely spent and that the entire nation will reap the benefit," says Dr. Hall.

"Much of the money advanced to universities during the past year will go into research, and directly into the various fields of science. Out of this may emerge new methods which will save millions of dollars for various industries; new cures for diseases which will end untold suffering; new phases of education which will hasten the progress and add to the prosperity of the country.

"State universities are only now coming into the realization that they can be of utmost service to their communities, a service even greater than that rendered by private institutions. A state university should have for its purpose not only the education of youth, but should serve state industry and should aid in development of state resources as well. The university services also extend to lending the abilities of its experts to municipal and civic organizations in solving their many problems. A state university can only expand in this direction as its income is increased, and gifts made for this purpose will certainly prove a sound investment in every way."

Wins Honor

University of Oregon, Eugene.—Jeannette Calkins, alumna secretary of the University of Oregon, was elected a member of the board of directors of the American Alumni Council at the sixteenth annual convention, which met at Toronto and Muskoka Lakes during the summer. Several hundred colleges and universities hold membership in the American Alumni Council, and Miss Calkins' election is considered a very high honor for both the university and the state.

NEW POTATO LAW HELPS GROWERS

Crop Near Failure in Many of Spud Districts. However, Market Improves

Operation of the new Oregon potato grading law finds the state with a very spotted crop selling at the highest prices reached in many years, finds E. R. Jackman, extension specialist in farm crops, who recently made observations in all the main growing districts in the Portland market. The law is working out to the advantage of growers, but just now the average potato raiser needs spuds more than he does laws. The western part of the state is hardest hit by the extended drouth which has checked the growth before the tubers had attained marketable size. Most potato raisers are in the condition attributed to Vermont corn growers who are said to save all their crop for seed! Small potatoes from healthy vines may well be moved as single drop seed, says Mr. Jackman.

Klamath Falls and the Deschutes region are harvesting normal crops that are selling at from $2.00 to $2.25 a hundred. The Blue mountain region has a short crop not expected to exceed 50 car as compared with a normal output of about 125 cars.

The new law requiring all potatoes to be sold under definite grades marked on the sack is proving a real stimulus to the Portland market, finds Mr. Jackman. Heretofore other states sent in second grade stock and destroyed the market for good Oregon potatoes. Now with the grade plainly marked on the sack, good Oregon spuds are finding a ready market in Portland, which instead of being the lowest market on the coast as formerly is now one of the highest.

The estimated world crop of wheat is 500 million bushels less than last year, and the total supply after allowing for carryover is 300 million less. The Bureau of agricultural economics estimates that the world market for the season will average 35 to 40 cents above the average last year.

Test Association Sets Record.

An Oregon cow testing association has just broken all records for first-year performance of herds, according to reports to N. C. Jamison extension dairyman in charge of testing association work at the state college. The Yamhill County Dairy Herd Improvement association com-

CHEVROLET

Millions of Miles of Constant Testing to maintain the outstanding quality and dependability of The Chevrolet Six

In spite of the fact that a million Chevrolet Sixes have already been placed in the hands of owners, and have proved their performance and stamina by billions of miles of service over every type of highway the nation affords—
—the Chevrolet Motor Company continues to take new Chevrolet Sixes from the assembly line at the factory and subject them to pitiless testing on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground! This passion for proof—this consistent refusal to accept any tests as final—is one of the fundamental reasons for the overwhelming popularity of Chevrolet cars. For in no other way is it possible to make the Chevrolet Six so sound in design and materials—so dependable in performance—and so economical to operate!

If you are considering the purchase of an automobile, come in and see the new Chevrolet. You will find that it is more than a Six in the price range of the four. In every way it is a finer car than you ever thought possible in the low-price field!
