STUDENTS EAGER FOR LEARNING AT U. OF O

More Than Third Take Over Normal Course of 16
Hours Each Term.

University of Oregon, Eugene. — Although a normal course of 16 hours per term will leave six hours to spare over the number required for graduation at the end of four years, 904, or one-third of the student body, take more than that number, statistics released by Earl M. Pallett, registrar, shows. The university requirement for graduation is 186, of which six shall be in physical education. A student could graduate by taking 15 hours each term, plus an added hour each term for the first two years for gymnasium.

Although students taking more than 15 hours could speed up their graduation by a term or more, few prefer to do this, it is pointed out. Most of them remain the four years, and then graduate with several hours to spare.
This is because there are many subjects in which they are interested, and the average student is not satisfied merely to just "get by," officials say.

Nearly one-third of the students take 16 hours per term, 953 coming under this classification. Only 531 take 15, and but 205 are enrolled in 14. Only a few students take less than 14, and many of these are either working or are doing highly specialized work in few courses. The "loafing" student who takes but few hours in order to have a "good time" is practically non-existent at Oregon.

Students taking the maximum number of hours, 17, number 301. These must maintain a high scholastic average or credit is given for but 16, according to regulations.

Peanuts, botanically speaking, are not all, but legumes, and a member of the same family as beans and peas.

Mrs. Samuel Doughty that evening.

HOME POINTERS

Low temperatures are best for cooking all kinds of fish.

Baking powder biscuits, if placed in a cool place and covered with a very thin wet cloth to prevent a crust forming, can be allowed to stand an hour or two before baking, without injury.

Too much beating is one of the most common causes of poor muffins.
Baking powder biscuits on the other hand, are often not mixed as much as would be desirable for the best texture.
