Much is being done to aid in giving this community a commercial prestige among retailers by the activities of the Oregon Textile Mills. The volume of business which they transact, the quality of the products which they make and the business methods of the company are responsible for the reputation they have won.

While their activities will eventually cover a wider scope of territory, their special field is that of the Pacific Northwest. To keep their organization complete, it is necessary that they employ a number of people at all times, and being a local enterprise, thousands of dollars are placed in local circulation that would never find its way here if it were not for their efforts.

Keeping their brands constantly before the people and the fact they are a local industry has so firmly established them that their products will be found in the leading stores. There is no greater necessity than the modern hotel. With the ever increasing number of men and women who, because of their business, are forced to make hotels their home, and the large number of people who travel extensively by automobile, the modern hotel proprietor has realized that the public has learned much from these as to what constitutes a modern and efficient hotel. Every community that can boast of such a hotel is sure of much recognition over all the surrounding country.

We are glad to refer our readers to the Carlton hotel and point to it as a modern and up-to-the-minute hotel that is increasing in popularity all the time. The management takes special pains to see that the service extended to all the patrons by the entire staff of helpers is as near perfection as it is possible to make it.

Oregon Institute Technology

Which is Located at 195 6th St., in Portland, is Not Only offering an Excellent Opportunity to Learn a High Paying Trade, But is Doing the Public Generally a Good Service in Improving the Class of Motor Mechanics to be Found in This Section.

Motorists have long been the victims of the poor mechanic that is found in so many garages and repair establishments. These poor mechanics became so prevalent that it was necessary for some remedy to be found. Men who were mechanically inclined sought some place where they could familiarize themselves with the different motors that it is necessary for a man who calls himself an all-round auto repair man to work on. At last the automobile school made its appearance and it was possible for the men who so desired to have a complete course that would fit them to do the work that was certain to satisfy.

It is a pleasure for us to refer to the Oregon Institute Technology. Located as it is right in our midst, it affords the young men of this section an excellent chance to receive a training in all the intricacies of this trade. The men in charge are all finished mechanics and have not only provided equipment to work with, but have mapped out a course of study that enables the student to cover the field in the least possible time.

Not content to teach the technical theory of the trade, they give each student a course in practical work so that when he is finished he is able to do any kind of automobile repair work as it should be done. It can readily be seen what this all means to the motorist. He can rest assured that a student from his popular school is qualified to work on any make of car or airplane engine and that his work will be of the highest character. This will eventually lower the operating cost of owning a car.

This school should appeal to the young men of this section who are mechanically inclined, for here it is possible to learn a trade that provides a good, permanent income and in much less time than it could be learned if you sought a job in some local or nearby garage. We suggest that if you are so inclined you get in touch with this school and see how easy and beneficial it will be to take a course there.

A special feature is their airplane school where students are taught work on all makes of airplane engines.
