DURANT FACTORY PLANNING LARGEST SCHEDULE

"The automobile dealer should consider himself a merchant of transportation," declared Otto Erickson, local Durant dealer, today.

"If he chooses to hold himself simply a seller of new cars and a 'good riddance' of used cars, he is neglecting a good part of his job and letting slip a generous share of his potential profits.

"It is generally agreed that production during 1930 will rival that of 1929 when all records were broken. In line with this policy, the western Durant factory is planning on the largest manufacturing schedule in its history.

"With the introduction of the new Durant Six-Fourteen instant approval of the motoring public was won, not only here but throughout the west as well."

For the week ending March 1, there were only six cases of measles one flu and on smallpox reported in Washington county to the state board of health.
