CHURCH OF CHRIST

REV. G. W. SPRINGER, Minister
We were well pleased with the large attendance at all services on Easter Sunday. There were four additions to the church by statement. We are hoping to maintain a large attendance at Sunday School during the coming summer months and avoid any falling off of attendance which it seems is usual at that time of the year.
The young people of the Christian Endeavor enjoyed a social evening at the home of the minister last Friday evening.
Next Sunday Mr. Springer will speak on the following subjects: Morning, "The Sword of the Spirit."

REEDVILLE PRESBYTERIAN

DAIRY DRIVE NOW SPREADING FAST

Nearly all Oregon Counties Enter Campaign to Boost the Home Product

If aroused public opinion favorable to the dairy industry will help Oregon producers, then this branch of the state's agriculture is due for some much needed assistance. No campaign in recent years has brought more widespread response from all classes of people than the present statewide effort towards increasing consumption of dairy products, say state college authorities who are directing the work.

In every county having a county agent and in Marion and Linn besides organized programs are under way. In counties with home demonstration agents additional work is progressing in the campaign for wider use of dairy products.

In Yamhill county the women's club of McMinnville is sponsoring a vigorous campaign and has arranged a county wide demonstration of dairy products in which the home demonstration agent of Multnomah county will assist.

A slogan contest has been arranged with substantial prizes ranging from a registered calf to a case of milk. One newspaper is even turning over an issue for the club women to edit.

A recent bulletin designed to aid in the campaign has just been issued by the extension service at the college. It contains much material for use by granges, schools, clubs or other organizations in staging special programs.

Corbett for Governor Workers Make Reports

Portland, Ore., April 23—No extravagant claims of results at the polls on May 16 are being made in the headquarters of Harry L. Corbett, Republican candidate for governor. Those in charge are devoting their time and energies to hard work, while reports of prospects for victory come flooding in from leaders in various counties and districts of Oregon.

"We are not wasting time with pencil and paper, figuring on results, when there is work to be done," declares Floyd J. Cook, field manager of the Corbett campaign. "We believe that the state as a whole is in splendid shape so far as our campaign is concerned and are hopeful that the results on the day of the primaries will be even better than they now appear. Mr. Corbett covered practically every section of the state in the last few weeks. He has traveled 5000 miles by automobile and met thousands of people, leaving behind him a well organized group of friends and ardent supporters. From now on he will devote most of his time to Multnomah county, going out of Portland only on occasion to visit some nearby town."

That Corbett supporters in most sections of Oregon are confident of success at the polls is indicated by their reports.

"My conclusions are that if the vote would be taken today Corbett would receive no less than sixty-five percent in Umatilla county," writes Harold J. Warner, prominent executive man and Republican leader of Pendleton.

"Corbett is gaining in strength daily in this county," reports Leon E. McClintock, of Roseburg. "Everywhere you go his candidacy is being discussed and it is hard to find unfavorable comment regarding him. I believe he will be the leading candidate in Douglas county."

Prospects for Mr. Corbett are exceedingly bright in Baker county, according to J. C. Sturgill, of Baker City.

"I have also received word from Bend, Condon, Fossil and other sections that Corbett is strong in the running," Mr. Sturgill wrote.

"I am convinced that Corbett will receive more than the combined vote of his opponents in Washington county." This, according to Senator William G. Hare of Hillsboro, where leaders in the Republican party are almost a unit back of the Corbett campaign. "From what I learn in Yamhill that county will be almost as strong for Corbett as Washington will be."

From Klamath, Jackson and the Coos Bay district come encouraging reports. That Mr. Corbett's visit to Coos county won him a large following among the voters is indicated by reports that reach his headquarters. From the central Oregon district, where Mr. Corbett was known long before he thought of aspiring for the governorship, there daily arrives word that he will be the leader when the votes are counted.

"I'll risk a new suit of clothes that Harry Corbett receives more than fifty percent of the votes in Wasco," says Campbell Brown of The Dalles.

U. O. SUMMER SCHOOLS TO ATTRACT STUDENTS

Noted Educators to Give Many Courses at Portland and Eugene Centers.

University of Oregon, Eugene.—With studies covering every field from art to education, and with a faculty that is drawn from every corner of the United States and even from foreign countries, the summer sessions of the University of Oregon in Eugene, Portland and Astoria are expected to set new standards and new attendance records, it is announced by Alfred Powers, director of the summer school activities.

The sessions open June 23 and end August 1, with post sessions and cruises to follow.

The staff and courses offered will draw national attention this year, and the school will offer a number of unique and progressive courses that can be obtained no other place on the Pacific coast and in but few places in the country.

Through the cooperation of the Carnegie foundation, a number of art instructors will be brought to Eugene, with all expenses paid, for special instruction; a comprehensive platoon demonstration will be held at the Shattuck school in Portland; the clinic for problem children, now nationally known for its work, will be held in Eugene under the direction of Dr. Grace Fernald of Los Angeles, and an intensive course for laboratory technicians, lasting 10 weeks, will be held in Portland under the direction of the medical school and the Oregon State Board of Health.

Cruise Planned
The Alaska summer cruise, which was originated very successfully by the university last summer, will be held again, and in addition this year a special cruise lasting from June 25 to August 15 will have Hawaii as its center. These unique educational ventures have been found to be extremely effective educationally.

Heading the list of outstanding authorities who will be here for important courses in education will be Lewis R. Alderman, formerly superintendent of schools in Portland and for Oregon, now with the United States Bureau of Education; C. W. Bailey, headmaster, Holt Secondary School, Liverpool, England; Dr. F. A. Cotton, formerly state superintendent of schools for Indiana; Dr. David Snedden, Teachers' College, Columbia University, and Moises Saenz, assistant secretary of Education, Mexico. Teachers from all over the country are expected to come to Oregon to take courses offered by these national educators, Mr. Powers states.

Other noted educators who will be on the staff at Portland or Eugene include Dr. Alexander Goldenweiser, outstanding authority on anthropology; Dr. William Morris Davis, Harvard, geographer; Miss Clara E. Howard, director of library school, New Jersey College for women; Dr. Charles N. Reynolds, sociologist, Stanford; Dr. R. A. Rice, professor of English, Smith College; Dr. C. G. Vannest, professor of education, Harris Teachers College, and approximately 30 others from outside the regular university faculty. In addition, approximately 70 professors from the Eugene and Portland staffs will be offering a wide range of courses.

Spears to Coach
The summer session coaching staff will be headed by Dr. C. W. Spears, new Oregon football mentor, and will include W. M. Reinhart, baseball and basketball coach, and assistant football coach, William L. Hayward, Oregon's veteran track coach, and E. R. Knollin, who will handle the women's coaching for grade and junior high school students. Not only high school coaches, but a number from colleges and universities are expected to come to Oregon for the course under Dr. Spears.

Interest has been greatly increased in the field of the atypical child during the past few years, and this has led to rapid expansion of the clinical school at Eugene. The school will be staffed this year by Dr. Fernald, recognized as the outstanding authority in this work, Dr. B. W. DeBusk, professor of education, Miss Ruth Kneeland, formerly principal of the Bellevue school for Clinical Cases, Los Angeles, and Miss Lillian Rayner, of the Los Angeles public schools.

In the platoon demonstration school to be held in Portland, experts will direct work in grades from the fourth to eighth inclusive, and a competent staff of teachers will be on hand to assist. Observation and practice teaching will be available, and already a great deal of interest is being shown in the project.

Laboratory Course Offered
The course for laboratory technicians will be from June 16 to August 22, and will be one of the most intensive ever offered in this field. Work will be given in the laboratories of the University of Oregon medical school and will be under the direct supervision of Dr. H. J. Sears, professor of bacteriology.

Oregon's outdoor attractions, at their best in the summer, are proving to be of great value in drawing students from other parts of the United States, and several hundred teachers and students from other colleges and universities have already signified their intention of coming here partly to enjoy this phase of summer school. It is declared.

Last summer the enrollment totalled 1976, a substantial increase over previous years, and a new record is expected to be set this year, Mr. Powers says.

Students Organize for Music Work at U. O.

University of Oregon, Eugene.—Creation of a campus-wide committee to stimulate and direct interest in music, and the appointment of Lois Nelson, sophomore, of La Grande, as chairman, was announced recently by Tom Stoddard, president of the Associated Students of the University of Oregon.

Each living organization on the campus will be represented on the committee, which will have for ex-officio members all persons on the faculty of the school of music. It will be the duty of each student to aid in promotion of recitals, concerts and other musical events that are being staged on the campus throughout the year.

The committee has the full approval of Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the university, who is especially interested in music and a development of appreciation for it on the campus.

Miss Nelson has been active in numerous campus projects during her career, and this year has been serving as music reporter and critic for the student daily, and for other publications.

Farmer Must Answer Many Questions in Census

The census takers in this vicinity desires to call attention to the following facts: The government requires farm schedules to be made out for all farm or small tracts where the produce and livestock productions amount to $250 or more. The enumerator will call on those not visited before, within a few days. As time is short and the work must be done as required, the enumerator asks that each home head have figured and ready for her the following items for the full year 1929.

Number of chickens raised, number of chickens sold and amount received, number of eggs produced, number of eggs sold and amount received, number of cows milked, gallons milk produced in 1929, gal sold and amount received, lbs butter fat raised, sold and amount received for same, with acreage harvested, amount of feed and hay bought in 1929. The rest of the schedule can easily be filled out. The enumerator if given permission by her supervisor will publish the most interesting items gathered.
