

Miles of Conveyors in Ford Plant

This picture shows two types of conveyors in use in the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company.

AN ENDLESS chain conveyor, three and a half to four miles long, said to be the longest in the world, has just been completed at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. On parts of Ford cars in the process of manufacture are transported from one building to another and completed parts are carried direct to railroad cars for shipment to branch assembly plants.

The conveyor, which carries its cargo on suspended hooks, has a daily capacity for 300,000 parts weighing over 2,000,000 pounds. It supplants eight cars and trucks which have been used for the transfer of many parts from one point to another in the past plant.

This longest conveyor of them all is the development of the Ford policy that nothing should be done by manual labor that could better be done by machine.

In the early days of his manufacturing career, Mr. Ford devised the assembly line—a moving track on which cars in the process of assembly went to the workmen instead of the workmen carrying parts to the car. The assembly line, perfected in many ways, is now used by automobile manufacturers generally.

The value of the conveyor in reducing physical labor, in saving time, in preserving system and in cutting costs soon became apparent and its use was extended to other purposes about the plant. Now there are literally miles of conveyors of various types in the Ford plant. Some of them carry parts from one building to another and are carefully synchronized so that the parts arrive at precisely the right moment and in the exact spot where they are needed. Others transport red hot ingots of steel weighing nearly a ton each. Still others move outgoing shipments.

If it were not for the conveyors, according to officials of the Ford Company, mass production would not be possible on its present scale.

Mrs. J. R. Finley Passes Away at Tigard, August 24

Lydia S. Petty was born near Frost, Ohio, in 1846. Died August 24, 1930, aged 84 years.

She was married to James R. Finley in 1869. To this union seven children were born, five living are: Alva Finley and Mrs. Charles K. Flinn of Portland; Mrs. Thomas R. Blaylock of Seattle, Wash., and Elza E. Finley and Mrs. E. L. Kinnaman of Tigard; Mrs. A. E. Wilson and Mrs. E. A. Nash, deceased.

With her husband and family she came to Oregon in 1896 and resided at Beaver, Tillamook County, for a number of years. Some twelve years were spent in Newberg, before coming to Tigard which has been her home for the past fifteen years.

Aloha-Huber School Opens September 8th

School will begin September 8 at the Aloha-Huber school. Parents are urged to send children the first morning so that assignments can be made.

Mr. Lehnberg will be at the school house from 1 o'clock until 3:30 p. m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the 3rd, 4th, and 5th of September. He would like to have all pupils who have books that they wish to sell and those who wish to buy used books meet him on those afternoons. All parents who wish to consult about pupils books and studies will find him there.

There has been no new text books adopted for this year so the only books required are those caused by grade promotions.

Nero Model Youth at First
The emperor Nero when he first ascended his throne was an extremely kind and tender-hearted young man, hating by nature to cause anybody pain, and trained by the humane Seneca to respect the lives and liberties of all men. He was the true grandson of the large-hearted Germanicus, once the idol of the Roman people; and neither the pitilessness of his mother nor the brutality of his father were yet to be found in his character.—The Mentor-World Traveler.
