

Poultrymens Course being Broadcast over KOAC

Five hundred poultrymen 44 of whom are in Washington county are going to college by radio this winter being enrolled in the largest and most successful radio home study course ever conducted over KOAC, the Oregon State college station.

When Professor A. G. Lunn, head of the poultry department "calls the roll," over the microphone every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock he can visualize actual registered "students" extending from Canada to Utah and in 27 counties of Oregon. Marion county leads in Oregon with 79, Linn is second with 63, Multnomah has 52, Clackamas 46 and Douglas 25. Ten have enrolled from Washington, six in California, two each in Idaho and Utah and one in Canada.

Four-H club members have become interested and the poultry club of the Joseph Kellogg school, Portland, has enrolled as a body.

The course consists of 20 lessons, covering principal phases of poultry management, such as breeding, culling brooding, feeding, housing and disease control. Text assignments are given as well as supplementary reading in college bulletins.

Though the course has been going on for several weeks, new enrollments are being received at the rate of 10 to 20 a week. No other course for home study by radio sponsored by KOAC has ever met with such wholesale response as this one, says W. L. Kadderly program director.

Peach Growers Should take Advantage of Weather to Spray Peach Trees

Peach growers of Washington County who take advantage of any good weather we have and apply a Bordeaux spray now are likely to get satisfactory results in the control of peach leaf curl, says County Agent W. F. Cyrus. This spray should be put on sometime between the first of December and the first of February. Later sprays are somewhat effective but unless the spraying is done before the buds have begun to swell the control will not prove satisfactory. Thoroughness of application is essential to control but thoroughness alone will not take the place of timeliness.

Peach leaf curl is caused by a fungus entering the miniature leaves and shoots as the first growth in the early spring or late winter exposes them to infection. It develops within these infected parts causing them to take on a wrinkled and distorted appearance so typical of the disease. In the spring these malformed leaves take on a whitish bloom on their surface due to the discharge of spores of the disease. Later these leaves turn brown, dry up and die. Very little infection, if any takes place after the beginning of the growing season. Spraying after the buds swell and growth starts is almost a wasted effort.

Bordeaux mixture 6-6-50 applied at the first opportunity under conditions which will permit during December or January is probably the surest remedy for this disease, especially in Western Oregon. Annual spraying is necessary as a thorough clean up this year will not suffice for next year. Growers report that if a good quality of Bordeaux is used and the spray applied at the right time and thoroughly that this method of control is satisfactory. Old or poorly made Bordeaux is often the cause of unsatisfactory results from spraying. The sticking quality and effectiveness of Bordeaux is dependent upon the methods used in its making. When properly made it adheres well and has excellent spreading qualities.

"Carefully prepared home made Bordeaux mixture is unexcelled by any commercial brands on the market," according to a statement in a recent publication from the state experiment station.

Directions for preparing home-made Bordeaux may be obtained from the county agent's office. "Two Powder" or "two-package" commercial Bordeaux has proven generally satisfactory. One package contains powdered copper sulfate and the other package contains hydrated lime. Either one or both of the packages may have mixed with the contents a small amount of casein giving it greater adhesive and spreading qualities in the spray. When this is used properly a very excellent bordeaux is obtained.

Prisoners Returned to Jail

Washington County's 13 prisoners who have been housed in the Multnomah county jail during the construction of the new jail were returned to Hillsboro Tuesday afternoon. Trustees who have been kept in the basement of the court house, were also transferred to the new building.

Christmas Box of Oregon Products Shipped East

An 82 pound Christmas box containing products grown in Oregon, was prepared and shipped Monday by Geo. W. Lippert, of Aloha, to his family who reside in the East. Enclosed in the box were 16 cans of fruit, consisting of Royal Ann cherries down to asparagus, fresh potatoes, beets, walnuts, pecans, and Oregon grape. Another package was made up and included eggs and honey all grown on his ranch.

This is a fine advertisement of what is grown on the Oregon farms and may serve as an inducement to bring land seekers to Oregon, aside from the sentimental interest of the sender.

"She Walked in Her Sleep" Next Feature at Dufwin

A snappy farce-comedy entitled "She Walked in Her Sleep" is to be the Christmas week attraction of the Dufwin Theatre Company starting with the bargain matinee Sunday at the Dufwin Theatre and continuing throughout the entire week with the customary midweek matinee falling on Thursday, Christmas day.

In writing "She Walked in Her Sleep" the author Mark Swan, was actuated by no other purpose than to provide laughter. It is said that his effort has been carried to a brilliant success. The story has to do with the nocturnal peregrinations of a charming and beautiful girl who walked in her sleep into the wrong room of an apartment occupied by a young married man, while his wife is absent. The return of the wife at this moment starts a series of situations that are exuberantly funny.

The claim is also made that the author has built a play of solid entertainment and has also succeeded in promulgating a new idea that combines clever writing, fresh humor and real charm.

Helen Wallace will have one of the funniest parts she has ever played in "She Walked in Her Sleep" while important roles will be played by Norma Sears, Tom Chatterton, Leonard Lord, Arthur Jacobson, Ralph M. Romley, Martha Morton, Doris Brownlee, and Mary Hill.

"She Walked in Her Sleep" has been staged and directed under the personal direction of Eddy Waller.

St. Anthony School destroyed by Fire Tuesday

St. Anthony's parochial school at Tigard was destroyed by fire of unknown origin Tuesday night at about 8:30 o'clock. Alarms were sent to both Newberg and Portland fire departments, who responded readily, but the building being a wooden structure, had burned rapidly and was soon beyond control. School supplies from the lower floors were saved before the blaze which, it is said, started on the third floor spread. The loss is estimated as around $6000 and according to the late reports, just as soon as the remains of the old building are cleared away, work will be commenced on a fire proof structure.

A word of appreciation is extended to the Portland and Newberg fire departments, who protected the St. Anthony church and other nearby buildings from being set on fire by the flying sparks during the excitement are also to be complimented on their splendid work, in preventing accidents as the fire was, one might say, right on the main thoroughfare.

The Green Fir Cafe, our local restaurant, showed their appreciation by serving the firemen and traffic officers with pie and coffee free of charge.
