COIN NEW QUARTER

RASKOB FACES FACTS
A PARTY DIVIDED
FARM EXPORTS DECLINE
LONGWORTH'S DEATH
A new quarter-dollar, to replace the present 25-cent piece, will be issued next year. It will bear the image of George Washington and, appropriately, will be coined on the two-hundredth anniversary of his birth. The design of the present coin has been "the subject of considerable criticism," says Sec. Mellon, who adds that "it wears very badly and is a difficult coin to manufacture."

Facing facts, Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic National Committee, says "in some way to reconcile the dry attitude of the party in the South with the liberal attitude of the party in the North" is important, because if it cannot be accomplished the party "is really divided into two parties." He is absolutely correct in this view, which has been pointed out in this column many times.

However after the row stirred up during the recent Washington meeting many Democrats hoped Mr. Raskob would keep silent on the prohibition question, permitting party solidarity to develop on other issues. This hope was blasted by a recent letter to the members of the executive committee, asking them to give their personal recommendations for the 1932 platform, with special emphasis on prohibition and the economic program.

It is not the function of this column to take sides. All that it can attempt is to report developments and try to intelligently interpret their significance. The Raskob letter, in our opinion, is the beginning of a fight that may prove to be fatal to Democratic hope in 1932. Plainly, his move premeas a battle to the end and we do not see any prospect of amicable adjustment within the party.

There are any number of sensible newspaper editors who cling to the belief that the agricultural subscriber is not interested in the affairs of the world. How great is their mistake appears when farmers read that the outside world, affected by various factors, cut its purchases of American agricultural products by $408,195,000 in the eight months ending February 28, 1931, as compared with the same period of the year before.

The death of Speaker Nicolas Longworth removes from the political scene one of the powers of government under the rules which enabled the speaker, the majority leader and the head of the rules committee to almost dictate what legislation could be considered in the house. Longworth's death was sudden, coming with surprising verification of his farewell message to Congress just a few weeks ago, when he said, "Perhaps this is the last time I will address you from this rostrum" and while he had in mind the closeness of the next Congress, with doubt as to which party would organize the house, his passing emphasizes his own suggestion that "it is only an all-wise providence who is going to determine which of the major parties will organize the next house."

Longworth was recognized as an exceedingly able man, valuable to his party to a marked degree, and yet so friendly to all, that he had many close friends among the Democrats. Sojourning in Aiken, S. C., he was invited to address the General Assemblies of South Carolina and Alabama, which were in session but had not been able to do so.

RONALD WEBB WINS FIRST PLACE IN DISTRICT CONTEST

Rainier Review Commends Young Orator on Splendid Work in Speeches

The Rainier Review in their report on the District 3 oratorical contest on the Constitution, stated that Ronald Webb of Beaverton easily won first place, with his oration entitled "Opposition through Passive Resistance." His subject chosen for the extempore speech was "Thomas Jefferson and the Constitution." Both speeches brought out unusual thoroughness.

His oration was delivered in a masterly manner, with an easy grace of delivery and showed more than the usual knowledge of the subject expected in high school student. His extempore speech on "Thomas Jefferson and the Constitution" was handled even more creditably than his oration. Although the various contestants presented good work as high school students, there could be no question as to the winner of first place.

Ronald began his public speaking training at an early age, representing the grade school of Beaverton at the county speaking contests upon three occasions. At the first, while in the 3rd grade he won third place, in the 4th and 5th grades he took first honors on both occasions.

He has been very active in debate work during his four high school years and a member of the District Champion debaters this year. However debating is not his only achievement, Ronald was elected treasurer of the class the freshman and junior years and was president of the senior class the first semester. The student body chose him as a representative to the annual Educational Exposition at Corvallis this year. He is also president of the Torch Honor society and a member of Hi Y's.

Helen Mae Bu and Homer E. Allen Married April 17 at Home Wedding

Miss Helen Mae Bu, daughter of Mrs. John S. Bu, became the bride of Homer E. Allen son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Allen, of Beaverton, April 17th at a quiet home wedding at 341 North 76th St., Portland.

The ceremony was read by Rev. George W. Springer. The rooms were tastefully decorated in pink and white. A flower altar was arranged before the fire-place. The bride was beautifully dressed in turquoise blue crepe and carried a bouquet of Orphelia roses, lilies of the valley and sweet peas. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Struthers of Portland, and little Mary Lucille Royce of Albany was flower girl.

Robert Wood of Beaverton was best man.

Only relatives and immediate friends were present.

The bride is a graduate of Franklin High school, later attending business college in Portland.

Mr. Allen, of Beaverton, is employed by the Oregon Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Portland. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Allen will make their future home in Portland.

State C. E. President Speaks at County Rally

The Washington County C. E. rally, at the Beaverton Congregational church Sunday afternoon, drew a large representative group from all corners of the county.

J. Henderson, state C. E. president, spoke on the coming state convention and Roff Ginley talked of the international convention at San Francisco.

Gaston was awarded first prize in the poster contest. Other features on the program were a reading by Mrs. Tucker and special music by Dornell Smith and Helen Toy.

Dorothy Hawes, superintendent of the county C. E. society presided.

Cedar Mills Store Robbed

R. R. Haskell, Cedar Mills store keeper, was ordered Tuesday night about 10 o'clock by a customer to "stick 'em up." The till and Mr. Haskell's pockets were emptied of small change amounting to about $20.

Mrs. Chas. Esterly of Portland spent a few days at her home here this week.

Bethany Man Despondent Over Ill Health, Suicide

J. Walter Dysie of Bethany, despondent over ill health, committed suicide Saturday morning. He left home where he resides with his mother, about 10 o'clock in the morning, driving to Beaverton, where he posted a letter to his brother-in-law, H. A. Kuratli of Hillsboro. He was later found by a passerby, sitting in his parked car on the Walker road, with a bullet wound in his left temple, but still alive.

The injured man was removed to the Smith hospital, dying 4 hours later.

Mr. Dysie, a Portland mail carrier, was on a months leave of absence, due to ill health. The doctor informing him an operation would not help his condition any, his fear of what the future might bring, is thought to have been the family cause for this action.

SOLDIERS HOME AVAILABLE TO TUALATIN VALLEY

Organizations of Valley Investigating Proposed Sites Desirable

According to an investigation made by J. O. Johnson, commander of West Hills Post, The American Legion there is an excellent chance to have the proposed new two million dollar soldiers home located in Tualatin Valley.

Immediate action, however, must be taken by owners of property as Col. Radcliff, representing the government will soon make his report on the sites which have been offered to the government.

Several communities south of Portland have offered sites to the government. Roseburg claiming preference because of endorsements by the American Legion, Tualatin valley would receive very favorable consideration if a site is offered for several reasons:

First: It is important to the proper administration of an institution caring for several hundreds of men to be located within a reasonable distance from a large city.

Second: Tualatin Valley has the most ideal climate and location for such an institution particularly along the Tualatin river.

Third: The institution should be located near or on the proposed new Champeog Highway and easily accessible from Portland, to serve the whole Northwest.

Commander Johnson conferred with Senator Steiwer and Veterans Bureau officials and was advised that no definite decision has been made as to the location and that Col. Radcliff is ready to look at any site which may be offered of 400 acres or over. The importance of the project may be realized when it is known that the government will eventually spend two million dollars for construction of the institution. Next to the Tunnel project there is nothing more important to the people of the Tualatin Valley and Portland as the location of this great institution.

The executive committee of the Tigard Lions club heartily endorsed the idea and they are making a study of possible sites suggested by Mr. Tigard and others.

H. L. Davenport, secretary of the United West Side clubs states that the matter has been discussed and considered by the club officers and that all communities in Tualatin valley should act immediately advising the officers as to the acreage available for the institution. The land must be donated by the owners or made available by the community. Owners of large tracts of land can afford to give this project serious consideration for the building of the soldiers home will have great effect on land values of surrounding country and will be another guarantee for the success of the Tunnel to Portland.
