LABOR WANTS RELIEF THIRD PARTY TALKED DEMOCRATS GATHER SMITH VS ROOSEVELT BETTING ODDS HOOVER'S PROPOSAL PRIVATE CAPITAL FAILS FOREIGN TRADE NEEDED RAILROAD FINANCES

With the President planning a new drive to consolidate departments and bureaus as an aid to economy and hunting plans to effect savings, it would seem possible to secure some relief from Republicans in Congress talking expenditures this year.

However, demands for new expenditures continue to arise. Notable was the decision of the American Federation of Labor to throw its influence behind the drive for direct Federal appropriations to relieve the unemployed. For the first time, the great labor organization takes a stand on the issue and aligns itself against the President. He insists that such action is not necessary.

The Federation estimates that there will be 7,500,000 unemployed during the first part of 1932, and does not believe that the government should "shirk its responsibilities."

In Washington one finds a strong undercurrent of third party talk, based upon the attitude of Republican-Independents who have fought the President on his tariff and farm relief policies in the Senate. Senators Norris, Johnson, Borah and La Follette, together with Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, are being mentioned as "possible" candidates.

Senator Norris, it is understood, has declined to enter the presidential primaries, but is understood to be willing to support "any progressive" against Hoover. That a fight may be made against the renomination of the President is possible but, in view of his control of the party machinery, there seems no doubt about the ability of his partisans to give him the nomination.

The political spotlight this week turns to the Jackson Day gathering of Democratic leaders in Washington which is expected to outline the contending factions to some extent, the relative strength of leaders striving to control the party.

Considerable interest is taken in the fact that Alfred E. Smith will be one of the three speakers on this occasion, which is seen as an opportunity for him. Just what Mr. Smith has in mind is a source of concern to a number of Democrats. The standard bearer of 1928 retains considerable strength and while few concede him a chance to run again, many admit that he may exercise a veto power over the convention and thus prevent the nomination of any unfavorable candidate.

That Governor Roosevelt, of New York, is far in the lead for the Democratic nomination is generally agreed upon, but many expect straight-out opposition to develop from Smith and look to the meeting this week to show Smith's hand. In fact, the success or failure of Roosevelt is believed to depend largely upon the Smith attitude, although there are many who believe that the present New York Governor will be able to win in spite of the Raskob-Smith combination.

In a presidential year, the selection of the Chief Executive occupies the public mind to a great extent. Already one hears that professional gamblers are making odds on the chances of leading Democrats to win the nomination of their party. According to a writer in the New York Sun, these cold-blooded scientists of probabilities ask the public to place $2 against $1 on the Roosevelt chances. In other words, they will lose $1 if Roosevelt is the party's choice but you will pay them $2 if he is unsuccessful. On others, the odds are the other way around, being cited as 4-1 against Baker, 6-1 against Richlie and 10-1 against Smith.

President Hoover's suggested Reconstruction Finance Corporation is intended to rehabilitate credit and restore public confidence. It is expected that the National Credit Cor-

Four Aloha Residents Sent to Hospital as Result of Accident

Four well known Aloha residents narrowly escaped death New Year's night about 8 o'clock when a car driven by Matt King overturned three times in an effort to avoid crashing into a Ford driven by L. Curlett of Portland. The accident occurred at the cross road at Alexander's Service Station and the Canyon road.

According to reports Mr. Curlett attempted to enter the Canyon road without observing the stop sign and Mr. King, to avoid a serious accident turned his car into the gravel. The Ford struck the rear of Mr. King's Packard, overturning the heavy machine. Passengers in the King car included Mr. and Mrs. King, A. J. Gerrow and Mrs. Dickson. A. J. Gerrow who was riding in the front seat was thrown against the dash board, suffering internal injuries to the abdomen and is still confined to the hospital. Mrs. King received a severe gash on her leg and cuts about the temple, while Mrs. Dickson suffered a wrenched back and cuts. Both were treated at the hospital but returned home, where they have not as yet recovered from the shock.

Numerous accidents have occurred at this crossing, due mainly to the fact that persons fail to observe that Canyon road is a through highway and traffic at that point should be watched by those attempting to enter from a side road.

LIFE
By Anne Espoir
Life is not like a river of dreams. You must take things as they come. The figure of life is not the shadow it seems. It is not like the moss, the violets home.

The figures can not be wiped away. As they can be on a slate; You must figure them out as they lay And make your life free from joys of hate.

NORTHWEST OREGON HAS BUT 1-6TH OF STATES HIGHWAYS

Northwest Oregon Development Association met Tuesday night at Hillsboro for the purpose of selecting three Washington County representatives. Those chosen were John Meurer, Jr., of the Cornell road, L. L. Crawford, Manning, and F. W. Beach of Cornelius Loyal M. Graham was acting secretary and Lester Siefert of Banks, chairman for the gathering.

An advisory committee will be appointed based on the population of all counties.

The main objectives of this newly formed organization is to (1) push an early completion of highway systems in the counties to the coast (2) regulate bus schedules; (3) increase tourist traffic, publicity, etc. (4) obtain permanent settlers for this section and (5) cooperate in the development of the entire district.

A thorough check of the highway systems in the state of Oregon reveals that the northwest part of the state has but 6% of the total mileage, with the largest population.

The following table will illustrate the point more clearly.

Eastern Oregon population 82,973, road mileage 2,523.

Central Oregon, population 251,291, road mileage 876.

Southern Oregon population 98,011, road mileage 589.

The above figures show that 55% of the population of the state are accommodated with 94% of the highway mileage, while the northwest has a population of 421,511, which is 45%, they have only 6% or 258 miles of roadways improved.

D. C. Howard met with his garden club Wednesday. This is quite a large club and seem to be extremely interested in the beginning and working out of their respective projects. Mr. Howard talked about the meaning of the 4-H symbol and the boys recited its meaning—head, heart, home and health. Especially did he stress the importance of citizenship as an interpretation of the heart division.

The members of the club were given posters to be placed on their premises indicating that a "4-H" boy or girl lives there. Though it isn't really time to begin planting gardens it is time to be planning them and arranging for fertilizing and breaking of the ground and the leader also discussed this with the boys. The boys were also instructed as to the method and importance of keeping reports of their activities.

As the middle of January approaches certain members of the eighth grade class are taking on an extremely serious attitude. Why? Well, they want to take the state test a midyear. So anxious are they to pass these tests that they are putting in extra hours before and after school for review of the subjects to be taken.

Cooking clubs met this week but we were unable to obtain details of what was done.

This week's changes on the school registers include Norman and Dolly Rinehart, Norman and Della Jacobson who moved away and Orville and Chester Haskell and Vesta Walker who are new pupils in the system.

The sixth grade spelling contest has ended with Jenne Welsh's side victorious. They will celebrate Friday afternoon.

The Bank of Beaverton's many savings depositors have had their January 1, 1932, interest added to their accounts. The Bank will be glad to have you bring in your savings Pass Book at your convenience so that it may be entered on your book.

1932 Leaders of our fair community hold great hopes and desires for the coming 12 months

My belief is that conditions in 1932 will show a decided improvement for the better and that the change will occur when least expected. With grain quoted at a better price, kindred products are bound to rise, which will tend toward better times. The outlook for 1932 in my belief is optimistic with a slow upward movement.

DOY GRAY
Bank of Beaverton

We have in mind a closer relationship between Beaverton business men and our neighbors in the nearby communities and a better understanding of problems confronting every resident of this wonderful Tualatin Valley.

Cooperative marketing can and will solve many problems and prove a benefit to everyone.

If you are interested in civic affairs you can do your share by coming to general Chamber of Commerce meetings.

LEE R. RICHEY
President Chamber of Commerce

My sincerest wishes for the new year are:

To bring into closer relation the home, and the school. That parents and teachers may cooperate in the training of the child.

For every child a community which recognizes and plans for his needs, protect him against physical dangers, provide him with safe and wholesome places for play and recreation.

MRS ESSEX MARSH
Pres Parent-Teacher Association

The Kiwanis club stands for giving first place to the human and spiritual, rather than to the material things of life, for the application of the golden rule to all human relationship, and for the development of more intelligent and aggressive citizenship. With these ideas in mind we are working to make Beaverton a better place to live in. It is a friendly town and we believe that we can help to make it even more so in the coming year.

N. J. SKEE,
President Kiwanis club

Though there are many indications that brighter days lie just ahead, no one would dare venture definite predictions, there are too many factors of uncertainty; But I venture to say that if we trust the guiding power above and follow His leading, even if it requires new ways of thinking and new methods, in other words, Christian principles in business and statesmanship, we shall soon rejoice in prosperity shared by all.
