GARNER'S VICTORY ROOSEVELT'S PROSPECTS ECONOMY BILL WRECKED HALE'S NAVAL BILL SENATORS HUNT TAXES PROVIDES NEW PENSIONS TRYING TO FIX PRICES

The victory of speaker Garner in California, giving him the forty-four delegates from that state, which, added to the forty-six to come from Texas, places him in the "runner-up" position, being topped only by Governor Roosevelt who is generally credited with about 400 delegates, approximated 170 less than a majority in the Convention.

The fight of those opposed to Roosevelt centers around a number of favorite sons and the candidacies of Al Smith and Garner. Following the California vote, Roosevelt adversaries were jubilant over belief that he had been "stopped" but this his supporters declare, is far from the fact. In addition to his 400 delegates, his friend says the "Stop Roosevelt" group have little chance of preventing him from winning 300 additional delegates which one may add the possibility of his winning "favorite sons" delegates after the initial ballot.

This Roosevelt strength has been built up by a widely scattering string of victories but he has not been assured of the delegates from his own state. Moreover, his supporters insist that Kaskob and Shouse, both occupying high positions within the Party, have been trying to block him and no one can see anything else in the progressive development of the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, who started as a "receptive" candidate, became "active," appealing for delegates, and then, finally openly giving warning that he might fight Roosevelt.

Few citizens have any idea of what will happen to the Omnibus Economy bill which passed the House with only $38,124,008 of the original estimated savings of $206,000,000 for the fiscal year, 1933. The leaders were helpless to stem the attack of a coalition which eliminated the War-Navy consolidation, estimated to save $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, lopped $55,000,000 off the proposed salary reduction and rejected legislation affecting the Veterans' Bureau which was expected to save $48,714,000. Fourteen "savings" were left in the measure, including a cut of eleven per cent for all salaries in excess of $2500, estimated to save $12,000,000. Some dissatisfaction is also apparent in the House over the Senate's flat ten per cent cut policy in various supply bills.

In the meantime the Senate is trying to "do something" in the way of finding new sources of revenue but changes are rapid and it is difficult to predict what kind of measure will result. In a general way the tax and economy situation seem to be badly confused, with wide differences of opinion between the two houses and the Administration. It is little use to attempt any statement of governmental policy in this respect until a crystallization of sentiment occurs.

The Hale bill, to authorize the building of the American Navy up to the limits of the London Treaty, does not appropriate money although it eventually involves quadrupling the annual rate of naval building in this country. Senator Hale insists that the United States will rank fifth among the naval powers of the world at the expiration of the London Treaty in 1936, having only 68 modern ships, instead of 200. Great Britain, with 121, Japan with 156, France with 153, and Italy with 115 will have stronger navies.

Some sentiment developed to postpone action at this time in view of expectations that the conference at Geneva might accomplish something in the way of disarmament. However, others believe that prompt passage of the measure will do much to secure results at the disarmament conference when other nations understand that this country will maintain its treaty rights unless they get together and disarm.

By a vote of 316 to 16, and after only forty minutes of debate, the House voted approval of a bill authorizing an expenditure of $10,000,000 for the next year to provide pensions for widows and orphans. What the measure will cost the government in the long run is uncertain because the faster the veterans die, or become dependent, the greater will be the drain upon the Treasury. Three Democrats and thirteen Republicans voted against the measure, which is expected to involve $100,000,000 in the next ten years.

Cedar Mills Resident Boosts H. J. Bean, Chief Justice of Supreme Court

Henry J. Bean present Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Oregon, who is a candidate for the nomination for re-election as Justice of the Supreme Court, Position No. 2, on the Non-partisan Judiciary Ballot, was first elected to that position in 1910 and has served since that time. The able opinions written by him soon after he assumed the position attracted the attention of the other members of the Court and the lawyers of the State. His opinions received marked attention, the reports of selected cases and were referred to in textbooks and adopted as the sound exposition of the law. They served in large measure in the construction, establishment and administration of the Employers' Liability Law of Oregon and the Federal Employers' Liability Act, of which the State Courts have concurrent jurisdiction. Therefore cases under the Federal law are commenced and prosecuted in this state. The Workmen's Compensation Act has many times been considered and applied by Justice Bean.

In all matters receiving his attention, justice and right are his principal guide. His opinions are widely recognized as sound and just. At three different Primary Elections he has been endorsed by both the Republican and Democratic parties. It has never been intimated that his acts were influenced in any way by partisanship. He deserves the approval of the voters of the State irrespective of party affiliations at the coming Primary Election May 20th.

SAM'L. B. LAWRENCE ISSUES STATEMENT TO VOTERS

SAMUEL B. LAWRENCE.

Samuel B. Lawrence, candidate for State Senator from Washington County, issues the following statement:

In these times of depression, economy and reduction of the cost of government should be the slogan and watchword of every public official from the President of the United States down.

You voters of this county will soon be called upon to decide who shall represent you in the Oregon State Senate for the next four years. The office of State Senator is one of responsibility and trust.

Under the State constitution the legislative assembly is given the power to enact laws that vitally effect the welfare and prosperity of every citizen of this commonwealth. One of the important powers of this assembly is the power to tax. Judge Cooley, an eminent Jurist and authority on taxation says: "The power to tax is the power to destroy."

This statement is virtually true. There are cases in the State where taxation has confiscated the property. I contend that all property in whatever form you may find it should bear its just and fair share of the cost of government. Citizens who own only stocks and bonds or mortgages under our system of government are given the same protection as those who own real property.

We have a Governor who during his short time in office has done much to stop some of the wasteful and criminal expenditure of the taxpayers money. The Governor needs the support and the cooperation of the legislative branch of our State government so that all needed legislation may be enacted to curb the enormous waste of tax money.

I stand squarely behind the Governor in his fight to lower taxes. We, the people of Oregon, should do our duty as citizens in studying the qualifications of the various candidates for this office and give our support to that one who is the best qualified to render you that service. By education, training and experience I believe that I am able to render to you that service.

Should I be nominated and elected to the office of State Senator by the voters of this county, I shall during my term of office labor faithfully for the best interests of Washington County and the State of Oregon.
