LOOKING AT WASHINGTON

ABOUT LIBERIA REDS AND THE B. E. F. GLASSFORD'S DEFENSE THE LEGION'S ACTION HOOVER TO GO WEST U. S. NOT REPRESENTED BUILDING PROGRAM POWER RECORDS MAINE PLEASES DEMOCRATS WORRIES REPUBLICANS

The United States has sent a memorandum through the League of Nations to countries represented on the International Committee on Liberia, insisting upon a thorough clean-up of slavery in that country and that an international agency be clothed with adequate authority to make the necessary reform.

The matter has been pending for months, following various reports of conditions among the Kru tribesmen. This country charges the Liberian government with attempting to delay action and makes it plain that any further effort to block international action will be resisted by the United States.

On the eve of the American Legion convention, President Hoover made public a report from the Department of Justice, in which Attorney-General Mitchell declared, "It is probable the Bonus Army brought to the city of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at any one time." Communist agitators were accused of instigating the Bonus Army and, together with non-service men, finally gained control of the movement.

President Hoover is making public the report, called attention to the "extraordinary proportion of criminal, Communist and non-veteran element" as shown by the report, stating that a large portion of the better element gradually returned home after the adjournment of Congress, losing control of the B. E. F.

The Attorney-General's report disclosed that a close watch had been kept on the congregation when it began in May, told of "incendiary speeches and plans to stir the Bonus Army to violence and bloodshed," recounted that of 1,069 men whose records were run down, 829 were found to have one or more convictions and insisted that the troops were called into action only after the authorities of the District of Columbia had lost control of the situation and requested armed intervention. He said that "appalling scenes of disorder would follow when darkness arrived" and that Gen. Glassford stated that the police could not control the situation any longer.

Following the publication of this statement, Gen. Glassford, Superintendent of Washington police paid a high tribute to the character of the men in the Bonus camps, stating that Communists "were in a very slight minority" and asserted that only "twelve arrests were for actual criminal offenses instead of 326 as charged." He said there was less crime during either June or July than during the month of August after the veterans had been evicted and insisted that Communists' propaganda was "completely frustrated."

Moreover, he said that he did not ask for the use of troops and had no intimation that they would be used until so informed by newspaper reporters. He did not understand why the commissioners had not notified him instantly when troops were called and says that "there was no trouble of any kind between two p. m. and the time the troops arrived, which was after five. He insisted that not more than 450 of the 1300 police officers were in the disaffected area at any time.

The issuance of the President's statement, just as the American Legion was meeting in Portland, Oregon, and General Glassford's reply created a new situation in the controversy and the Attorney-General gave out to the press a letter written by the President of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, written a few days after the riot, in which this official stated that Glassford thought it necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops.

In some quarters, the action of the President was interpreted as a

ENTERTAINMENTS PAY EXPENSES OF 4-H CLUB FAIR

A successful fair is the verdict of the three thousand people who attended the Washington County 4-H club fair last Friday and Saturday. The two evening entertainments met the expenses of the fair, and according to O. M. Plummer, there is reason to be proud of the showing made by the boys and girls of this county.

In the livestock division 117 club members put in an excellent show, 59 head of dairy cattle filling one barn. Eleven hogs, 12 milk goats, and 30 rabbits and a poultry show with 103 birds exhibited took up the larger part of another building. The crops show consisted of six exhibits of corn, six of potatoes, and 12 of vegetables. Since most corn and potatoes are not yet mature this showing was considered very creditable. A new feature of the crops show this year was six forestry exhibits.

An entirely new feature of the 4-H fair was the 15 booth exhibits of different clubs. These booths occupied the major part of one building and attracted a great deal of favorable attention and comment.

Friday morning the stock judging teams competed for the honor of representing the county at the State fair, with 38 boys entering the contest. The first 10 individual placings in order, were: Don Jossy, Frances Detrick, Albert Grossen, John Hansen, Ray Wismer, with Wm. Batchelder and Geo. Barkley, Kenneth Willis tying for sixth place, Adrain Hornecker and Harvey Storey.

The first five placings were all from the Rock Creek Calf club which will represent Washington County at Salem.

Ymcaists in the 10th pothe gl n.l uvh In the crops judging contest, Vernon Nordin, representing the Chealem Mountain Potato club and Wesley Batchelder competing for the Corn Huskers, tied for first place with 605 points out of a possible 700.

The Corn Huskers was the winning team.

The Hillsboro Poultry club won the honor of representing the county at Salem over the Deerlick Poultry club by a margin of only five points out of a possible 400.

E. R. Stromquist, field man for the Oregon Feed company, will give the poultry team a judging demonstration on Thursday, September 22 to whip them in shape for the fair. Belanger taking both the livestock and crops judging teams to Corvallis on Friday to give additional training.

The amount of the premiums for the boys' division of the fair totaled $342.25 which was well distributed among the 117 entrants.
