A Priest On Science

Sensible people realize that there is no need for warfare between science and religion. Abbe Lemaitre, a Catholic priest of California, recently expressed himself on the supposed conflict of science and the Bible, saying:

"Do you know where the heart of the misunderstanding lies?"

"It is really a joke on the scientists. They are a literal-minded lot. Hundreds of professional and amateur scientists actually believe the Bible pretends to teach science. This is a good deal like assuming that there must be authentic religious dogma in the binomial theorem."

"Nevertheless, a lot of otherwise intelligent and well-educated men do go on believing or at least acting on such a belief. When they find the Bible's scientific references wrong, as they often are, they repudiate it utterly."

"If the theory of relativity had also been necessary to salvation it would have been revealed to St. Peter or Moses. Even though handicapped by the lack of a terminology and the necessary equations, all the results of an evolution that has been going on for centuries, either would have made some stumbling effort to expound it. As a matter of fact neither St. Paul nor Moses had the slightest idea of relativity."

"The writers of the Bible were illuminated more or less—more than others—on the question of salvation. On other questions they were as wise or as ignorant as their generation. Hence it is utterly unimportant that errors of historic and scientific fact should be found in the Bible, especially if errors relate to events that were not directly observed by those who wrote about them."

"The idea that because they were right in their doctrine of immortality and salvation they must also be right on all other subjects is simply the fallacy of people who have an incomplete understanding of why the Bible was given to us at all."

A New Alliance

Some years ago three little countries in the southeast of Europe formed what was called the Little Entente. Czecho-Slovakia, Romania and Jugo-Slavia were the nations and mainly one of defensive character.

Within the recent months this alliance has been transformed into a stronger working agreement which almost makes the three countries one in foreign affairs. The three ministers for foreign affairs will form a permanent council to direct a common policy. Already each country has renounced the right to make any treaty without consulting the other two.

The formation of this group was originally hailed as French diplomatic victory. The recent strengthening of the alliance was caused by fear of Italy, and while France may have smiled the three little countries needed no prompting. The exposure of Italy's efforts to ship arms to Hungary was incentive enough.

Already the nations of Europe are forming in rival groups. Germany, Italy, Austria and Hungary see things from a similar viewpoint. Against these France, Poland, and the Little Entente have drawn together.

Italy and Germany have taken the lead in advocating a revision of present treaties. The opposing nations seek to maintain the status quo. At present Poland fears a German attempt to destroy the Corridor. Jugo-Slavia distrusts Italy and both want the territory contained in Albania.

The League of Nations is trying to decide what to do with Japan and Japan is trying to decide whether it is safe to take some more Chinese territory.

Whenever you hear of a get rich quick proposition just remember that you are no the only fellow in the sented, the prospect would be overland and that, if all was as represented with applicants.

The other day a man said that this paper said thus and so about the banking situation. The brother was all wrong. We said nothing, but we reported what some financiers and officials said. This is a different proposition but few newspaper readers make the distinction.

LOOKING AT WASHINGTON

Following a radio address to the people of the United States generally in which he promised to stop "bad banking practices," President Roosevelt suggested that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee continue its investigation of the banking situation, which has already brought to light evidences of rascality in high banking circles. While the inquiry is aimed to guard against the continuance or return of reprehensible practices, the President asked the Attorney-General to keep in touch with the investigation and to prosecute vigorously any violations of the law that might be revealed.

Senator Fletcher, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, says that the study will involve the activities of private bankers, trust companies in the security business, and the New York Stock Exchange. While these phases of the problem have not been studied, except incidentally, testimony heretofore gathered has tended to place a large share of responsibility for inflated values of securities prior to 1929 on the activities of private bankers.

It is well known that the President's emergency program includes not only the matters already discussed, but also action on the Administration's employment measure. This it is said here, will include a $500,000,000 bond issue. Prolonged opposition is expected on this proposal but the probability of success is seen in the ample majority which the Democratic Party has in both houses. However, should there be any large scale defection, the fate of the employment program would be doubtful. Linked into this general field is the Muscle Shoals development and the question of similar developments in other sections of the country.

The United States has joined hands with other nations in an effort to develop a satisfactory policy toward Japan. Technically, the invitation of the League of Nations to cooperate with its advisory committee on the Far Eastern emergency, has been officially accepted. This was not unexpected in view of the endorsement of the Hoover policy by Mr. Roosevelt before his inauguration. The United States will not be bound by any decision of the League body, and will not vote on its proposals.

The government is not acting so much through League authority; rather it is consulting with other signatories of the Nine-Power Treaty, and Pact of Paris, using for general convenience the machinery of the League. The Pact of Paris pledges nations not to resort to war as an instrument of national policy. The Nine-Power Treaty pledges the principal Pacific powers to respect the territorial and administrative integrity of China, and the Open Door in the Far East. It provides for consultation. The Pact of Paris contains no enforcement machinery, but Secretary Stimson implemented it by his doctrine of non-recognition of territorial gains acquired contrary to its provisions.

This policy has been adopted by the League, with specific reference to the Chino-Japanese dispute.

The present conference will probably consider placing an arms embargo upon Japan, the "aggressor" nation, which has already been unanimously condemned by the entire League group for her recent actions. However, such an embargo can not succeed unless concerted action is had, including those countries which manufacture most of the war materials. These include the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia and Sweden. While President Roosevelt is on record in favor of such a course, it will be necessary for Congress to grant him authority to forbid the shipment of arms or munitions. This authority undoubtedly will be given the President.

RURAL RECREATION TO BE STRESSED AT CONFERENCE

Methods of improving community entertainment throughout rural sections particularly will be given a prominent place on the coming annual Oregon conference on home interests at Oregon State college March 30 to April 1. This phase of the program will reach its peak in the presentation Thursday evening of the winning one-act plays from Lane and Jackson county in the final contest for state honors.

Irving Grange of Lane county and Phoenix Grange of Jackson county were judged best in their sections and they will produce their one-act plays at the State conference before many delegates from other counties who are going largely to study the methods and results of rural recreation and dramatics with an idea of starting the program in their counties next year.

This is but one phase, however, of the three-day conference on home interests which will take up many economic matters related to homes during this period of financial stress. Reports are that many homemakers and community leaders will attend, one county reporting that a chartered bus will bring its delegates.

Delicious Egg Features

A wise resolution for any housewife to make is to serve eggs in some form every day. Now that spring is coming and eggs are getting more plentiful, and cheaper in price, this can be done without increasing costs. Nutrition authorities recommend eggs at least three or four times a week for a well balanced diet. This is because of their value as body-building food, their high vitamin content, and because they are an excellent source of iron in a form very easily utilized in the body. Because of this iron, eggs are good blood builders. Although eggs are richer in iron than milk, they contain much less calcium or lime. For this reason, they are in no way a substitute for milk but should be considered a supplement to it. Dishes prepared with these two protective foods in combination assure a highly nutritious, as well as palatable result. The addition of cheese to any egg dish gives a zest and flavor which adds to the palatability. A few recipes featuring eggs, with milk and cheese, are:

Eggs and Noodles au Gratin
4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt

LAMB CREEP EASILY MADE
SAYS O. S. C. SPECIALIST

A lamb creep to be used in supplying young lambs with extra grain to hasten their development may be easily and quickly made with four movable panels commonly found on any farm raising sheep, says Orin M. Nelson, associate professor of animal husbandry at Oregon State college.

One panel is made over into a creep panel by nailing on vertical slats spaced about eight to 10 inches apart. Rounding the edges prevents tearing the wool of the lambs. A creep made of three ordinary 12-foot panels and one creep panel will give an enclosure large enough for 50 lambs as all will not be in the creep at the same time. It is best placed

1-8 teaspoon white pepper, 2 cups diced celery, 6 hard cooked eggs, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1 package noodles

Cook noodles in salted water until tender. Make white sauce of flour, milk and seasonings. Brown celery in butter. Put noodles, celery, sliced eggs and cheese in alternate layers into buttered baking dish. Pour white sauce over all. Sprinkle with grated cheese and paprika. Set in moderate oven until cheese melts and brown slightly. Serve six.

Egg Roll with Cheese Sauce
Make your favorite baking powder biscuit dough adding two tablespoons of cheese with shortening. Roll out to about 1-4 inch thickness and spread with the egg filling:

1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 hard cooked eggs.

Make a thick white sauce of the flour, milk, salt and butter. Add the chopped hard cooked eggs. When cool, spread on the biscuit dough. Roll the dough jelly-roll fashion and cut in half inch slices. Place slices cut side up in a pan and bake in hot oven 15 minutes. Serve with cheese sauce or melted cheese.

Strawberry Nursery Planned

bvaidivedjosa... isrn e t ...rre
OREGON CITY — A strawberry nursery will be started on the farm of Emmett Nordlund this year as a part of the agricultural program of the Oliney Grange of which Nordlund is a member. By having one place in that community where test work with many varieties can be carried on, more new sorts may be obtained through the county agent and the state experiment station for observation under local conditions than if many were trying to carry out a lot of scattered individual tests, growers here believe.

Forward Heads Up Everybody

THE TURN IS HERE— GET THE SPIRIT

Today is a day of rejoicing. We Americans have the courage and the faith in our country to pull out of any hole we may be in.

Do you ever think of our forefathers, what they had to overcome. It was all done by having faith and courage. What we need today is faith and courage.

Our President is doing a great job, but he needs all our help so lets all do our part.

Think Only of Progress, Act Progressive Be Progressive

Put fear behind you. Look to the future. It looks bright.
