ON MOTHER'S DAY

The people of this county will join the nation in observing Mother's Day next Sunday.

For a few hours, at least, they will turn their thoughts to the unselfish service and loving devotion that was their childhood boon. Memory of those days stays with them through life and it is little enough for men and women to set apart a single day in honor of their mothers.

More and more are men beginning to believe Emerson's statement that men are what their mothers made them. Many of them will accept George Herbert's opinion that "One good mother is worth a hundred school masters." Occasionally one will find an honest man who will echo the tribute of J. Q. Adams, who admitted "All that I am my mother made me."

In a world gone mad over material values and now suffering from the shock of disillusionment, cold-blooded business men will probably put more value on their mothers than ever before. They will begin to think that her unselfish service and loving kindness is really the example that men should set before them in order to make a better race and a better world.

While no one would think for a moment of depreciating the observance of Mother's Day, it might be fitting for all of us to realize that the truest form of compensation to mother lies in a life that is patterned after her example, one that attempts to represent in a grossly selfish age, some of the high ideals inculcated into us through her example and teaching.

Certainly, the man or woman of maturity who can look back upon a childhood that was blessed with the presence of a loving mother, whose greatest enterprise in life was rearing and training of her children and whose greatest desire was to be instrumental in making them good as well as great, realize an unpaid debt that cannot be written off.

Truly, it may be said, whatever else may come to them in life, they have been abundantly blessed who have had a good mother.

WHY FARMERS ARE DESPERATE

If any citizen wishes to understand the present emergency in agriculture, let him ponder these facts, based on statistics kept by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics:

On February 15th, the average price of materials purchased by farmers was three per cent over the 1909-14 average.

On the same date, the price paid to farmers for the things he sells averaged fifty-one per cent below the pre-war figures.

On the basis of these figures the farmers' purchasing power was exactly fifty-two per cent below pre-war days.

Fortunately, since February 15th, the position of the farmers has improved. By mid April, prices paid by farmers had dropped to the pre-war average and prices paid for farm commodities had advanced to fifty-three.

People who constantly boast that they are telling the truth probably know why they brag.

When nations, or people, make up their minds not to be neighborly, that's all there is to it.

Any citizen will admit, modestly that he could tell the President how to solve most problems.

Business indexes continue to rise but church collections continue to feel the effects of the depression.

Daggers Drawn

Previous to the Seventeenth century, when cutlery, more or less as we know it, came into use, the dagger carried by every man served all purposes—from eating to fighting. Men had their own ready way of settling their differences in those days; a quarrel usually meant a fight, and knives were crossed with a vengeance. Hence the expression "At Daggers Drawn." Even today many people still see in a harmless pair of crossed table-knives the sign of a quarrel and bloodshed.

Rivers' Volume

The Amazon is much the largest river in the world in point of volume. It has been estimated that it discharges between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 cubic feet of water per second. The Mississippi's maximum discharge is estimated at 2,300,000 cubic feet per second, while the St. Lawrence system at Niagara falls has an average flow of 280,000 a second, and at the mouth of the river something less than twice that amount.

Jefferson Wasted Many Words in Long Letters

Thomas Jefferson was a great letter writer. It is said that he wrote thousands of letters every year. And of course they had to be very formal. People in those days were serious-minded and they did not descend to familiarities. Jefferson was himself a man of plain habits and tastes, as we know, but he felt that he had to comply with the fashions in letter writing which the high-hat people of that day set.

Here, for instance, observes a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, is the way he closed one letter: "Repeating to you my sincere sense of your goodness to me, and my wishes to prove it on every occasion, adding my sincere prayer that Heaven may bless you with many years of life and health, I pray you to accept here the homage of those sentiments of respect and attachment with which I have the honor to be your most obedient and humble servant."

They had no typewriters in those days. All letters, as well as writings of every sort, had to be done laboriously in long-hand, and with quill pens. Try to imagine what people of today would say—especially the younger generation—if they were told they would have to write their letters by hand and model them after the style of Jefferson's time!

Camels Are a Pest

A combination of circumstances seems to be working to the end of displacing the camel as the burden bearer of the desert, and the result is that thousands of these beasts are running wild, having been turned loose by their one-time owners who have no further use for them. The animals have thrived and multiplied until the country of Syria is overrun with them and the natives regard them as a pest. In some parts of the country the agricultural people are compelled to stand guard over their growing crops to prevent the droves of camels from devouring the grain. The animals roam far and wide in search of food, which has been very scarce, owing to the drought of the recent summers.

Curious Flower

One of the most curious flowers in the world is a kind of convolvulus which is common in Bermuda. The strange thing about this blossom is that it changes color as the hours of the day pass. Soon after sunrise the flower opens and it is then a lovely rose-pink. As time passes the bloom takes on a mauve shade until by noon it is a rich blue. In the afternoon the blue becomes fainter and fainter until when darkness comes this astonishing blossom is quite white. Just before midnight the flower fades, and it is a mass of crumpled petals by the morning.

This well-known doctor is among the leading Naturopaths of this section. Holds a high place in the business life of the community and is known for his public spirited and progressive policies.

Naturopathy has made a remarkable record in removing the cause of chronic diseases which have been the conspicuous failures of many methods of treatment. The most brilliant successes of Naturopathy, however, are in adjusting the cause of acute diseases, for in these the recuperative powers have not been weakened by long illnesses and the results are generally prompt and certain.

Dr. A. Wambach is a professional man of wide experience and if your health is not in the best condition you should visit the office and let him show you exactly where the cause of your suffering is, and explain to you just how chiropractic adjustments will remove the cause.

Bodily ailments come as a result either of a violation of nature's laws or on account of an interference with nature's way to keep the body in perfect health. The human body is so constructed that it is unnatural and impossible for disease to creep in without a cause. The nerve system which leads to and conveys life to every remote part of the body, is designed to give perfect health to all the organs and keep them in repair. It is bound to be disease in the particular organ supplied by the nerves so there is the slightest interference with the nerve communications, there obstructed. Simple adjustments remove the obstructions and thereby remove the cause, thus permitting nature to heal.

All persons who are lacking in strength and energy to perform their daily tasks, whose tired bodies are aching with pain, will find an adjustment or two will give them a new outlook on life.

One phase of Dr. A. Wambach's service that you will appreciate is the effort to give you the best possible results with adjustments that result in restoring health. A trial will convince you. Every case is carefully analyzed and given his close personal attention.

MOST PEOPLE ARE LIKEABLE WHEN WE "KNOW" THEM

Dear Girls: The reason for most of our dislike of people is that we really do not know them. Some little thing that they unconsciously do or that we hear about them, prejudices us and we decide they are not our choice of friends.

So often if we are thrown with these same people later on we discover mutually congenial tastes and find out that they are much nicer people than we ever suspected them of being.

I remember once, during my first year of college, the strong dislike I conceived for a girl in my math section who insisted on snapping her fingers if the teacher happened to ask a question which she could answer. The habit finally got on my nerves to such an extent until I felt as though I would enjoy pitching her out of the window.

Imagine my surprise later on, however, to have her invite me to her home for the week end. I accepted the invitation and had a marvelously good time. She was a member of a delightful family and one of the finest girls I ever knew—after I knew her.

Snap judgments are often erroneous ones. The people who make such a wonderful impression on us at the first meeting are generally the ones whose companionship fails to stand the wear and tear of time. There are of course exceptions to this general rule. I have known women who I instinctively liked from the first moment I met them, women whose eyes smiled as well as their lips. But most of the time, it takes a long time and much contact with people to discover their really good qualities.

Really the first requirement for nice people in my opinion is the quality of kindness. Show me a woman, considerate of her friends, considerate of her family, and considerate of her servants and I will show you a cultured woman. Courtesy is true culture. This company courtesy to be put off and on or to be used and unused with one kind of people and another is something else again.

It is not such a bad idea when we are selecting our friends to keep an open mind concerning them until we know them well. Find out if they are one thing abroad and another at home, find out if they are the same to your face as they are behind your back.

Cordially yours,
LOUISA

The Waiting List

In the old country sons-in-law were often given free board and lodging, instead of a dowry.

A young man and his sweetheart were discussing "ways and means" one day. The girl's father could not afford a dowry.

"We might board with your parents until times get better," the young man suggested hopefully.

"Not a chance," sighed the girl. "My parents are still boarding with my grand-parents."

Bank Building in Portland, is a Well Known Insurance Firm Rendering a Complete Service in Life Insurance, Whose Organization Has Built an Envious Reputation—Headquarters of One of the Most Widely and Favorably Known Offices Which this Company Has Established—Is Known by Everyone in This Section—Under the Direction of Mr. J. E. S. Buchanan. Tel. ATwater 2301.

Aetna Life Insurance Co., being operated by insurance experts enjoys a large and increasing patronage in the community. The universal success of this company is due mostly to the fact that it appreciates a large volume of business. Since their inception they have always been at the service of patrons and at all times ready and willing to give information desired and assuring all people that there was no obligation. The by-words of its progress have been courtesy and accommodation as their hundreds of clients will testify as ever increased their patronage.

Being one of the most popular life insurance companies in the country, they have policies with very attractive features and never failing protection.

Life insurance offers the advantages of protection, but also usually meets the requirements of some future day. It is a business investment, a worthwhile way to save your money. You can easily pay for a child's college education by carrying a policy on them for the amount of the educational cost. In this way the cost is strung over a period of years. Most business men carry insurance and if in debt (to the amount of their obligations) so in case of death their loved ones have no debts hanging over their heads. Every man should also protect his loved ones in like manner and more especially if in debt. When the man, the head of the family, is taken away he cannot be replaced, but insurance will leave an income for the family.

Not long ago some statistics on estates were taken and it was found that in money left after death by Americans, 87 per cent came from insurance and only 13 per cent from other sources. There is no question but what this is the day and age when insurance is the essential necessity of every individual.

Aetna Life Insurance Co. has a fine record of service to the people. Have proven through satisfactory service your patronage has been well merited. Insure today that your loved ones will be provided for—tomorrow is usually too late.
