

India Has Most Crowded

Region in Entire World
The most densely populated large region of the earth is Cochín, a British Indian state, according to a dispatch. Cochín has 814 people to the square mile. (Rhode Island has 644.1 persons per square mile, Nevada 0.83, the United States 41.3.)

Results of other recent population studies:

The earth's total population is 1,820,000,000. Asia contains 954,000,000, Europe 478,000,000, North America 162,000,000, South America 77,000,000, Africa 140,000,000, Australia and Polynesia 9,000,000. Cornell university estimates that the world's population in 1950 was 465,000,000, about one-fourth his present 1,820,000,000 estimate.

Contrary to snip judgment all the people—red, white, black and yellow—who lived and died from 1492 until 1850 in what is now the United States, did not equal the 123,000,000 who now inhabit the United States.—Time.

Extracting Scents From Flowers

The enfleurage method of extracting scents from flowers for perfume making is a process of extracting perfumes by exposing absorbents, as fixed oils or fats, to the inhalations of the flowers. It is used with plants whose volatile oils are too delicate to be separated by distillation. In the Bermuda perfume industry the flowers are kept in almost airtight contact with a pure preparation of mutton lard called pomade, which, being odorless in itself, readily picks up the scent of flowers exposed to it. When the saturation point is reached the pomade is dissolved in wine alcohol, which in its turn absorbs the flower odor. The greasy substance still in the alcohol is removed by freezing. Fixatives (ingredients necessary to give perfume its lasting quality and also its "life" or diffusiveness) are added, and the perfume is ready for bottling.

"Tailors of Tooley Street"

Tooley street is a street in Southwark, London, near London bridge. The story runs that at some period of political excitement in the early part of last century in England, three tailors of that street issued a manifesto, beginning "We, the people of England." It is generally supposed that these tailors were mythical creations of George Canning (some say Daniel O'Connell) during the agitation for the removal of Catholic disabilities. The Slang dictionary defines "Tooley Street tailor" as a self-concocted, vain-glorious man, the three tailors of Tooley street being said to have immortalized themselves by preparing a petition for parliament, and some say, presenting it, with only their own signatures thereto, which commenced "We, the people, of England."

Mail Matter in Keg

Transatlantic tourists passing in the vicinity of the Azores hope to make a stop on the islands, but there is generally some uncertainty about the visit which depends largely upon circumstances. Passengers in many instances prepare mail matter which they desire to start upon its journey, so that when the stop is not made it is the custom to throw the mail overboard. Not exactly to the waves, but it goes overboard just the same. The mail is placed in a keg with a small amount of money as a reward and the receptacle is sealed and thrown over. Fishermen are always on the alert to recover the keg. They take the money and mail the letters.
