NORTHWEST IS CENTER OF MUCH FARM ACTIVITY

Oregon and Pacific northwest were the centers of much activity related to the agricultural adjustment act and having to do particularly with wheat, fruit, and livestock in this territory, according to a summary of events issued by Oregon State college.

Of vital interest the world over was the informal hearing at Portland on the proposed plan of subsidizing export of some 40 million bushels of surplus wheat in the Pacific Northwest. This constitutes a new policy for the United States and is considered to have special significance just now as the wheat exporting nations are seeking to reach some reduction agreement.

The hearing resulted in formation of a detailed plan reported acceptable to all parties concerned, particularly the producers, the exporters and the millers. The plan calls for selling this surplus wheat for what it will bring in foreign markets and then make up the difference between that and the domestic market price out

Council Approves Title Quieting of Land Bid in for Assessments

At a meeting of the council last night, it was voted to quiet title on those parcels of land which was bid in for assessments by the city in times past.

This is a procedure that is necessary and one that should have been taken long ago. Our bond holders will no doubt be inclined to deal leniently when the city takes such steps to protect them and to help maintain the towns credit.

Again we wish to extend our compliments to the present administration for this action. More such methods will in time do away with continuous issues of refund bonds. This paper takes great pleasure in cooperating with city attorney V. P. Reimer in extending such advertising rates and terms that will at this time save the city a great amount of money.

Councilmen Barnes and Livermore not being in attendance, bills against the town were referred to temporary committee on finance, Bishop, Boswell, Koshland and Fordney.

RECREATION CENTER

The editor of the Enterprise asked me to write an article regarding the character of building improvement I was undertaking on the half block (Dr. Mason's property) Watson at First streets. I have felt there was need for outdoor amusements for the people of Beaverton and neighbor communities bringing them together on common ground, mutual enjoyment. There is to be a stand, or stage at the center of the property, later on in the east end, a dance platform. There are to be held concerts, various local talent and attractions. The cost of which, is being entirely borne by subscription or the work donated. Dr. Mason allowing the use of the half block of property The plan is under way.

Perhaps some will be skeptical but I shall endeavor to create a spirit of friendliness and happiness, having faith in the undertaking.

We are confronted these days with financial limitations and cares, and we can enjoy ourselves with this recreation, free to you. That's my perspective. Turning back a page, often days, leave your pocketbooks at home. Trusting you will join in the translation of this pleasure, concluding. Let the band play "Happy Days are Here Again"—All sing.

STATE FAIR OFFERS COMPETITIVE RODEO EVENTS THIS YEAR

Wild Bucking Horses, Bull Dogging, and Steers to Thrill Public

"Billy the Kid" is coming up from California for the Oregon State competitive rodeo to be presented free each night in front of the grandstand. In case you haven't heard of "Billy the Kid" he's the meanest, wildest "critter" that a cow hand ever tried to ride. Many have tried this year but all have failed. Will he be ridden at the State Fair? That only remains to be seen but he'll have some of the world's best riders on his back.

The State Fair rodeo this year is the stopping off place for cowboys from all over the world. They are coming to Salem because the State Fair precedes the Pendleton Round-Up. From Salem they will journey on to Pendleton, so State Fair visitors can be assured of the best talent.

In addition to "Billy the Kid" two other mean "critters" in the bucking business, "Strawberry Roan" and "Noah Henry" offer a challenge to all daring bronco riders. Frank E. Studnicka, of Stayton, world's champion rider, will probably be seen at the State Fair rodeo. Studnicka would like to try his skill with "Billy the Kid."

Bull-dogging steers are coming to the Fair rodeo straight from old Mexico. This group of stiff-necked Mexicans will require awfully strong arms to twist. Out of the chute will come a longhorn steer and away will go the cow hand after him on the fastest horse obtainable. Side by side the horse and the rider and steer race along, then the cowboy dives from his saddle and at the horns. For split seconds man and beast struggle in the arena dirt. Then, soon the steer with his head twisted is flat on the ground in eight or nine seconds. Maybe the beast has outsmarted the cow-hand. If so, there was no "roast beef" biting the dust.

It's a wild ride, to say the least, on the Brahma steers. And nothing sacred! However, the Brahma steer is the cross-breed of a steer and the sacred cattle of India. Riding a Brahma is one of the competitive events of the rodeo. For the occasion the fair management is having a load of Brahmas shipped from Marfa, Texas. Ed Wright, arena director, says that the lot will be extra mean and vicious. All steers will be from the range, he said, and have never appeared in front of a crowd before. As a precaution against any accident, extra heavy fencing has been placed in front of the grandstand.

All contestants in the State Fair Rodeo will be "Top hands" assures Ed Wright. Lloyd Sanders of Sonora, Cal., Leonard Ward, Indio, Cal., and Earl Thod of South Dakota, all famous cowboys have sent in their entry blanks.

For those who like their "hoss flesh" in the raw, the State Fair rodeo will supply the thrills. There'll be bucking broncos, cow hands trying to stick on the bare backs of Brahma steers, and bull-dogging a plenty!

of $1,000,000 Work is advancing rapidly and when completed will be 600 feet long and will house 200 markets, specialty shops and concessions. A force of 250 men, working in two shifts, is rushing to have the market ready for opening in time to care for the Christmas trade.

CORNELIUS—Destruction of several farm buildings, two cars and garages and grain in a threshing separator was the result of a cigarette being dropped near a tank of gasoline last Sunday. The tank exploded causing the disastrous fire.

SALEM—A special exhibit of freak fruit and vegetables will be featured at the State Fair. While the largest pumpkin, the largest egg, the longest bean, the crookedest cucumber, the largest bunch of grapes, etc., perhaps have no commercial value there is considerable interest attached. Premiums will be offered for the freakiest freak! Bring in your freaks from any part of the state.
