FARM Gossip

Strawberries Tested in Crook

PRINEVILLE—Trial plantings of eight different varieties of everbearing strawberries and one trial of the Maeshall variety of single croppers were established in Crook county recently by O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist, and G. F. Waldo, federal pomologist at Oregon State college. The everbearing varieties are to be tested out on the farm of William Peterson, and the Maeshalls on the J. F. Minson farm, both of Powell Butte. This district is said to be exceptionally free from berry insect pests and other diseases, and an effort will be made to produce clean plants.

Certified Spuds Add to Wealth

HILLSBORO—Most of the Burbank potatoes grown in Oregon trace back to the farm of H. P. Strickler of Sherwood, who was the first grower west of the Cascade mountains to have a field of Burbanks potatoes passed for certification, according to W. F. Cyrus, county agent. Production of certified seed potatoes was started in Washington county about 10 years ago by the Oregon Extension service and it is estimated that since that time the practice has added some $15,000 to the value of the potato crop in the county. This year 306 acres of potatoes, including 30 acres of Nettec Gems, grown on 51 Washington county farms, were passed for examination.

HOW TO MAKE MILK SOUPS

Milk may be used with many vegetables to make nourishing soups. Make them for your children! A milk vegetable soup is one of the best foods you can give your family for dinner or for supper. It is also one of the best ways to help your child consume his daily quart of milk. Milk is recognized by scientists as the most valuable and yet one of the cheapest foods for health.

Milk soups may be made from different vegetables such as lentils, beans, dried peas, corn, celery, onions, spinach, potatoes and tomatoes. Use only one vegetable at a time. This provides opportunity to make different kinds of soups and prevents children especially, from refusing to eat them.

Cook any vegetables selected with a few slices of onions until soft. Chop finely or rub through a strainer according to the vegetable. Add the chopped or strained vegetable and juice to the white sauce (recipe below).

Lentils, split peas or dried beans are excellent for soups. They are both nourishing and cheap. Wash such vegetables thoroughly and soak over night. Cook with onion in the water in which they have soaked. Do not add soda to the cooking water. Rub cooked vegetables through a strainer.

In making tomato soup use 1-8 teaspoonful of soda for each cup of juice. Stir the soda into the juice just before adding it to the white sauce to prevent curdling of the milk. Serve at once.

WHITE SAUCE

2 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat
1 tablespoonful of flour for each cup of milk and vegetable juice used
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
(All measures are level)
Use a double boiler for making white sauce. Melt the fat, add flour, and stir until well mixed. Gradually add the milk, stirring until smooth and slightly thick. Add the chopped or strained vegetable and juice to the thickened milk. The amount of vegetable necessary varies with the kind and flavor—usually 1 cup of vegetable for each 2 cups of milk. If the soup is too thick after the vegetable is added, milk or vegetable juice can be used to make it the desired consistency. Season to taste with salt and butter.
