"LINDY" HAS RIGHT TO PROTEST

The statement of American principles set forth in Colonel Lindbergh's telegram to the President is worthy of careful consideration of every American citizen. The attempt of Postmaster Farley, as the Chief Democratic Spokesman, to speak the Colonel for his fearless statement, will not be taken seriously by the American people who know that Lindbergh never was a publicity seeker.

The right of public protest is constitutional, and if our form of government is to be maintained, that right must be preserved. Millions of real Americans, regardless of party, will come to the defense of Colonel Lindbergh and this paper wishes to commend a real American for again demonstrating to the country his fearlessness.

MONEY IN THE AIR

One hundred years ago, Daniel Webster, speaking in the Senate, said: "Gold and silver is the money of the constitution; the constitutional standard of value which is established and cannot be overturned; to overturn it would shake the whole system."

The other day Senator Borah said: "This is a profound truth. We ought to bend every energy and utilize all the power available to restore the money of the constitution."

A legion of business men, public officials and economists of all schools of thought, will say amen to that. The strength of the silver movement was shown recently when a bill to relate its value to gold lost by the slimmest possible margin in the Senate—a year ago a similar bill would have been deluged under a wave of Nays. Figuratively speaking, our money is up in the air—and it may be that only gold and silver can bring it to earth again.

TWO PHASES OF TAXATION

There are two ways in which taxation may become confiscation:

First, by increasing public debt and expenditures to point where businesses and individuals are unable to pay—to where all profits vanish into hands of tax collectors.

Second, by lowering ability of industry to pay, through governmental policies which stand in the path of expansion, development and the attraction of private capital.

Government—federal, state, county, municipal—is now guilty on both counts.

By the end of the fiscal year the federal debt will have broken all records. Most local governments are in the same position as the federal.

That is the tax situation so far as mounting costs are concerned. From the standpoint of penalizing business, the vista is little better.

Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent in putting government into competition with private industry—industry that pays taxes to maintain government, thus relieving the individual taxpayer of the great tax load he would otherwise have to carry.

Heavy property taxes, at a time when the national income is about 50 per cent under the 1929 peak, have been the direct cause of thousands of home and mortgage foreclosures. States, counties and cities have taken title to property which is now idle and produces no further tax revenue. The people who once owned it simply could not pay.

Recovery plans are threatened with failure because of climbing taxation, with inevitable discouragement of investment and employment unless there is tax relief.

A few weeks ago CWA graft charges appeared in the headlines. The President himself was getting hundreds of letters a day complaining of sharp practices. Job selling, political preference, false expense accounts, padded payrolls—these were the bones of contention. The government moved fast. Employees guilty of even suspicious actions were dismissed, some were arrested. The Attorney General went to work investigating other cases. Administrator Hopkins, worried and disconcerted sent out Army engineers to check up on CWA work. When one was sent to Cook County, Illinois, which contains the city of Chicago, the entire Illinois CWA commission resigned.

At the same time, a nation-wide move got underway to keep the CWA in existence—it was due to pass away shortly. Mr. Roosevelt, however, doesn't want it as a permanent part of his organization, announced that he would adopt a modified course. Instead of bringing its activities to an end at once, it will be allowed to live until May 1. On February 15, CWA workers in the South will be discharged at the rate of 500,000 a week and the dismissal movement will have gained momentum.

The country has been hearing talk of a business boom for so long now that it is inclined to be skeptical as to whether or not such an animal exists. According to the business and financial periodicals, and the various reports of fact gathering organizations, it does. It isn't a very big animal yet, but it can be seen, felt and heard.

ANECDOTES ABOUT LINCOLN

A student body meeting was held Tuesday, February 13, in observance of Lincoln's birthday, although it was not held the day before. President Kenneth Taylor spoke briefly concerning the character of Abraham Lincoln. Delbert Burke, a member of Mr. Webb's public speaking class, delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

C. E. Barker, of Aloha, spoke about Abraham Lincoln's life about incidents that are not written in books. Mr. Barker, a native of Illinois, spoke in particular about the great emancipator's youth in New Salem of that state. He related humorous stories, told him by friends who had known Lincoln from his youth until his death.

One particular incident interested the students. It resulted from Lincoln's fondness for children. While visiting Colonel Bidell in New York, Lincoln developed a great friendship with Colonel Bidell's small daughter Grace. When Lincoln returned to the White House, he received a letter from Grace. She requested Lincoln to tell her of his daughter, since she heard him speak so much of his boys.

In telling him that many of his friends thought he was a homely man she asked Lincoln to grow a beard which would make his face more distinguished looking. It is remarkable, that during the strife of the Civil War Lincoln had time to answer his little friend's letter, but he did, replying that he regretted having no daughters.

It is known that some time later Lincoln grew his famous beard. Both of the letters have been preserved.

There was also general discussion concerning the purchase of shrubs to beautify the grounds near the tennis court. Many of the students will donate shrubs.

How Farmers May Borrow

Many farmers are not aware that in addition to being able to borrow from the land banks a sum equal to 50 per cent of the appraised value of their land, and 20 per cent of the insurable value of the improvements they can borrow direct from the Land Bank Commissioner on a second mortgage a sum equal to about 50 per cent of that secured from the land bank.

FEDERAL AID EXPECTED FOR U. OF O. STUDENTS

Eugene, Feb. 16—Federal relief funds are expected to be made available to employ needy students at higher educational institutions in Oregon, it was announced here by W. J. Kerr, chancellor of higher education, who has received wires from both Senator Charles L. McNary and Senator Frederick Steiwer stating that there is reasonable assurance that the plan would be put into effect.

Although official details of the proposal have not been received, it is understood that from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 of federal relief funds will be apportioned to the various states. Part of the funds it is understood will be used to employ needy students already at the institutions, and part to give employment to those not now enrolled.

The plan is said to call for a maximum of 30 hours of employment a week at about 30 cents an hour. Just what Oregon's allotment will be is not known.

First information of the plan as proposed by the federal bureau of education was received in a wire from William A. Schoenfeld, dean of agriculture at Oregon State College, who was in Washington on experiment station and other agricultural business for Oregon. While there he also worked on the relief project for needy students.

Walnut Grows Large Roots

DALLAS—A six-year-old walnut tree can have a root more than 50 feet long. Polk county walnut and filbert growers are certain of this, because they have seen such a root dug up by Mr. Bates of the Salem district which was 48 feet long and had been broken off several feet from the end. This root was exhibited at two nut growers' meetings during the past month, one attended by 36 growers and the other by 66. It effectively demonstrates the need for a large distance between walnuts as well as other trees, according to County Agent J. R. Beck.
