

DAIRY PLAN SHELVED BY THE NATIONAL AAA OFFICIALS IN SESSION

Divided sentiment in the dairy industry nationally has caused the administration to abandon its plan of putting into effect a benefit payment plan of production control, extension officials at Oregon State college have been notified. The decision followed study of the reports from the 15 regional dairy conferences held throughout the country.

Abandonment of the proposed plan for the present at least is in line with the fixed policy of the AAA not to attempt adjustment programs without the expressed support of a substantial majority of the industry, the announcement sets out.

A limited program of diseased cattle reduction and relief purchases financed by funds made available by congress may be carried out. The present policy of milk marketing agreements will also be continued, but no general control plan will be instituted until the industry as a whole is more nearly agreed on such a program.

The Pacific Northwest gave strong support to the proposed adjustment plan and may petition that certain portions of it be made effective in this territory, according to Dean Wm. A. Schoenfeld of O. S. C., who presided as chairman at the Portland regional meeting.

On hearing of the decision of the Washington officials, Dean Schoenfeld said it is a matter of great regret that other areas did not see fit to collaborate. It is the belief of leaders here that certain phases of the plan applied locally in the Pacific northwest would be preferable to leaving the situation drift, although the opinion is held here that the entire plan should be put into effect nationally.

While the Oregon, Washington and Idaho dairymen were strong in their support of the program with minor modifications, reports from many other regional meetings show that the dairy industry is sharply divided over the proposed plan. Organized opposition was encountered in many of the regional meetings where both the private and cooperative distributors opposed proposals for cutting down sales, preferring some plan of government encouraged sales promotion.

This was substantially the position taken at the California meeting, reports W. A. Lloyd, in charge of extension work in the western states, who was with the federal party at Berkeley. The delegates from Nevada, though few in number, supported the proposed AAA plan, he said.

Beaverton Grange Holds Regular Monthly Session

Beaverton Grange No. 324 held the regular monthly session Saturday, April 24, Master, Mamie Downing presided at the meeting. During the business session the first degree of the initiatory work was practiced. State officers for the ensuing year were balloted on. After the pot-luck lunch, Alice Funston, lecturer, presented a program relative to the Grange and its history. E. A. Brown of Evening Star Grange gave an interesting talk on "The Seven Founders of the Grange." John T. Whatley spoke briefly on a proposed legislative bill. The roll call was responded to with selections of poetry and prose.

The pioneer mother will be featured at the lecture hour of the next meeting, May 12.

DEPOSITORS NOT SIGNING WAIVER MUST BE PAID IN FULL

Depositors in the Coolidge & McClaine bank at Silverton who refused to sign a waiver under the reorganization program, are entitled to payment of their deposits in full, Attorney-General Van Winkle held in an opinion recently. Reorganization of this bank, Van Winkle said, is conditional upon its being consented to by depositors, other than public funds, owning 90 per cent of the restricted deposit liabilities of the institution. Provision also is made for paying off in full the unwaived and unreleased part of the liabilities of the bank immediately upon the taking effect of the reorganization plan. In all other respects, the provisions of the plan are made applicable only to those depositors who consent thereto and who waive their rights.

Lower Grades of Aloha- Huber School to Present Operettas Monday Eve

The children of the first four grades will present three operettas at the Aloha Grange hall the evening of April thirtieth beginning promptly at eight o'clock. The admission will be ten cents so it is hoped that everybody in the community will see this entertainment. There will be over one hundred children in costume and all are taking prominent parts.

The first grade's operetta is entitled "Three Little Pigs" and it will be interesting to see how these little pigs leave their large family of brothers and sisters and go out into the world to build three little houses for themselves.

The second grade and part of the third have chosen for their operetta, "The Quest of the Pink Parasol". The children are costumed as poppies, fairies and elves and the story deals with a poppy who wishes to exchange places with a little maiden.

The third and fourth graders will give a Japanese play entitled "O-Cho-San or The Stolen Jade" which is very colorful with its setting of Japanese booths, lanterns and cherry blossoms.

Remember the date, come and bring all your friends.

The eighth grade of the Aloha-Huber school presented their class play "Raspberry Red" Friday evening, April 13, before a good sized audience. The success of the production is an inducement for the future dramatic work.

The local baseball teams played return games with Reedville Wednesday at the previous meeting both games were taken by Aloha-Huber.

Commencement exercises will be held Wednesday, May 16.

Track contestants are completing trials in preparation for the preliminary county meet Saturday at Hillsboro. The final meet will be held at Hillsboro on May 5th.

The upper grades are reviewing yearly work prior to the county tests which will be given May 1 and 2.

Liquor Traffic Rapped At C. E. Convention

Nearly 1800 delegates attended the Golden Jubilee convention of the Oregon Christian Endeavor union which closed Sunday evening at Salem. Veldon Diment of Newberg, senior at Pacific college, was elected president at the Sunday afternoon session. He will succeed Miss Helen McClay of Oregon City.

Among officers elected and installed were Viola Ogden, Portland, secretary; William Maurer, Portland, treasurer; Esther Strom, Tigard, financial secretary.

Dr. Daniel A. Poing of New York city, president of the World's C. E. union, was the principal speaker on Saturday and Sunday. Sunday night he installed the newly elected officers. Resolutions, presented by a committee, and adopted by the convention, vigorously rapped the liquor traffic; purveyors of debasing literature and pictures; munition makers; "the forces of greed and selfishness, of prejudice and ignorance that slander and exploits the youth of the world;" the jingo journalists and "Demagogues of every nation" who were willing to plunge their countries into "the jaws of the hell called war."

The awards for the various departmental contests were made on Saturday afternoon. The young people's oratorical contest was won by Mary Thompson, representing Portland unions. Lawrence Burns of Myrtle union was second and Marion Hesselman of Yamhill union. The inter-mediate dramatization award was won by the Blanchard United Brethren society of Portland. In the publicity department poster contest, first prize was given Kenneth Hoiler of Salem; second, Warner Jackson of Salem and third, Nina Nosler of Coquille. The best scrapbook was compiled by M. E. Huffman of LaGrande in Grande Ronde union; second by Howard Johns of Portland union and third by Gretchen Lee of Carlton, Yamhill union.

The historical exhibit room featured photographs of previous conventions, prominent endeavorers of Oregon C. E. history, old copies of the Oregon Endeavor Bulletin. Of interest was a picture of the old Forest Grove Congregational church where Oregon's first society was formed by the Rev. H. S. Wills, the "whistling pastor" and S. T. Walker, Sunday School Superintendent in May 1884.

The Dalles was selected as site for the 1935 convention by the delegates.

County Agent Cyrus Advises on Insect Pests and Their Control

By WM. F. CYRUS, County Agent

Insect pests can usually more effectively be controlled by starting the use of control measures early rather than late. Too frequently, gardeners, berry growers and others state they believe they will wait and see how numerous certain insects are going to be before they go to the trouble of applying control measures. In the case of a good many of our pests, the waiting might as well continue indefinitely for once the insects are present in large numbers control measures will not be effective.

In combating insects in gardens, berries, orchards, or flowers, it is well to bear in mind that there are two general types of "bugs". One is the chewing or biting kind which eats the foliage or some part of the plant. Examples of this type are the slugs, flea beetles, cabbage worm, codling moth, asparagus beetle and many others. The other group are the sucking insects. They do not eat the plant but suck out the sap or juice. The most common examples of this type are the aphid and spittle bug.

Control of these types differ in that the first named kind are killed by using stomach poison sprays. In using this part of the plant the pest feeds on is given a covering of some poison like arsenate of lead, calcium arsenate or paris green. Sucking insects are controlled only by use of contact poisons. In these cases the spray must actually hit the insect. The most common contact poison used is nicotine, commonly sold as "Blackleaf 40." Applications of spray material should not be made unless the insect pests are present but when they make their appearance the effort toward control should begin immediately.

The recent warm and rather dry weather apparently improved the aphid situation. Some attempts to control the aphids with a two per cent dust were made without success. From experience here and in other localities it would seem that probably a dust carrying approximately 10 per cent nicotine is necessary. In fields of vetch, control is impossible and impractical. Nicotine may be used either as a dust or added to water and put on as a spray. Lead and calcium arsenate may also be used in the garden as a dust or spray. For worms in apples or pears the use of a spray is generally preferable and more effective.

Last year quite a portion of the potato crop was injured more or less by flea beetles. Most of the failures to control this was due to waiting too long. In a patch of some size, if the several outside rows are dusted all around the patch just as soon as the first beetles are found, the damage will usually not be serious. Nearly any kind of dust will be of some benefit. Hydrated lime, landplaster or ashes all help. A combination of hydrated lime and calcium arsenate has proven good.

Details regarding control of certain insects may be obtained at the county agent office.

Missionary Society Plan Birthday Dinner in May

The Bethel Congregational Ladies Missionary Auxiliary met last Thursday with about twenty in attendance. The devotional period was led by Miss Genevieve Carter. The closing chapter of the Home Missionary study book was given by Mrs. M. C. McKercher and Mrs. W. H. Boswell. After a short business meeting, a pot-luck luncheon was served. The afternoon was spent in sewing garments for the needy. The ladies are to sponsor a birthday dinner in May. Those on the committee are: Mrs. E. G. Webb and Miss Genevieve Carter joint chairmen, Mrs. W. H. Boswell, Mrs. Floyd Teft, Mrs. L. R. Dean, Mrs. R. B. Denney and Mrs. M. C. McKercher.

40 TYPING TEAMS ENTERED IN O. S. C. CONTEST APRIL 28

About 40 Oregon high schools represented by some 150 students will have teams entered in the 12th annual high school typing and shorthand transcription contest to be held by the secretarial science department at Oregon State college Saturday, April 28. The typists will be on the campus the same week end as the Future Farmers of America representing the Smith-Hughes agricultural instruction in the state.

The typing contest this year has been changed unilaterally to afford more competition in handling such work as is encountered in modern business, announces H. T. Vance, head of the department. Instead of being a race merely for speed and accuracy, the contest will consist of exercises in punctuation, spacing and the general setup of a business letter.

Tigard high school won the typing contest last year and Corvallis high the shorthand transcription contest.

GRANGE PROPOSES TAX EXEMPTION ON FORTY ACRE FARMS

Resolutions took up most of the afternoon at the Washington County Pomona Grange meeting Wednesday at Green Mountain grange in Buxton. Considerable discussion centered on a resolution calling for a "Shelter Exemption Tax" which would exempt any domicile and 40 acres of land including farm and city property from property tax, with the difference being taken up by a tax on income in the higher brackets. It was referred back to the committee for further amending.

Washington county will be formed into a utility district to obtain power from Bonneville dam if action taken on a resolution to do this is started. Aloha Grange presented a petition to have the bulletin printed by OSC extension service to be put in simpler language so that anyone can understand it. Pomona went on record as favoring cooperation with the Federal Flood Control of the Tualatin river. They approved the stand of the State Milk Control Board, Grange favored that representatives to Congress be allowed to hire not more than one member of his family or related.

The grange will have its annual picnic, so the Pomona decided. Faye Mills was elected as alternate to State Grange. Candidates were given a chance to express themselves for a few minutes in the afternoon session with Sam B. Lawrence, candidate for state senator, H. T. Botts, Tillamook, candidate for Circuit Judge, H. R. Findley, candidate for representative and Loyal Graham, candidate for Circuit Judge taking the floor.

Ray Gill, state grange master, spoke on the state grange session to be held in Roseburg and also on the state banking bill which petitions are being circulated. He urged members to sign and get outsiders to do so. The Sales Tax came in for a little discussion by Mr. Gill.

The evening session was taken up with the degree work in Pomona. Over 125 were present for the Pomona meeting at which Faye Mills presided in the absence of Geo. Woodward, master.

Automotive News Endorses Representative Johnson

The Automotive News of the Pacific Northwest representing the interests of the automobile dealers requested Washington County Tradesmen to support Representative J. O. Johnson for reelection because of his active interest in behalf of the fight against the gasoline monopoly and control of prices in the state of Oregon. The article in the April issue of the Automotive News is as follows:

"Representative J. O. Johnson, author of House Bill No. 310 which provides that it shall be unlawful to engage in the business of selling gasoline both at wholesale and retail, has filed his declaration for reelection as representative from Washington County, declaring that he will continue his fight in behalf of the independent gasoline dealers. In his platform he urges that the sale of gasoline be declared a public utility and subject to price regulation. He will fight for lower gasoline prices, low gasoline tax and lower license fees for private carriers.

"Representative Johnson was also co-author of House Bill No. 309 which defined and prohibited unfair competition in the selling of gasoline."

County 4-H Club Meeting on Groner Farm Saturday

Handling, culling, and judging sheep will be the subject of a county-wide 4-H livestock club meeting to be held on the Groner farm near the Scholls Ferry bridge, Saturday, April 28, at 1:30 p. m. Harry Lindgren, extension livestock specialist, will come from Corvallis to conduct the meeting. Lindgren will go over a flock of about 200 ewes and lambs and separate the better ewes. 4-H club members will get valuable practice in the judging of sheep.
