HOLD IT, PLEASE!

"With the greatest ease," says Robert "Tiny" Boeckel, General Petroleum service station salesman at 33rd and Killingsworth avenues, Portland, and up comes the Austin. E. A. Thompson applies the Mobil lubricant to a squeaky spring and the job is done. Boeckel doesn't toss automobiles around this way except on request and wishes General Petroleum customers to understand that he draws the line on elevating Packards and Cadillacs in this unorthodox manner. Even a six foot five inch, 250 pound fellow has to use some discretion.
