Mild Prosperity

Mild prosperity is headed this way, a recent economic survey indicates. It is on the basis of expected increases in production?

Partly. Though the heavy industries are still groaning for some extra-seasonal benefits this fall. Corporate earnings are expected to be greater than for any year since 1931.

But strangely enough, the prediction of better times is being made on the personal spending habits of the American people.

The people are buying little luxuries which haven't been indulged in since the boom days.

There is the steady increase in the sale of automobiles. These aren't essential luxuries, but a new car where an old one might do is a little indulgence which shows the direction the wind is blowing.

He Made it Possible

Surprise is registered by our Mr. William C. Bullitt, ambassador to Soviet Russia, over speeches about the United States at the Third international, now under way in Moscow.

We think the gentleman mistaken in his view that the speeches, aimed, of course, to foment trouble in the United States, as elsewhere throughout the world, are inconsistent with the Soviet treaty with our country. Technically they may be, but it has never been acted anywhere that the Soviet agitators permit a little thing like that to interfere with their plan eventually to set up dictatorships in every country on the globe.

Our Mr. Bullitt, dispatches say, is contemplating a protest against the speeches which have so upset him. If he does so, it is a cinch that a most polite "regret" will be his net return. And meanwhile the Soviet internationale will continue its burrowing process. By recognizing Russia, we have made it easy for its agents to operate here.—News-Telegram.

Who Should be Punished?

Some congressmen are talking about impeaching the president for violating the constitution. Wouldn't a congressman who voted for the president's program look swell voting for the impeachment of the president? And worse than that. How would congressmen look who went out in 1934 and were reelected on the slogan that they had supported the president, in violating the constitution, voting for impeachment? But innocent congressmen should have some protection against a president who leads them into temptation and trouble and so they talk about the proper punishment for him.—Sheridan Sun.

Good news about women's garb. It's going to be more colorful. According to predictions of the Drygoods association, of every 100 women buying dresses in the fall: 25 will buy green, 25 brown, 15 rust, 15 black, 8 purple, 7 wine and 5 blue. Last year they were mostly brown and black.

Robbing Peter to Pay Paul

The Agricultural Adjustment Act was adopted with the ostensive purpose of limiting production so that the farmer might benefit by increased prices. This act, sponsored by Secretary Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture, coupled with the trade agreements made with other nations by Secretary Hull of the State Department, has made the United States a dumping ground for the surplus products of other nations.

Local Industries . . . ARE THE BALANCE WHEELS WHICH SERVE TO HOLD PRICES WITHIN BOUNDS

It is a noticeable fact that in localities where there is no locally manufactured product to hold a commodity down in price, those shipping in from outside points take advantage of the situation and almost always boost the price.

It, therefore, is only good business on your part to patronize your local industries. Especially when the quality is equal and your local people will meet any temporarily lowered price by an outside concern.

times more than our imports we exported 359,000,000 bushels of wheat. During the last eleven months of the New Deal we exported only 20,000,337 bushels of wheat and imported 23,603,000 bushels. In the meantime we are paying farmers for plowing up or not planting crops, through processing taxes levied against the consumer. In the last five months we have exported 96,031 bushels of corn and imported 11,500,000 bushels.

From a recent report of George N. Peek, head of the Import-Export Bank, it is learned that Secretary Hull has completed 290 trade agreements with foreign countries that discriminate against the United States. In other words, we have been making a good fellow of Uncle Sam by causing foreign discrimination against our own farmers and workmen. The Peek report shows that with the exception of eleven minor nations every country with which Secretary Hull has dealt is discriminating against products of the United States. France has 50 agreements that exclude our products, Germany had 57, Greece 23, Great Britain 29, Italy 21 and Canada eight.

The New Deal favors the farmer or the laborer with vote-catching legislation and then when his back is turned kicks him in the seat of his overalls with agreements that permit imports of competitive products, and that prohibit exportation of our own commodities.—Oregon Common Sense.

Discouraging to U. S. Labor

Of all the haphazard handling of relief funds by Washington, perhaps none is more thoughtless than the recent FWA announcement that all borrowers of funds for public works must purchase their products in foreign countries if the price is 15 per cent less.

In other words, if Japan, Czechoslovakia, or Russia, with labor often earning less for a day's work than American workers get in an hour, can produce materials cheaply enough, the Government will use taxpayers money to purchase these foreign imports.

There are but two results that can come from such a policy: either wage scales in this country must be broken down in order to meet this competition, or else public works money taken from the taxpayers will be sent abroad to keep foreign factories operating while American plants remain idle.

No one can believe that the Administration is seeking to lower American wages. The average wage, for instance, is 225 per cent above the average abroad and last year 316,661 tons were imported with an estimated loss of seven and a half million man hours to American workers.

Neither can it be believed that there is a deliberate policy of taking money appropriated by Congress to relieve distress in this country and sending it abroad, while industry seeks to increase employment.

The only answer is that there was some more muddle-headed, but costly, thinking by a youthful bureaucrat who didn't bother to look beyond the end of his nose to see the effect on American workers.

The decision of President Roosevelt to open his campaign for re-election immediately after the session of Congress closes has few, if any, parallels in this country. Perhaps nothing is more indicative of the change in atmosphere which the Democratic National Committee has sensed. With the President going to the country almost a year ahead of conventions, there are accumulating evidences that the next campaign will be a hum-dinger.

Start any man tirading and he will soon be declaring he is the only candid honest man willing and able to look the facts in the face, and propose an intelligent remedy for an important question.

Much of human misery, poverty, is suffered by those who, for some strange reason, will not avoid it.

We still insist on traveling the wrong road, altho a bell is ringing every foot of the way to point out the right road.

is a little different than is being used on most of the other projects in this county due to the difference in the supply of water and the topography of the land.

Stabilization Essential to Trade Revival

This study is a concrete reason why I favor low tariffs.—Government statisticians examined two groups of thirty-six typical industries in 1929—one highly protected and the other without tariff aid. Average wages were found to be fifty per cent higher in the unprotected group than in the former. In addition, consumers were actually injured by the tariff because of the high prices which they were forced to pay for products of the protected group.

Furthermore, the currency problem is still as unsettled as ever. Three or four European countries cling desperately to the gold standard even though sooner or later devaluation on their part will probably be a necessity. This gold bloc, for the past two years, has been the center of the world's monetary disturbance. Hence, devaluation now, might set the stage for international currency stabilization in the near future. The latter, however, without a general lifting of trade barriers, could be but a temporary aid. Some day, no one can say when, a great wave of popular discontent against the fettering of world commerce will sweep the world. Security comes only through helping "the other fellow" and raising him to our standards. Remember nations can prosper again only as the pendulum swings back. They must turn from the present frenzied policy to attain economic independence. They must move towards a freer intercourse among nations of humans, goods, and services!

Business, as estimated by the Babson chart, is now 19 per cent below normal, but 6 per cent above a year ago.

County Farmers Invited to Make Valley Tour

Washington county farmers interested in irrigation will be interested in the Willamette valley irrigation tour which will be held Wednesday and Thursday, August 21 and 22 beginning in the vicinity of Eugene on the 21st and concluding in Washington county on the 22nd.

In the Eugene region, truck and fruit crops will feature irrigation work that will be seen. Various other projects will be viewed there and thru the Willamette valley. The tour will terminate at the John Thornburgh and Robert Warrens' farms on Gale Creek.

The caravan will arrive at the Thornburgh place at noon Thursday, the 22nd, where dinner will be served by the Gales Creek Women's club at a cost of 50c per plate. Those intending to be present at this dinner should make reservations with Mr. Thornburgh or at the county agent's office.

On Thornburgh's place 160 some acres will be seen that is planted to Ladino clover, red clover and alfalfa, with the ladino clover comprising the greater part of the acreage. On Robert Warren's place there has been, in the course of the present season, approximately 150 acres of irrigation with ladino clover, common white clover, potatoes and narcissus bulbs comprising the crops which received water applications. The method of applying the water on the Warrens' place

New Exhibit Added in Ford Building

A new unit has been added to the Industrialized Farm Exhibit in the Ford Exposition Building at San Diego. It is a one-tenth scale working model of a soy bean oil extractor and is used to demonstrate the methods employed in the Ford Motor Company's Plant at Dearborn, Mich., in removing the oil from soy beans preparatory to their use as a plastic material.

Soy beans provide the basic material from which are made gear shift lever balls, electrical switch handles, window frame mouldings, horn buttons, distributor housings and many other parts of the Ford V-8. The oil is extracted by a solvent which is distilled to free the oil. The flakes are dried after the oil has been extracted and are then mixed with coloring matter and other materials before they are compressed.

Soy beans are believed to be an ideal plastic substance because they can be grown in almost any climate with little water and in sour soil. They

Why not own an EIGHT?

with the V-Type eight, Ford gives you a car as economical as a four

FROM the driver's point of view, 8 cylinders make the ideal engine for a car. They give responsiveness, smoothness, quietness. And in the Ford V-8 engine, you get this performance at 4-cylinder cost. The Ford V-8 you buy today costs less to own than any car Ford ever built! Its initial cost is at rock-bottom, and includes many "extras," such as safety glass all around, big 6.00 x 16-inch air-halloon tires, built-in luggage space.

Operating costs have also been pared this year—in sparing use of gas and oil, and in improvements which cut down brake, clutch, and tire wear.

Drive this Ford V-8. There's a Ford dealer near you—see him today. Let a Ford V-8 tell you what it has already told to a record number of eager buyers the country over.
