Film Certain of 1935 'Ten Best' Rating

When the First National picture "Black Fury" opens at the Ritz Theatre on Sunday for a 4-day run, local audiences will witness a production that is heralded by competent critics as sure to be one of the ten great pictures of 1935 and one which will make Paul Muni a leading contender for the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences this year.

Tense drama, tempered with humor, romance and astounding spectacles featured this picture which has one of the largest casts ever assembled for a single production.

Muni's one man strike, in which he barricades himself in the mine after blowing up all but one of the entrances with dynamite stolen from the company's store of explosives, and his reconciliation with his sweetheart who had deserted him for the arms of a treacherous policeman, are two of the dramatic and thrilling episodes that characterize this tremendous production.

Karen Morley has the leading feminine role. William Gargan portrays the part of her seducer. The production was directed by Michael Curtiz from the story "Jan Volkanik" by Judge M. A. Musmanno and the play "Bohunk" by Harry R. Irving.

Work is being pushed towards completion to effect utmost
