Babson
Says--

What About Interest Rates?

Babson Says Current Low Rates Not Permanent
Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 8—Average interest rates are at the lowest level in history. For the past three years there has been a steady hammering on bond yields, mortgage rates, commercial paper returns, and savings deposits payments. This decline has seriously affected people in all walks of life. Those owning small bank accounts and small insurance policies as well as the wealthy investors and institutions, who depend entirely on their income, have suffered.

Caught Between Two Fires
Since the depression low in March, 1933, practically all barometers of business have registered exceptional improvement. For instance, industrial production has risen fifty-five per cent, factory payrolls ninety-two per cent, corporation profits eighty-five per cent, and farm income sixty-two per cent. As a matter of fact, nearly every U. S. and Canadian citizen in active business is better off today than he was three years ago. There nearly all individuals who depend upon income from their investments for their living have been caught between the upper and nether mill stones.

This statement may surprise readers who know that both bond and stock prices have made tremendous advances from their low. In fact stock prices are roughly 200 per cent above the dark days of March, 1933, while prices of bonds have recovered fifty per cent on the average. Why, then, are many who depend upon invested income in a worse predicament today than three years ago? There are two reasons. First, their income has been drastically curtailed because of the lower rate of return on investments and bank deposits. Second, the rise in the cost of living and the increase in taxation have boosted their expenses sharply.

Keys of Hope for Bankers "Why have interest rates been pushed so low?" The major reason is the wholesale and steady contraction of credit during the past six years.
Commercial loans only recently were at the lowest level in years; new corporate financing has been practically at a standstill since 1931; while the mortgage market has been completely paralyzed. Boded down into plain language, there has been a huge piling-up of cash money, seeking investment and no place to put it to work.
Money is subject to the Law of Supply and Demand just as is any other commodity. Therefore, its price (interest rate) has dropped sharply because the supply (funds available to loan) has far outweighed demand (business loans and new security offerings.)

There are now indications that the worst of this chiseling period is passing. As I have said before, manufacturing is picking up; earnings are increasing; and business men are once again making money. The time for expanding and revamping is at hand.
This trend is already reflected in the monthly volume of new securities offerings. Last month the total was $45,000,000 compared with only $7, 000,000 a year ago. The total for the first nine months of this year was $230,000,000 against $134,000,000 in the same period of 1934. In addition, banks once again are seeking to loan their money to good business men.

With business profits rising the latter cannot much longer resist the temptations of today's attractive money rates.

Mortgage Rates Lower
Mortgage demand is also better.
One of the outstanding events of 1935 has been the revival in the building industry—roughly 100 per cent better than it was in 1934. Bankers in some sections have come to the conclusion that a six per cent mortgage is out of date and are actually offering real estate money at five per cent rates. People feeling the pinch of rising rents are accepting these loans thus aiding the present building revival. Hence, the demand for money is growing along all fronts.
It is this trend which makes me believe that interest rates are now forming a U-bottom and in time they should gradually increase.

From the supply angle, there is also good reason to feel more cheerful about interest rates. During the poor business years, concern could not use their surplus funds profitably in business. They were forced to put their money into short-term governments, into bank deposits, and into commercial paper, thus overburdening the market. Now, with business expanding and profits increasing, these funds should go back into business channels. Similarly, individuals are withdrawing liquid funds on deposit for building and renovating purposes. Automatically, therefore, the supply of money for short-term investment will be reduced and sooner or later short-term money rates are bound to turn the corner.

Deposit Rates on Bottom?
Now what about the trend of interest rates on bank deposits? Banks, like all other big investors, such as insurance companies and endowed institutions, make money through three major sources: corporation bonds, government bonds, and real estate mortgages. Yields from high-grade corporation issues (which are the only type savings banks can buy) are scraping bottom at the present time.
If bond yields—particularly on refunding operations—are pushed any lower, investors will turn to other sources of income, thus providing a brake on high-grade bond prices. The same comments apply to government and municipal bonds.

As far as earnings on real estate go, there is still strong pressure to refinance outstanding mortgages at a lower rate. However, I think that the traditional six per cent mortgage will not be scaled down much lower than five per cent on the average and possibly four and one-half per cent in special cases. Increased profits coming from the shift of some loans from the one per cent short-term to the five per cent mortgage market will offset lower earnings on existing real estate loans. Hence, the important message I have for disheartened de-positors and investors is: EARN-INGS OF BANKS AND OTHER IN-VESTMENT INSTITUTIONS AND INVESTORS WILL, IN TIME, STAB-ILIZE. CURRENT ABNORMAL-LY LOW RATES WILL NOT RE-MAIN PERMANENTLY.

Business, as registered by the Bab-sonchart, is now 17 per cent above a year ago and only 19 per cent below normal.
