Washington
Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Another momentous decision is shaping up in Washington which may go a long way toward determining it, and how soon, the depression will be over.

It revolves around problems of the so-called "heavy" industries, which are a potent factor in establishing the extent of the nation's prosperity.

Since 1930, many attempts have been made to stimulate these industries. At the same time, though, uncertainty about the legislative future, federal expenditures, high taxes, government competition, and increasing costs, the industrialists say, have nullified such efforts.

The Washington big-wigs now are approaching a choice between two methods of action concerning the basic "heavy" industry—construction.
One method would be a $1,000,000,000 federal expenditure on housing, which actually would amount to further government competition and bring higher taxes. The other would seek to stimulate the use of private capital, now available in satisfactory quantities, for construction through privately financed channels.

Reports gaining strength daily are that the latter method finally will be approved by the administration and Congress.

—O—O—O—

In the capitol corridors and offices the importance of the decision is being emphasized. Out of the total of jobs, nearly one-third—more than 2,500,000—normally would be at work in the construction industry. But they are still out of jobs despite the billions that have been spent on public works. Construction as a whole is only about 23 per cent higher than last year, when it sank to a new low; private construction is less than 3 per cent higher.

Putting these 2,500,000 to work on construction means much more than just providing 2,500,000 jobs. It means stimulating other basic industries which manufacture or process the materials which are used in construction; it means more railroad traffic. In brief, it means the indirect reemployment of perhaps 2,500-000 more workers with a corresponding jump in national income and purchasing power.

—O—O—O—

The plan to spend $1,000,000,000 on federal housing projects is backed jointly by Senator Wagner of New York and Secretary Ickes. Although many others in the administration express frank dissatisfaction with the number of jobs created by artificial pump priming endeavors, these two still advocate the same plan.

Among those who oppose the Ickes-Wagner scheme is Peter Grimm, a former president of the New York real estate board who now works for the Treasury. Those who approve his ideas say they are sound and that as a man who is familiar with real estate's problems through practical experience he knows whereof he speaks.

Among other things, Grimm wants to push establishment of the National Mortgage associations made possible under the Federal Housing Act.
Already, conversations have been had with New York financiers on the subject. Briefly, a National Mortgage association with $2,000,000 in capital could issue $4,000,000 in debentures and acquire mortgages from various lending institutions which in turn could finance more mortgages.

The chief difficulty with that plan

ARE WE

IN THE RED?

SOME say yes, some say no—Economically speaking, fashion promoters unanimously agree it's a season of reds. Walk down the avenue and see how many red coats you can count.

Why not make your table fashionably red, and incidentally brighten up the red cheeks in your family, by serving lots of tomatoes this winter?

Gay and Good

Stewed Tomatoes and Mushrooms: Drain the liquor from one 4-ounce can of mushrooms and saute the mushrooms gently in one tablespoon butter for three minutes. Add the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes, salt and paprika to taste, one bay leaf and one slice of onion. Stew gently for ten minutes. Remove the bay leaf and onion and serve with a triangle of toast on top of each serving. This serves six persons.

Scalloped Tomatoes and Pecans: Mix the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes with three-fourths teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar and a few grains of pepper.
Then put alternate layers of tomatoes, chopped pecans (using one-half cup of nuts in all) and grated cheese into a buttered baking dish. Cover the top with crumbs and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for twenty-five minutes. This serves six persons.

Tomato Consommé: Mix the contents of one No. 2 can of tomato juice with two 10-ounce cans of consommé. Bring to boil ing. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Heat one-third cup of heavy cream. Pour the first mixture into the hot cream and serve at once, with croutons if desired.
This serves six persons.
