Business in the Trenches

In the face of continued bombardment with high explosive legislative shells, along with the political poisonings of exaggeration, misstatement, and half-truths, is it any wonder that business is not expanding, investing money, and employing labor in a normal manner?

"Brain Trust vs Brain Trust"

Political Note: It may be "Brain vs brain trust" in the coming election.

The President's brain trust is well known, though it has been soft-pedaled of late, and many of its formerly famous members are definitely "out."

Growing famous is the Republican "brain trust." Organized by Chairman Fletcher, it consists of nine university professors, all well known in their fields.

One duty of the group will be to prepare analytical criticism of New Deal policies and law for Republican spokesmen to use in the campaign.

Chairman Fletcher does not like his group to be called a brain trust, but it seems certain that it must wear the label whether it wants to or not.

Spring Tonic Distasteful

Spring has definitely arrived in Washington. The sign: A lot of Congressmen who dislike the sulphur and molasses treatment are having to swallow another bitter pill just the same.

Publicly, they say they like the medicine. But privately, they storm and fuss because politics is forcing them to take their medicine and vote to appropriate another $1,500,000,000 for "work relief" and bondoggling.

C. J. BARNES GETS SAFETY AWARD

Presentation of 73 one, two and three year safe driving awards to employees of the Oregon division of the General Petroleum Corporation has just been completed as part of the firm's safety program. At the same time, a total of 841 awards were presented employees in all divisions of the firm.

Included among those receiving second year awards was C. J. Barnes, branch manager for Aloha, Beaverton, Multnomah and Tigard. Winner of a third year award is C. N. Cook, local truck salesman.

Heading the list in this division were C. B. Ball, traveling machinist, and R. L. Angst, Northern district manager, in which district Barnes branch is located, with 71,997 and 68,712 miles, respectively, to their credit over a period of three years. Unofficially, though, Angst has driven approximately 400,000 miles for the firm without preventable accidents in nearly ten years, but definite records have been kept for only the past three years.

Others, well known here, who received awards include: Albert E. Horn, Jr., division general manager; C. G. Walker, sales manager; D. C. Brees, division service station manager; W. F. Carper, manager of lubricants department; C. A. Cronn, division credit manager; and E. A. Aune, Northern district service station supervisor.

No preventable accidents were recorded for the Oregon division between November 16, 1934, and January 31, 1936, the report says.

"We consider that this safety work is one of the most important phases of General Petroleum activities," said Horn.

In the Land of the Wild Jackass

Here is a small herd of wild burros in Death Valley, the descendants of the little pack animals turned loose in by-gone years by prospectors overcome by thirst and starvation. Death Valley, taken into the national park service in 1933, is now open to tourists in the winter months. These burros are the only signs of wild life, animal or vegetable, to be seen in the entire valley, yet somehow they manage to live on vegetation that humans cannot find. Tualatin Valley Post to Hold Basket Social

A real old fashioned basket social will be held Saturday, April 25, at the Metzger clubhouse under the auspices of Tualatin Valley post No. 93. Prizes for the best baskets, other awards also. Cards and dancing. Everybody is welcome.

A price limit is to be placed on baskets.

MULTNOMAH

A group of members of Jobs Daughters attended the Bethel Grand Council in Roseburg this week. They drove down in Walter Beardsley's car. In the group were Mrs. Maude Woodworth, Colleen Coleman, Betty Turley and Betty Beardsley and Walter Beardsley. A pan of fat on the kitchen stove at the Roy Swint home caught fire last week and damaged the kitchen.

Paul Rising sold the Faith Curtis home at Maplewood this week to Keith Rogers of Portland.

The May meeting of the Maplewood Womens club will be held May 1 at the home of Mrs. J. S. Macdonald.

Mrs. Amos, of Portland, visited Multnomah friends Monday.

Miss Elaine Bounds of Eugene, spent Sunday in Multnomah.

Kenneth Macdonald and wife were recent guests at his home here.

F. E. Weatherly spent the week with relatives in Southern Oregon.

F. H. Powder has moved to 33rd avenue, near Hoffman road.

Mr. Maynard's father from Victoria, B. C., spent several days here last week. He was a former missionary to India.

Mrs. Fred Slate visited in Albany recently.

Babson Says

cannot see the forest. An inspection tour such as this gives a person a much-needed perspective.

"Looking at the long-range growth of America, I cannot see anything but the Middle West becoming the center of the United States. It should lead politically, financially, industrially, and agriculturally. Chicago may be the metropolis of America in thirty years. Chicago has tremendous sources of raw materials nearby, an abundant, intelligent labor supply, cheap transportation, and aggressive management. Only a spiritual awakening is needed to enable Chicago to fulfill my forecast."

Certainly this section has wonderful recuperative powers. Only three years ago the City of Chicago could not meet its payroll. Today its bonds are selling above par and the expansion of the late twenties is beginning again. The Chicago real estate situation is fairly well cleaned up. New home building is one to two times the volume of a year ago. In Chicago as in most other cities the Administration is giving real estate a lift. Trade in Chicago is better than a year ago and collection tions are steadily improving there and throughout the Middle West as well.

FARM OUTLOOK

Illinois is another state which now looks as though it will prevent a second Democratic landslide. Governor Landon and Colonel Knox are mentioned most often here as the probable Republican nominee. Seldom do we hear anything favorable about Senator Borah as a Republican possibility. As to the farm situation in the middle West—Plenty of moisture both from the winter snows and spring rains in all but a few drought sections now indicates good crops this year. Farmers are planting more acreage than a year ago and it looks like lower prices for corn, oats, wheat, and other grains this year compared with last.

Better crops, however, should put farm income above last year's total. I have heard little hue and cry about the AAA overthrow. Most people feel that the farmers should be paid according to their contracts. Everybody seems to be up in the air about the new farm program which is masquerading under the guise of Soil Conservation. Dairymen feel better than they did three years back; but the growing conditions now indicated probably mean no improvement in milk and butter prices.

FEDERAL SPENDING QUESTIONED

The most important observation was written by one of my men on the train en route from Chicago to St. Louis. Says he: "Everybody with whom we have talked—newspaper editors, business men, taxi-drivers, bell-boys, brokers, and farmers—say the same thing. Spending must be stopped! The so-called 'common man' is grateful to the Administration for the help given the poor people through federal relief. These same people—however—cannot understand why Mr. Roosevelt's policies have not cut down the tremendous unemployment burden. They are wondering if the New Deal is not a long-term reform policy rather than an immediate recovery program."

"A year ago in this same section of the country which we are now studying only business men were questioning the New Deal. Almost everyone with whom we talk believes Roosevelt will be re-elected; but we haven't found very many in

Tall Tales

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN
ELMO SCOTT WATSON

A Story Full of Interest

UP AROUND Spooner, Wis., it is natural, of course, that spoon fishing should be popular not only with the natives but with the 26,444 visitors who inhabit the region every summer. At least, that is the assertion of Fred Record, of Barrington, Ill.

"One of my friends fished a lake in the Spooner region fifteen years ago, but with indifferent success," says Record. "This man used a spoon, but for some reason the lure of its whirl failed to attract the specimens with which the lake abounded."

"My friend was quitting in disgust and leaned over the side of his boat. A $10 gold piece—for in those days the possession of gold was no misdemeanor—fell from his pocket, spun in the water and was seized and swallowed by a fish, which darted away."

"Five years ago, this friend and I returned to the same lake. Again, my companion's luck was poor. But just at sundown he landed an enormous pickerel which we took to camp for our dinner. You can imagine the delight of my friend, on cleaning the fish, to discover a $10 gold piece in its belly."

"The treasure was slightly tarnished, it is true. But to offset this, my friend also removed three $2 bills from the fish. The $6, we figured out later, represented 6 per cent interest on the gold piece for ten years. It pleased us to learn that the amount was exactly correct."
