TRADE AND THE BONUS

Distribution of the soldiers' bonus will begin next week and about $1,700,000 will be available in cash if the ex-service men and women desire it. This is some dollars. They make quite a splash in the business world and many experts expect trade to improve in response to the stimulus. This county will receive its share of the flood of cash and participate in the business that results. In the fight for trade many of those who get their bonus money will be over-persuaded to buy, with the result that some of them will acquire a head-ache. Every individual should be on guard and make good use of the money that is received. It may be a long time before there is another such windfall.

UNDER PRIVATE OWNERSHIP

A short time ago a prominent editor and owner of several important newspapers, died. He was known as one of the ablest newspaper men of the country, and had built up very valuable privately-owned properties. In his will, in which he made large bequests to members of his family, he ordered that, for all time to come, his newspapers were to battle for government ownership. During his lifetime he had favored government ownership of the power industry, and it was his considered wish that the same policy be continued after his death. That was his right in a free country. But is an ironical fact that such a career as his could never have been enjoyed only under a government which protected the sanctity of private ownership. Government ownership, carried to the logical conclusion, means communism, which involves government ownership of property, including newspapers. The deceased editor was a self-made man. He was able to rise in the world under our country's philosophy of encouraging private ownership, a philosophy that has made possible the rise of all other distinguished Americans.

SANITY IN VOTING

The Republican convention is on. Soon the Democratic sessions will have been held. Then the campaign will be under way in earnest, probably the most important since the Civil War. Unfortunately political campaigns are not always conducted in the best interests of the people, and the current one will be no exception. Fundamentals of the American system are at stake. To a great extent we will be voting upon whether we desire to change our system, whether we wish to diminish the power of the individual citizen and the states and to aggrandize the authority of the Federal government. That there will be mud-slinging aplenty is already apparent. That there will be appeals to class hatred, efforts to align one class of citizens against another, and bitter epithets hurled also is apparent. Those who will do the voting have a greater obligation therefore to separate the wheat from the chaff. It behooves every person who will go to the polls in November to work out his or her own yardstick for determining when candidates are appealing to their senses and when to their passions and emotions. Only a small percentage of the electorate went to the polls in the hard-fought 1932 campaign. If in 1936 there could be 60,000,000 votes cast instead of 40,000,000 and each voter were to fully realize the sacred trust which he was exercising, there would then be little reason to fear for the future of these United States.

About this time of the year we realize that the natural beauty of this section is its greatest potential asset but we do little or nothing about it. Readers who think back a quarter of a century will be amazed at what we "must have" today that we never saw twenty-five years ago.

The Motorist's Prayer

"Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye, that no man shall be hurt when I pass by," starts The Motorist's Prayer. The prayer first appeared in the London Church Times. The Prayer is a reminder that good driving is a Christian obligation. It follows:
Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye,
That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest life, and I pray no act of mine
May take away or mar that gift of thine.
Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear me company,
From the evils of fire and all calamity
Teach me to use my car for others' need,
Nor miss through love of speed
The beauties of thy world; that thus I may,
With joy and courtesy go my way.

Oregon Dairy Output Listed

SALEM—Oregon dairy plants now manufacture per year 30 million pounds of cheese, 26 million pounds condensed milk, 5 million pounds skim milk powder, 1 1/2 million gallons of ice cream and about 1 1/2 million pounds of cottage cheese. As late as the beginning of the present century, Oregon imported considerable quantities of butter and cheese. In 1935, 8 million pounds of butter and 9 million pounds of cheese were shipped from Oregon to California.

Public Pay Roll Lists 3,000,000

Nearly one-tenth of all those gainfully employed in the United States are on payrolls which come out of the pockets of the taxpayers, according to a study by the National Civil Service Reform League. The League estimates that more than $4,000,000,000 a year goes for the salaries of Federal, local and State employees, which represents approximately 38 per cent of the taxes collected. That money, visible or invisible, come out of the total earning power of the nation, the league says, with the more than 3,000,000 public employees directly on the pay roll of every man, woman and child in America "whether or not he or she owns property or pays income tax, or pays or does not pay direct taxes at all."

Editorial Association to Convene at Grants Pass

Plans for the program and for a royal entertainment for Oregon newspapermen have been completed for the 49th annual convention of the Oregon Editorial Association at Grants Pass June 18, 19 and 20, it was announced here by Arne G. Rae, field manager for the organization.

Business sessions will be held in the host city, but as soon as the work is done, the entire party will be conveyed on Saturday to the Oregon Caves, where the annual gridiron banquet and other entertainment features will be held. Trips through the caves and to scenic spots nearby, as well as other features will be on the program, it is announced. The convention will begin Thursday, June 18, when the board of directors of the association will meet.

Home Beautification Exhibit at County Fair

L. E. FRANCIS, Assistant County Agent. The home beautification exhibits will be a new feature this year at the 4-H club department of the county fair. Due to the active sponsorship of the Hillsboro garden club a group of 7 Hillsboro boys under the leadership of Mrs. John L. Searcy, have been enrolled in the home beautification project. The work in this project consists of beautifying the home by means of improved landscaping, lattice fencing, lily pounds, etc.

Exhibits consist of notebooks containing pictures of the project before it was started, during its development, and after its completion along with a drawn plan showing what the objective was and a narrative report of the work done, the method followed, and results accomplished. Accompanying this notebook is a record book showing in detail the cost of the project. The Hillsboro club has been very active and all of the boys have been doing fine work. Their exhibits at the county fair should be very interesting to these people who are interested in gardens and landscaping. The members of the club are: Jack Howe, Raymond Eslinger, Bill Everett, Robert Hurd, Delmar Mohr, Douglas Seymour, Jack Goodman.

Special OSC Broadcast Brings Eastern Quiries

That the story of Oregon's vast natural resources and the relation of the land grant college to them was favorably received throughout the United States is indicated in the hearty response in letters and telegrams received at Oregon State college following the recent National Farm hour program furnished by the college to the NBC nationwide hookup. Aside from messages of praise for the music of the band, glee club and soloists, there have been letters of inquiry concerning higher educational possibilities here in Oregon and even some inquiring about investment opportunities from listeners.

Single Plant Basis of New Stock
OREGON CITY—Cecil Chapman, strawberry grower of Oregon City, is building up a valuable planting of certified disease-free strawberry stock which he started a couple of years ago from a single plant. Dr. S. M. Zeller, O. S. C. plant pathologist, considers the stock among the best in the state. Most of the existing certified stock of the Marshall variety in Oregon had its source in nine plants retained by Dr. S. M. Zeller after discarding all of the remainder in an original selected group of 250 plants.

Tillamook Uses More Irrigation
CORVALLIS—Surprising as it may seem, the chief development of irrigated pasture in western Oregon is in Tillamook county, where the average annual rainfall is something over 90 inches, according to Art King, extension specialist in soils at O. S. C.

New First-Aid Ambulance Boat

Here are two views of Portland's new mercy boat, the Jack H. Luihn, which went into service last week. It is expected to be of the same service on water as the George L. Baker first-aid car is on land. Called the "aerohydrocraft" by its designer, Victor W. Strode, it is said to be unsinkable, has a speed of nearly 40 miles an hour and carries two stretchers and other first-aid equipment. In the picture, left to right, are Albert E. Horn Jr., general manager of the Oregon division of the General Petroleum corporation, who provided Mobilgas and Mobiloil for the craft and whose engineers are interested in the boat; Portland's mayor, Joseph K. Carson, and Jack Luihn, for whom the craft was named.

Three new sprinkler irrigation systems for this purpose are now being installed there, he reports, and indications are that several more will be added before the season is over.
