THE POOR MUST PAY

"One of the gravest indictments of Congress which has just adjourned is its refusal even to think about our terrible tax mess," writes John T. Flynn in a syndicated article. "This responsibility belongs to no special party—both great parties ran away from the subject. A politician is more frightened by taxation than by any other form of menace." Further on in his article, Mr. Flynn points to the ridiculous fallacy of the "soak the rich" policy of taxation. This may be good bait for uninformed voters, but as an economic possibility, to quote Mr. Flynn again it "is the saddest of all illusions!"

During the last fiscal year, Federal state and local taxes collected in the United States amounted to $12,500,000,000. If every person who had an income of $25,000 a year or more, had been taxed to the limit—100 per cent—collections would have reached less than $4,000,000,000, one-third of the tax load. And if the government had confiscated 100 per cent of the incomes of all persons earning $5,000 a year or more—a sum which is certainly a far cry from riches—collections would have reached about $10,000,000,000, more than $2,000,000,000 less than the amount necessary to pay our extortionate tax bill.

The taxpayer who provides the bulk of tax funds in this country, whether he knows it or not, is the average small-salaried worker—the man or woman earning $20, $30 or $40 a week. Indirect taxes are the principal support of all units of government—taxes which are hidden in the cost of food, clothing, tobacco, amusements, gasoline, beauty preparations and everything we use. The Twentieth Century Fund has found that a $1,000 wage earner in New York pays $123 in taxes; a $2,000 salary worker, $238; a $5,000 a year man $618; and a $10,000 executive, about $600.

We are not now paying anywhere near enough taxes to meet present government expenditures, let alone reducing our nearly $40,000,000,000 Federal debt. Only the poor man can furnish the tax money—there aren't enough rich men, if you take all they have.

AGITATORS— THEN AND NOW

The author of the following words can hardly be accused of having an axe to grind in the present situation, for he has been dead nearly 90 years. Yet his words ring peculiarly true today as we see irresponsible agitators fomenting riots, strikes, and property seizure. That man wrote:

"There are persons who constantly clamor. They complain of oppression and speculation and the pernicious influence of accumulated wealth. They cry out loudly against all banks and corporations and all means by which small capitalists become united in order to produce important and beneficial results.

"They carry on mad hostility against all established institutions. They would choke the fountain of industry and dry all streams. In a country of unbounded liberty they clamor against oppression. In a country where property is more evenly divided than anywhere else, they rend the air shouting agrarian doctrines. In a country where wages of labor are high beyond parallel, they would teach the laborer he is but an oppressed slave.

"What can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder, the diffusion of corrupt principles and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society."

Yes, the man who wrote this had been dead nearly 90 years. He was the great Daniel Webster.

JOHN BROWN'S PAY CHECK

According to an article by Frank R. Kent, current slackening of government borrowing is a deceiving phenomenon. Instead of borrowing directly from the banks or the people through the issuance of bonds, the government has now adopted a policy of spending the funds supposedly placed in trust with the government, by the people, under the Social Security act. In other words, the money which is taken out of John Brown's weekly pay check, and which the government has promised to set aside to care for him in old age or when he is unemployed, is promptly being dumped into the public treasury for general expenses.

The public treasury has simply become a vast and seemingly bottomless grab-bag. Politicians seeking to perpetuate themselves in office gleefully ply the treasury for money, and more money—money that is spent on everything from out-houses to cash registers. For the first 44 days of the current fiscal year the government spent $954,805,183.94; its receipts were $675,375,562.55; deficit, $279,429,621.39.

What will become of John Brown's hard earned savings if such a policy is continued for long? What do you think?

Oregon's Auto Deaths

A Series of Weekly Articles on the Problem of Highway Safety

By EARL SNELL, Secy. of State

"Slow down at sun down" is the advice that can well be heeded by the careful driver. The nation's record of after dark driving is a warning to all motor vehicle operators.

Throughout the nation it is estimated that about twenty per cent of the travel is at night. Yet three fifths of the fatal accidents occur during the hours of darkness.

As the density of traffic decreases speeds generally increase. One out of every forty-five day time injuries results in death, as compared with one out of every twenty eight injured in night traffic accidents. Careful compiled data from seven states also shows that the six hours of darkness before midnight account for a total of 52 per cent of the fatal pedestrian accidents.

Again we are at the time of year when driving becomes the most difficult, and the ordinary hazards of traffic will be increased by wet and slippery pavements, fog, and other handicaps incidental to winter driving. Night driving in particular requires additional care and caution in unfavorable weather. Wet pavement and glaring headlights constitute a deadly combination particularly at dusk, and all of these elements must be considered in motor vehicle operation for the next few months.

Give careful consideration to all conditions under which you are driving, and regulate the speed of your car accordingly. Help eliminate Oregon's traffic deaths.
