

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—There was a tiger in an open door in China, the door of a cave, and not John Hay's open door. Young Joseph Clark Grew crawled in and killed it. That, plus a decision over a very tough bear, so delighted, even enraptured, Theodore Roosevelt that he made the young man a diplomat.

That was in 1904. In Tokyo, Ambassador Grew relays notes and apologetic back and forth, as an ambassador would at a time like this, but his job is a lot more important than that and his qualifications much greater.

He is a singularly shrewd, tactful and seasoned career diplomat. In the State department, it is apparent that, as Governor Landon said, "Politics stops at the water's edge," and Mr. Grew, a Hoover appointee, has in his experienced hands the furtherance of the President's policy in the Far East at a time of possibly critical tension.

He and Franklin D. Roosevelt had a casual acquaintance at Groton and Harvard. The young Bostonian, getting his sheepskin, lost no time in heading for Singapore to get himself a tiger skin.

He took on all comers in the jungle in any kind of milling they wanted, some of it bare-handed rough-and-tumble. For two years he hunted big game in southern Asia and then wrote a book about it, "Sport and Travel in the Far East."

Ho had vague ideas then about what he wanted to do when he finished his jungle engagement, but was inclined toward writing. The bear story, a red-hot pulp magazine splash, caught T. R.'s eye when he was browsing through young Grew's book. A youth who could get a half-nelson on an angry bear was T. R.'s idea of a diplomat. As soon as the cables were open the next morning, they were routing Joseph Clark Grew, the bear-wrangler, into a lifetime of career diplomacy, via a post with the Egyptian consulate-general at Cairo.

Without a single foot-slip he moved on up, through 33 years in posts at Mexico City, Petrograd, Berlin, Vienna, Copenhagen and Bern. He was secretary of the American delegation at the Versailles peace conference and a member of many governmental missions and conferences.

He is fifty-seven years old, tall, weathered, graying, with a heavy gray moustache, smoking an old drop-stem pipe, rapping out his onion-skin reports to the President on his own similarly durable career typewriter.

Mrs. Grew is a granddaughter of Commodore Perry, who, for good or ill, opened Japan to the West, and vice-versa, in 1853. Living with them at the embassy is their daughter, Mrs. Cecil Lyon, and her two children.

Diplomats are always getting an earful of something or other, and one ear failed to stand the strain. But, with his one good ear, Mr. Grew hears plenty and pegs out concise, always-dependable, reports to the President.

AMERICANS versed in the ways and the personalities of international diplomacy aver that Italy's loss is the gain of the United States in the appointment of Count Rene Doyne de St. Quentin as French ambassador to this country.

Fifty-four years old and a bachelor, accomplished signally in all the arts of social intercourse as well as in his essential profession of statecraft, Count St. Quentin is very precisely an exponent of the traditional French school of diplomacy.

It will perhaps be recalled that the count had previously been named as ambassador to Italy and that, when Mussolini insisted that the new envoy's credentials be addressed to "the king of Italy and emperor of Ethiopia," the Quai d'Orsay proved recalcitrant.

Unwilling to recognize the conquest of Haile Selassie's kingdom, the French insisted that the address be merely to "the king of Italy." So arose an impasse which endures to this day, with both nations lacking that comity of relationship and genial understanding normally implied in ambassadorial representation.

During the attempt of France and Great Britain to ease the Italo-Ethiopian situation by negotiation in the period before the imposition of sanctions, Count St. Quentin had served his country as technical expert in the delicate issue, and previously, in 1932, he had served in similar capacity as French representative on the international committee that investigated conditions in Liberia. In other fields, in the course of his diplomatic career, his government has utilized his profound knowledge of African affairs.

Many Opportunities Offered at Ellison-White Conservatory

The Ellison-White Conservatory is celebrating its twenty-first year under the direction of Ariel Rubenstein who came to Portland a year ago from New York City, where he was director of the Community Center Conservatory of Music for seven years.

The Conservatory, which was re-organized this year has retained several Portland teachers who have had long experience with the school. In charge of the voice department is Alice Bogardus, who taught for sixteen years at the University of Washington. Nicola Zan heads the operatic department, an innovation at the school this year. The piano department is unusually strong. Those who wish to specialize in piano repertoire and interpretation, or to be coached for recitals are placed with Mr. Rubenstein, who heads the piano department. In addition to Mr. Rubenstein the piano faculty consists of Dorothy Gorbovitzky, the young American pianist who appeared with the Portland Symphony last year; Lela Slater, who has been with the conservatory for the past thirteen years; Maud Ross Sardan, a well known piano teacher in Portland; Frances Mulkey, who has been on the staff for fifteen years, directs the kindergarten and elementary piano classes, and Gertrude Gentry, a graduate student of the conservatory.

Heading the violin department is Mr. Nathan Abas, a member of the distinguished Abas String Quartet and former concert master of the San Francisco Symphony and head of the violin department of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. Also a director of the violin department is Miss Mary Schultz who studied under Herbert Butler and Alexander Bloch.

The orchestral department is composed of the first chair members of the Portland Symphony Orchestra. The dance department is under the direction of Marcelle Renoux, who holds classes in ballet interpretive and tap dancing.

Mr. Rouen Faith, well known teacher of harmony, composition, theory and creative music has been appointed to the faculty as head of the theory department. These teachers have all been selected for ability and equipment to train musical studies in the most up-to-date methods of technique and style. The activities of the conservatory are being widened to give each student complete, thorough and serious training. In addition to the regular classes there are classes in every branch of the school for non-professional people who wish to study to further their own artistic appreciation and enjoyment.

Garden Home Locals

The Bible class is held every Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 for the little children and 3:30 for older children and Miss Elvina Johnson of Maplewood has charge. Classes are held in the Garden Home Community church.

Lester B. Knudson garage owner of Garden Home, who was taken to St. Vincent's hospital Christmas day was returned to his home Wednesday, January 12 where he is recovering satisfactorily after having undergone a major operation necessitated by his acute illness late Christmas eve. He has had a hard fight for life but with excellent nursing is expected to completely recover, although it will be several weeks before he can do any work of any kind. Knudson has nearly completed his house built out of old and well seasoned lumber and there is no house in the country put together better, and that fireplace in the large living room is a wonder and is considered one of the finest for heating in the vicinity.

Marvin Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Hunt of Garden Home has been very ill at his home but is recovering satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Floyd who spent some time in California returned home a few days ago reporting they enjoyed their stay quite well.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Jenkins made a week end trip to Brightwood, near Mt. Hood and enjoyed the recreation a great deal.

Mrs. Johnnie Van Zofen was taken to St. Vincent's hospital for a major operation Wednesday and is reported as doing fairly well since the operation has been performed.

The Garden Home P. T. A. met at the school house Friday January 14 and the attendance was 50 persons. The attendance over a period of three months has been very good. They are planning a dramatic play for Feb. 11th at the school auditorium. It is a notice of proposed formation and reading will take place depicting the history and accomplishments of the P. T. A. They also plan a card party in conjunction with the Garden Home Athletic club to take place at the school auditorium February 21st which falls on Monday. This will be for the benefit of the new auditorium and proceeds to be used for buying screens and to pay on the fine new piano. This club is a decided success. A crowd is expected the 21st.

If you want news in this issue you must see that it is in our offices by 5 p. m. Wednesday.

TUALATIN

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hinning of Coquille were guests last Friday of their relatives Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Hill.

Harvey Nalott attending school at Cipole has been at home with his grandparents a few days with an attack of appendicitis.

Mrs. O. J. Irel is at home from Portland where she was hospitalized for sometime following a major operation.

Harriet Saum, of the Cipole school faculty spent her recent holiday vacation in Washington, reporting a very pleasant sojourn.

The community sing at the Community church every Tuesday evening is rapidly becoming a real event. This week waffles were served after the choruses. Ed Stites is usually on hand to lead the singing.

Winona grange No. 271 is planning on an unusually interesting meeting Monday evening January 24 at the I. O. O. F. hall when the members of Aloha grange will be present. Aloha is one of the banner granges of Washington county. Members will be initiated in the third and fourth degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wilson of Portland have purchased the Durham store formerly owned by E. L. Bacon. With the store building is an acre and a quarter of land. Mr. and Mrs. Bacon and three children are at present living near Jean station but plan on going into business possibly at Tacoma. Mrs. Wilson who is a sister of Mrs. Jack Bradbury will operate the store while Mr. Wilson is employed in Portland driving forth and back daily. They sell gas, oil, groceries, school supplies and so forth. They plan an expansion program in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Pennington, Dorothy Heimbach, Ruth McReynolds and Mabel Harkness attended the grange council meeting at Forest Grove last Saturday.

The Rebekah lodge of Tualatin No. 210 installed the following officers Wednesday evening January 12 at the I. O. O. F. hall with Nellie Cole district deputy as installing officer. Noble Grand Daisy Clow; V. G. Orpha Sagert; secretary, Mabel Hoad; treasurer Thelma Cummings; chaplain, Mary Jones; conductor, Helen Thompson; warden, Laura Dooxie; RSVG Nellie Cole; LSNL Lela Hogatt; RSVG Rose Schamoni; LSVG Gladys Blank outside guardian Fred Sagert; inside guardian, Thelma Barngrover. Committees were appointed for the Odd Fellow and Rebekah annual party to be given at a later date. L. J. Francis, acting secretary, after serving the order for the past ten years was presented with gifts in appreciation of services rendered.

E. A. Robinson of the local store of general merchandise is the owner of a new DeSoto automobile. A potluck dinner was served at the Methodist Community church Sunday noon to members and friends. There were two long tables filled with guests. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wells and two children were here from McMinnville Sunday visiting the Walter Hawxhursts.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hawxhurst spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Meyer in Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer have recently purchased an $8000 home and are domiciled therein.

Mrs. Julius Martinazzi is in Berkeley, Cal., convalescing from her recent illness at the home of her daughter.

Myrtle and Helen Corbitt entertained a party of high school students at a dancing party at their home Saturday evening.

Bob King, the owner of the Tualatin Valley egg route is quite ill and confined to his home east of town. Indications at present point to an early spring. The daffodils are several inches out of the ground and pussy willows have been out a long time. One sees roses heather and other spring flowers in bloom.

DURHAM

Mrs. Geo. Frank celebrated her birthday last week with a family dinner.

Gail Bradburg is clearing land for Mrs. Curry at her home on the road between Durham and Tualatin.

Bert Hamilton was pleasantly surprised recently by a group of friends on his birthday.

The new owners of the Durham store are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Mrs. A. H. Nelson entertained the Home Economic club of Winona Grange on January 12. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Barn-dovers home in Tualatin. The little Blyze girl was taken to the Doernbecker hospital last week. She has rheumatic fever, but is better at present.

Harry Hall is also on the sick list.

METZGER

Mrs. Strasser has just sprayed the greenhouse. All the Spring flowers are in bloom and it is a place well worth visiting. The young peoples club are planning a skating party soon. The officers are Gordon Miner, president; John Conklin, vice-president; Velma Carsh secretary; Anna Branch, treasurer. The meetings so far have been very successful.

Art Williams has gone east and to Oklahoma for a three weeks visit and vacation. Shirley Conklin is staying with her grandparents at present. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Welch.

It Pays to Fertilize

Oregon has been blessed with good soil and a large rainfall. This rainfall will deplete the mineral plant foods that are in the soil much more quickly than in a drier territory.

The day is rapidly approaching when you will only have "Humus" in your soil and then you will have no crops.

So fertilize. Fertilizing must be considered a part of growing expense, but it pays. Marine By Products Co. located at 1039 NW 13th, Portland Oregon

Automobile accident statistics for January, 1937 warn Oregon motorists against unpreparedness and too much speed at this time of year. Secretary of State Snell said this week.

More than half of last January's 3032 reported accidents occurred while streets and highways were covered with ice and nearly one third occurred while snow was actually falling. Skidding played a part in no less than 1105 mishaps.

"I am hopeful that our drivers can chalk up a substantial decrease over last January's record-breaking figures," Snell added, "but this cannot be done if the majority of us are caught unaware by weather such as we had last year."

The importance of sensible speed is further stressed by the fact that while non-collision accidents, in which automobiles simply turned over or were driven off the highway, represented only a little more than one per cent of the total, they contributed eight of last January's 29 highway deaths.
