C. J. Barnes, local manager for General Petroleum corporation has returned from Portland where he attended a series of conferences on automobile and industrial lubrication conducted over a period of several days by General Petroleum executives and lubrication engineers from Los Angeles. Purpose of the "school" was to give the men information on changes in automotive and industrial equipment and the Mobil and Gargyle products which have been developed to meet the lubrication problems resulting from these changes.
Barnes said.
Included in the types of lubrication covered in the sessions were lumber mills and camps, farm machinery, canneries, railroads, marine, aviation and all types of automotive.
Barnes reports. More than 50 men connected with the sale of Mobiloil and greases and Socony-Vacuum industrial lubricants in Oregon and Washington attended the meetings.
