BABSON SAYS

have felt a slackening in the advance of industrial output since last fall. They are, however, still far above the world average of activity. The weakness in commodity prices and the drop in international shipping are the worst blows. Of the three countries, Denmark feels the recession most severely while Sweden is still a boom country. The way these nations conduct themselves economically and politically is an example for the rest of the world.

MEDITERRANEAN COUNTRIES Italy is a very busy, but a very poor country today. Unemployment has been almost eliminated, but workers are badly paid. Taxation is enormous and the lira—the national currency—is weak.
Abyssinia is a big drain. If Duce is pushing a "self-sufficiency" policy but Italy has even fewer raw materials to work with than Germany. Mussolini, like Hitler, is headed for economic chaos. Meanwhile Spain continues to impover-ish and ruin itself. Portugal and Greece however, are two bright spots.

SOUTH AMERICA: Commodity prices control the prosperity of our Southern neighbors. Hence the price smash in international products such as coffee, beef, cotton, copper, and wheat means that the 1937 "boom" will not be repeated this year. After three years of steadily improving conditions, South America will mirror the recession going on in England and the United States. Best trading prospect among the leading countries is Argentina. My feeling is that the biggest recent development in South America is the new dictatorship in Brazil. The "fascist" idea has crossed the Atlantic!

JAPAN AND CHINA: The China adventure is a big drain on Tokio but she is standing up well under the strain. Because of the war, it is almost impossible to determine true business conditions. The increasing restrictions on foreign exchange and the decline in stock prices indicates, however, that she has tackled a big job. One thing is certain: Both countries will endeavor to buy less of our goods in the future than in the past.
Japan will get much of the raw cotton for her textile mills from the fields of North China rather than from Texas; and she will attempt to crowd us out as China's biggest merchant. Yet there is a possibility that an awakened China may give us sufficient new business to more than offset these losses.

Depends on U. S.
The key to this entire situation today is the United States. Last year we accounted for one-ninth of all world trade. Our demand and consumption will have a powerful influence on the world trend of commodity prices. The fortunes of many economic areas around the globe depend on these prices. If a strong pick-up takes place in North America, world recovery can survive the bad conditions in France and elsewhere. I believe that such a recovery may be ahead. Surely a world spiritual revival could bring it about.
