

BEAVERTON ENTERPRISE

H. H. JEFFRIES, Publisher

Published Friday of each week by the Pioneer Publishing Co., at Beaverton, Oregon. Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Beaverton, Ore.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
 One Year $1.00 Three Months $.35c
 Six Months .50 Subscription Payable in Advance.

Enterprise Bldg., Cor. Short St. and Tualatin Valley Highway, Phone 7503
 Portland Office—407-408 Dekum Bldg., Phone AT. 6591
 Hillsboro Office—Room 5, Delta Bldg., Phone 1641
 E. M. Golder, Field Representative

Member
 Oregon Newspaper Publishers
 Association
 1938

CAST YOUR BALLOT FRIDAY FOR THOSE WHO WILL ACT FOR PUBLIC INTEREST

On Friday, voters will go to the polls to nominate candidates for the race in the general election, and these candidates all promise to serve the taxpaying public to the best of their ability. But this word "ability" might be construed as a definite weakness when used in reference to New Deal practices. Ability to serve, under a system which leans toward dictatorship, is decidedly limited, as we have seen during the last few years.

We believe the people of Oregon want governmental business conducted in a businesslike manner by officials who will serve to the best of their ability, without dictatorial interference from higher ups.

SOME MORE POLITICAL PAINT

The WPA has come up with another new "relief" idea. It has offered immortality on canvas to all public officials whom it deems "worthy" of preservation for posterity.

Any public official can have his portrait painted in oil by the WPA if he can prove his worthiness to the satisfaction of the WPA.

More than 200 government officials already have had gratified their wish to see themselves perpetuated. Several hundred others have sent in applications. Eight artists are at work on the project and WPA says it has enough applications to keep 100 painters busy for a year.

The paintings remain the property of the government, but may be loaned to cities, counties and States for display to "impress the natives" of the "worthiness" of their public officials.

Numerous registered voters do not feel the importance of casting a ballot in the primaries. Selection of a candidate to compete in the general election is equally as important as casting a final ballot for just representation. Do not fail to vote for your preference on Friday, May 20th.

Map Shows Paradise

Paradise was once situated deep in the jungles of South Africa, according to a copy of the famous 500-year-old Catalan world map, exhibited in London. It places the mythical spot at the source of the Nile. The original of the map is preserved at Modena, Italy. Ireland is described on the map as a Hibernian island "where people can never die. When they are so old that they wish to die, they have to be taken away to the mainland."

Nutria Native of South Africa

The nutria is a native of South Africa, although it is specially bred on "farms" in many parts of the world. It measures between one and two feet long, not counting a long scaly tail. In color, it may be anything between brown and yellow. In habits it is really of an aquatic nature, but will easily drop this and wander anywhere in search of food. Before preparing, the fur is rather harsh and stiff.

Nighthawk Protected by Nature

The nighthawk, which is frequently observed at dusk, is well endowed by nature in protective coloration. When it is incubating it can hardly be distinguished from its surroundings. It usually picks a site on a gravel roof or the ground and makes no nest for its eggs. While flying it is constantly gobbling up insects which form the bulk of its diet.

NOMINATE

E. KLINGER

Republican for County Commissioner

I have worked for Washington County thirty years. If nominated and elected I will render a good service. The voters have a right to expect. I believe in common sense and fairness in all respects.

Paid Adv.

Bushmen Practice Simple Life; Are Always Happy

In the Kalahari desert of the Bechuanaland protectorate may be found a Stone age race, which has had to give way first to the Hottentots and then to the Bantu and the European.

A special refuge camp had been provided in this desert for these Bushmen—a people without country, creed, or protective government—where they may live secure from surrounding tribes of Bantu and be saved from extinction, writes a correspondent in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Bushmen are small, about 4 feet 8 inches in height, with an average weight of 95 pounds. Sun-baked from infancy, their skins are shriveled and the soles of their feet callused from long wanderings on the desert sands. Rough shelters of branches covered over with loose grass provide their "homes." Water is scarce, and is preserved for drinking in ostrich egg shells buried in the sand.

Throughout their lives the Bushmen never take a bath, but smear themselves with fat when meat is plentiful. The procuring of food and water is the whole business of life. Certain trees provide a few berries; tsuma melons, filled with water, grow in the sand, and the bush country provides antelopes. But subsistence is at a low level, and is eked out with scorpions and insects of all kinds. White ants and their eggs are an especial delicacy.

The Bushmen's weapons are the bow and arrow, and with these they are remarkably good hunters, keen at tracking and stalking and tireless in pursuit. The arrows do not kill, but inject a slow poison into the animal which must then be followed patiently until the poison takes full effect.

HENRY J. BEAN

of Umatilla County

PRESENT CHIEF JUSTICE
 Candidate for

Justice of the Supreme Court

Position No. 2
 on Nonpartisan Judicial Ballot
 27 YEARS EXPERIENCE
 Ask Your Support
 Primary Election May 20, 1938

Paid Adv.

Clonfinlough Stone Is

Ireland's Oldest Monument

A suburb of the old town of Clonmacnoise, Ireland, contains the most ancient monument to be found in all of Ireland. It is the Clonfinlough stone, which is said to date back to Neolithic times, or, in other words, the Stone age. It is the pride of the near-by townland of Clonfinlough, with its church, its school, its post-office and its little general store, observes a writer in the Boston Herald.

Clonfinlough's agricultural area is small, but grows yearly, the young men finding pleasure in annihilating that wicked weed of destruction, the furze, and making it give place to growths of value, notably potatoes, which seem well-suited to the ground here.

The markings of Clonfinlough stone are said to record a fight to a finish between the local cross-men and the invading loop-men, says one authority, with victory for the former, and are similar to rock markings to be found in Spain, proving that there was intercourse between the Spanish and Irish long before the days when St. Patrick brought the blessings of Christianity to Ireland.

Women Follow Men in Hunt

The women in the Kalahari desert of the Bechuanaland protectorate, often with babies on their backs, follow the men on the hunt wherever it leads them. And when the game is killed, they all settle down to a feast of raw meat. After a feast of this kind, especially when the moon is full, the Bushmen dance throughout the night. The women paint their bodies and faces with blood in a barber-pole pattern, and the men adorn themselves with jackals' tails stuck in their hair, and rattles at their ankles. They dance to the moon, fertility and to the living grass, and imitate the hyena and the eland, mimicking the animals feeding, fighting and gamboling. For music they monotonously chant a few weird notes and clap their hands. Sometimes they strum a single wire stretched from a peg in the ground or strung on a bow.

Gave Chorea Its Name

A medieval mania for religious dancing gave chorea its common name. Once started, says the Washington Post, people found they couldn't stop, made pilgrimages to various shrines, found most relief at that of St. Vitus. Chorea usually strikes boys and girls between five and fifteen, strangely, those of above average intelligence. In severe cases the patient cannot walk, talk, eat, sleep, do anything for himself. His muscles twitch involuntarily, act so wildly the disease sometimes is called "insanity of the musclicus."

Taj Mahal, Architectural Wonder
 The Taj Mahal, architectural wonder of the ages, was inspired by the death of Mumtaz-i-Mahal, the beloved of Shah Jehan. But as Arjumand Banu, she almost died in infancy, abandoned by her father in his flight from Teheran into India. A burden, she was left by the side of the road by her father, Asaf Khan, as water became scarce. Remorse saved her for womanhood, the father retracing his steps to pick her up, unharmed.

Your Congressman

James W. Mott

Congressman Mott is one of the recognized leaders of the National House of Representatives.

The following excerpts from the Congressional Record show what his colleagues think of him:

"Your outstanding work on behalf of your District and the fine ability that you have demonstrated in the field of national legislation have won for you the confidence and respect, not only of your own party, but of the general membership of the House of Representatives."

—Congressman Harry L. Englebright, Republican Whip, on the appointment of Congressman Mott to membership on the Republican Floor Organization of the House.

"The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Mott) is one of the leaders of his party here in the House and one of its spokesmen."

—Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, Democratic Leader, in the debate on the Social Security Bill.

"I want to say to the House that there is not a more able, a more active or a more effective member than the distinguished member from Oregon, Mr. Mott."

—Congressman William Cartwright, Chairman of the Committee on Roads, in the debate on the 1938 Road bill.

(Paid Ad. Mott for Congress Committee)

There's More to Sponge

Than Just Mass of Cells

As you see it, a sponge is just a mass of little cells. When it is alive and breathing, if not exactly kicking, in its ocean bed, these cells are filled with jelly. It lives on the water it absorbs through its small pores, the waste water passing out through the large holes at the top.

During its infancy the sponge propels itself by the lashing of innumerable tiny hairs, but when it grows to maturity it settles down to be a real "stick-in-the-mud," says a writer in London Answers Magazine.

For centuries the true nature of the sponge baffled the scientific mind. It was once thought to be a vegetable and at one period was confidently accepted as a new creature by the worms which not unnaturally are often found in it. Not until a hundred years ago did the truth dawn on the scientist Robert Grant.

There are over 2,000 known varieties of sponges, of beautiful and fantastic shapes. One resembles a wineglass of enormous size, and others are commonly found in the form of cups, balls, fans, and discs. But the most fascinating of all are the "glass sponges" found in eastern waters.

Some have their skeletons of transparent flint covered with a delicate network of the finest lace, which in perfection of design rivals the efforts of the skilled lace-maker. Others again are made up of almost transparent gauze. All these are, of course, "show-pieces" which cannot be used in the bath.

Swallows Quicker Than

Pigeons to Find Homes

According to experiments of zoologists, wild birds, especially swallows, have more of a sense of orientation and are thus better able to find their homes than even the long-heralded carrier pigeons. Swallows, starlings, and wrynecks could find their homes from distances as far as 1,200 miles.

The question of the homing of birds is really an ancient one, mention of the use of homing pigeons having been made in the writing of Anacreon about 550 B. C. During the reign of the caliphs, in the year A. D. 1200, the pigeon post received its highest development.

The use of the homing instinct of pigeons was not confined to post-office activities, states a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The development of the carrier pigeon for war purposes was put on a grandiose scale by the French just prior to the Franco-Prussian war.

When a bird properly trained is released in an unknown region it first circulates about the place and then proceeds in the arc of a large circle until it strikes a landmark that it recognizes, and from then on it takes the short path home. This accounts for the fact, so often observed, that pigeons taken to great distances, if they return, do so only after taking an unusually long time. The fact that pigeons get about with difficulty at night also is explained, for landmarks are obscured.

VOTE FOR

O. L. Moore

OF WASHINGTON COUNTY
 Postoffice Tigard

Republican Candidate for

State Representative

TO REPRESENT THE WHOLE COUNTY

Paid Adv.

ELECT JUDGE HOWARD K. ZIMMERMAN TO SUPREME COURT POSITION NO. 2

ELECT A YOUNGER MAN WITH JUDICIAL EXPERIENCE

Paid Adv. by H. K. Zimmerman

Notice to Creditors

In the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Washington, Probate Department.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned Julian B. Blakeslee, deceased, by the County Court of the State of Oregon, for Washington County, and has qualified. All persons having claims against said estate are hereby notified to present the same, duly verified, as by law required, to the undersigned at 902 Spalding Bldg., within six months from the date hereof.

Dated and first published May 20, 1938.

Date of last publication June 17, 1938.

JULIAN B. BLAKESLEE,
 Administrator
ALBERT T. KEMMER, Attorney

BIDS INVITED

School District 48, Washington County, Beaverton, Oregon, will accept bids on tearing down old grade school building located at Beaverton Oregon. The material to be piled and left on the present location. The building can be inspected at any time during the day from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Alternate bids will be accepted for the sale of the building, building to be torn down and all material removed from the site.

Bids will be accepted until the hour of 4 p. m. on June 2, 1938. Additional information can be secured from Mrs. Althea Haulenbeck, Clerk District 48, Beaverton, Oregon.

The board reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids.

Date of first publication May 20, 1938.

Date of last publication May 27, 1938.

DR. C. E. MASON,
 Chairman

ALTHEA HAULENBECK, Clerk.

Leap Kept Burning

In an old palace in Travancore (India) is an oil lamp which, according to tradition, has been burning for the past 1,200 years. It commemorates a ruler of the state who is said to have ascended to heaven while resting on a stone couch. The couch is preserved as an object of veneration.

E. J. "Jack" Hess

For County Commissioner

E. J. "Jack" Hess, is a democratic candidate for County Commissioner.

He is a taxpayer, and lived in the county 18 years, near Hillsboro. He has worked 16 years on county road work.

Mr. Hess believes in building good roads and maintaining same.

If experience means anything to taxpayers they should vote for this man.

Paid Adv.

JOHN L. ANDERSON

Republican candidate for the Nomination of
 COUNTY JUDGE

Paid Adv.

J. O. BAILEY

FOR
 Supreme Court Judge

Position No. 3

Qualified—Vigorous—Progressive

He is conscientious and has the confidence and respect of all the people.

—Paid Adv.

Development of Electricity

In the days of Benjamin Franklin almost the only known manifestations of electrical forces were those associated with the very tiny quantity of electricity at a rather high voltage. For the most precise quantitative measurements of such voltages Sir William Snow Harris devised 100 years ago an electrometer in which the attraction between two oppositely charged metal disks was weighed by a chemist's balance. But almost simultaneously with his invention the researches of Michael Faraday on the manifestations of electricity when circulated in much larger quantity at a very much lower voltage by dynamos swung the trend of thought in a new direction and led to the development of the electric power industry.

WORTH MILLIONS IN MONEY TO Washington County

WHAT? The Nomination and Election of

ROBT. J. HENDRICKS

as
 GOVERNOR OF OREGON

R. J. Hendricks

The Hendricks for Governor Club furnishes this data concerning their candidate:

Member of the Multnomah Typographical Union, Portland.

Oldest member but two in point of service on Willamette University's board of trustees.

An organizer and for 40 or more years vice president of Salem Y. M. C. A.

An organizer and member of Salem Public Library board.

An organizer and member of Salem Chamber of Commerce.

Has taught Congregational Sunday School Bible class for 41 years.

Was twice Republican Congressional district chairman and Marion county chairman two terms.

Charter member Oregon Press association.

Writer of Oregon history; four books; others in process.

Admitted to practice law, June, 1897.

Supervisor of Census twice, 1910, 1930.

Superintendent Oregon Reform School, 1893-7.

U. S. Customs Appraiser, Portland during Spanish American war.

Wrote the law under which the Oregon prison industries are operated.

Never before a candidate for elective office.

Mason, Rotarian, publisher of Oregon Statesman 46 years, founder of Pacific Homestead, Northwest Poultry Journal, Oregon Teachers' Monthly.

(For other personal matter see voters' pamphlet.) Stands four square for religious and racial liberty.)

(Interested parties will upon request be supplied with more detailed printed and other matter, free, by Hendricks for Governor Club, Ramp Building, Salem, Ore.)

(Pd. Adv. by Robt. J. Hendricks)

John L. Anderson presents the following qualifications for civic office:

Served eight years on Hillsboro City Council.

Served on Sanitary Committee during construction of outfall sewer, sanitary sewer, and disposal plant, costing in all about $200,000.

Served as chairman of Park Committee during improvement of City Park, a $15,000 WPA project. At present chairman of Hillsboro Park Commission.

Served six years as member of the Board of Directors at the Emanuel Hospital of Portland.

Six years service as member of Boy Scout committee, Hillsboro Boy Scouts of America.

Operated my own business here for sixteen years.

Believing a business training a requisite I solicit your support at primaries, May 20, 1938.

If nominated and elected to the office of County Judge, it is my purpose to regard my office as my opportunity to express myself in service to society, to maintain the dignity and worthiness of my office by the acceptance and promotion of high standards and oppose questionable practices. To esteem it a privilege to practice economy and to serve beyond the strict measure of duty or obligation.

—Paid Adv.