

Tigard's Mattress Factory Regarded As Noteworthy

The Greeks were among the first people to use soft materials as filling for the covering they placed on their beds and couches.

The Sealy factory at Tigard is one of quite a number scattered over the United States, most of them being in the southern states and when it comes to thinking about the comfortable sleeping of the American people the staff at work in Tigard are doing their share.

Soon after the beginning of this century W. T. Eldridge of Sugarland, Texas and General Jacob Wolters purchased the Sealy company from the original owners and transferred headquarters to Dallas, Texas, with T. J. Underwood as manager.

Speaking of beds, we are told that the most primitive type of bed known to us consisted of a hollowed plank in the earth.
