TO REVAMP OLD CHURCH

One of Beaverton's oldest structures, the Nazarene church, is being reconstructed.

The Beaverton Nazarene church, known to be one of the oldest churches in the Tualatin valley and its history extends so far into the past that its early days have faded into obscurity and its definite age and the purpose for which it was originally erected are unknown to town citizens.

Built in the days of sturdy construction, it appears surprisingly sound, and with the new Sunday School rooms housing the great grandchildren of the children of its founders, the faithful church is virtually assured of rounding out 100 years of service to Beaverton town-folk.—Courtesy Journal.

Davis Has Beautiful West Hill Home

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Davis of Canyon Lane, just off the new Canyon Highway to the east, have one acre of ground, with a moderate southerly slope, an attractive fair sized house with north frontage, and about 100 varieties of shrubs and flowers surrounding their lawn, the largest portion of the lawn being to the east and north of the house and to stand at the lower side of this lawn, facing north the border of shrubs and bushes reminds one of a figure three. There are 10 varieties of Rhododendrons along the north line near the road. They have a wonderful vegetable garden, with a big yield of sweet corn and tomatoes that stand four and five feet high at their stakes, cucumbers and many other things.

Mr. Davis is a railroad engineer for Union Pacific and has been at it over forty years. The Davis home is one of the finest localities in the county, with a beautiful view any way you choose to look. Mrs. Davis takes a hand in keeping up this place and thoroughly understands the nature of the plants and flowers.

Advertising Pays Andy

You bet it pays to advertise in the Enterprise. Andy Fuhrer, owner of Fuhrer's Richfield Station at the intersection of Bertha-Beaverton Highway and Scholls road, has been doing a pretty lively business at this important intersection since his ads have been appearing in this paper. Andy came right out of high school and got into business for himself and right off the bat the business began picking up, at a station that was new and very convenient but not enjoying as peppy a business as should have been, owing to ill health of the previous owner. Now there's a modern hoist and all facilities for lubrication and there simply isn't anything that a motorist can't get here in the way of service, as far as his car is concerned except Andy does not operate a repair garage. Try Andy for Service as it really pays. If you are now a customer, you KNOW this.

Demand for linen in Belgium is so small that factories are operating only part time. German motion pictures are losing in popularity in the Netherlands, Indies.

McCready Lumber Yard In Beaverton Since January, 1926

January 1st, 1926, the W. J. McCready Lumber Co. took over the old "Service Lumber Yard" on Broadway Beaverton, and the business was boosted up several notches at the beginning. F. D. Peck was employed by the company when they began here and in 1928 was made manager of the yards and under his supervision and guidance the business of the local McCready yards has enjoyed a very substantial increase and development, especially over the last three or four years. It appears that this year is to set an all-time record for the Beaverton yard, as the line-up for new building projects in this area is very promising. This yard also stocks PABCO paints and about everything a painter would need in brushes and other equipment and the sales of builders hardware is going over very well.

American candy is to be introduced into British East Africa within a short time.

West Hills Service Doing Very Well

Last April 28, Johnny Roe built an attractive service station and spacious living quarters at the rear of the station and a modern lubrication shed and shop a few feet to the south, along the new Canyon Road at West Hills and from the beginning "West Hills Service" did well. Mr. Roe, "Johnny" as his friends and acquaintances know him, is well experienced in service station work and really takes an interest in the work, doing things with the utmost thoroughness which tends to build up business for him.

The living quarters comprise six rooms and every convenience and the station is kept open until late at night and often folks happen along after midnight needing gasoline and oils. They sure can get in here at any time of the night or day. Johnny will get up in the night to help a customer.

He and his father-in-law Max A. Schultz own "Seaside Service Station" in the heart of that city and it is a very well set-up. Mr. Schultz operates that one. The slogan followed out here at West Hills Service is "Let Johnny Service Your Car."
