Milkweeds Poisonous, Sometimes Kill Stock

Whorled milkweeds are poisonous to live stock and sometimes cause losses among horses, cattle and sheep. Whorled milkweeds have slender stalks. The leaves are narrow and are from two to three inches long. They develop in clusters or whorls of several needlelike leaves around the stalk. The flowers are of greenish white. The botanical name for this weed is Asclepias verticillata. Common milkweeds have a heavier stalk than the whorled variety. The leaves are comparatively broad, oblong in shape, and placed on opposite sides of the stalk. The flowers are of a rose purple. The botanical name is Asclepias syriaca. The swamp variety is known botanically as Asclepias incarnata. It has a larger, deeper-hued blossom than the common milkweed. Milkweeds are deeply rooted perennial plants, producing seeds in pods, with a flosslike material inside the pods. The pods of the common milkweed are larger than those of the whorled or swamp milkweed.

Farm Topics

Cold frames, hot beds, and sash houses are used to start early or tender crops. Farm economists are recommending that farmers pay cash and buy in quantity. With other things equal, the larger cows within a breed produce more milk and make more profit than smaller ones, according to animal husbandry specialists. Mechanical milk coolers are becoming popular on farms but the dairymen should remember that low temperatures only slow down the growth of bacteria and do not remove them. Strict cleanliness in handling milk should complement cooling.

Nanella Shop is Outstanding For Dresses and All Infants' Wear

On November 25th Stella Pinnock and Nancy Conant opened formally the Nanella Shop on Barbur at S.W. 22nd avenue, across from Gregg Owens building and have done a very encouraging business since the opening day, adding considerable to their stock of fine quality ladies dresses, neckties for men and nifty wear for infants and little tots under four years old. They handle the well known Owens neckwear for men, and Berwy hosiery for ladies as well as notions and fancy work. This little store is one of great convenience for people of the west side, as you can depend on getting high quality goods at competitive city prices, and you don't have to hurry, just take your time selecting whatever articles you want and if there happens to be something needed that is not in stock it will be ordered immediately. Mothers and young ladies, try Nanella Shop first, by all means.

The Farmington Christian Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Ed Boge several days ago, and a quilt was made, to be given to the J. Gottlieb family who lost all their household effects by fire recently. Mrs. S. S. Dalby entertained members of the pinocchio club and their husbands with a party at her home Wednesday last week. A fine new stairway is being provided for Farmington School for the basement, an improvement over the old set-up. Work is in charge of August Billings.

THE Poet's Corner -BY- OWAIN-The Bard

EVOLUTION When you were a Tadpole And I was a Fish, In the Paleozoic time, And side by side On the ebbing tide We sprawled Through the ooze and slime Or skittered With many a caudal flip Through the depths Of the Cambrian fen— My heart was rife With the joy of life, For I loved you Even then. Mindless we lived, Mindless we loved, And mindless At last we died; And deep in the rift Of a Caradoc drift We slumbered, Side by side. The world turned on In the lathe of Time, The hot sands Heaved again, Till we caught our breath And from the womb of death, And crept into life again. We were Amphibians, Scaled and tailed, As drab As a dead man's hand. We coiled at ease 'Neath the dripping trees Or trailed Through the mud and sand; Croaking and blind. With our three-clawed feet, Writing a language dumb, With never a spark In the empty dark To hint At a life to come. Yet happy we lived, And happy we loved, And happy we died, Once more. Our forms were rolled In the clinging mold Of a Neocomian shore. The eons came And the eons fled, And the sleep That wrapped us fast Was riven away In a newer day, And the night of death Was past. Then light and swift Through the jungle trees We awung In our airy flights, Or breathed the balms Of the fronded palms In the hush Of the moonless nights And oh, what beautiful Years were these When our hearts Ching each to each; When life was filled And our senses thrilled In the first faint dawn Of speech! Thus life by life, And love by love, We passed through The cycles strange; And breath by breath, And death by death, We followed the chain Of change. Till there came a time In the law of life When over the nursing sod The shadows broke, And the soul awoke In a strange, Dim dream of God. God wrought our souls From the Tremedoc beds, And furnished them Wings to fly; He sowed our spawn In the world's dim dawn. And I know That it shall not die; Though cities have sprung Above the graves Where the crook-boned Men made war, And the ox-wain creak O'er the buried cave Where the mummied Mammoths are. Then, as we linger At luncheon here, O'er many a dainty dish; Let us drink anew To the time when you Were a Tadpole, And I was a Fish. —Langdon Smith (1858-1908)
