NATIONAL BOY SCOUT Week, February 8-14

Nation-wide recognition will be given the Scout movement next Sunday when scouts will congregate at various churches to observe the 30th anniversary of the organization of scouts. Throughout the years a small, obscure band of youths has grown to a nationwide organization. There is reason for that sensational expansion, good morals, right living, helpfulness, cleanliness, all things that make better, more capable men. It is with pride that we pay tribute to the Boy Scouts.

"Honest Abe" Still Lives In Hearts of Americans

It is an honor for a nation like ours to have the inspirational figure of Abraham Lincoln, and to set aside each year the day of his birth for observance. His every characteristic stands for the ideals of a great nation. Ideals that have built a United States into what is the most powerful and richest nation in the world.

Lincoln had faith in his country, his fellowmen and in the cause for which he fought so gallantly and determinedly. A great man, one who did much to make this a great country, one who will live forever in the hearts of the American people.

BEWARE OF SMOKE

The demand for changes in the Wagner Labor Relations Act has been going on for a long time now. Meanwhile, the public has been increasingly insistent that a revision of the law be made. But so far, the voice of the public hasn't been heeded.

In May, 1938, a Gallup poll disclosed that 62 per cent of the American people wanted the National Labor Relations Act either revised or repealed outright. Today, that percentage has risen to 71 per cent. Meanwhile, investigation by the Smith committee appointed by the House of Representatives, has disclosed numerous "bugs" in the Act and its administration.

While public sentiment is solidly against the Act in its present form, the long delay in doing anything about it has created a condition that is extremely dangerous. The danger lies in the possibility that the whole situation will become so confused that the public may be thwarted.

This might be done in two manners, both of which have been suggested in some sources:

1. Amendments might be put through which are really "dummy changes" and would not accomplish the desired end promoting industrial peace. Some amendments that have been suggested, notably those of the C.I.O. would make the law even more militantly anti-employer than it is at present, and would therefore do all harm and no good.

2. Changes in the personnel of the Board itself might be made with the pretense that these were all that was needed. This would run counter to most of the testimony produced by the current Congressional hearings, which have shown that much of the Board bias has been the result of loose construction permitted by the wording of the Act itself. But the defenders-to-the-death of the Act in its present form might think that they could fool the public anyway.

The public has demonstrated for a long stretch now that it wants the Wagner Act amended. Now, as the time draws nearer when some form of change in Act or Board seems inevitable, is the moment when individual citizens must watch most closely to see that the public's desire is respected. "Eternal vigilance" is a prime necessity—eternal vigilance to guard against smokescreens under cover of which the public will be crossed.

In other words, now is the time to beware of smoke at the nation's capital city!

"MAKING LITTLE FARMS PAY"

By EL. MARTIN

Dr. and Mrs. F. U. Emley of east Metzger came from Belle Plains, Kansas, in 1928 settling near Dundee, Yamhill county, where they resided until 1929 when they moved to Metzger purchasing an acre at east Sixth and Maple, where they had a very nice house built by R. H. Williams. Dr. Emley who retired from the practice of dentistry in Kansas has not followed his profession since coming to Oregon, but devoted his time to the home place in Metzger. He planted some choice shrubs, walnut trees, filberts, has a bumper garden crop every year and for several years has raised choice white New Zealand rabbits and always feeds them for rapid development and extra size.

These rabbits bring in a neat little income continuously through the year, some being sold to order, dressed on the place for people calling at the house, others being delivered all ready to be put into the roaster or broiler and the doctor does a very neat job dressing them, so all his customers say.

There's a difference in the way rabbits are fed—some men feed them properly and others just throw them most anything. The rabbit can be made to starve into eating any ordinary waste stuff, even though harmful to it, but for success in raising rabbits one must provide the best food.

Dr. Emley has wonderful, clean, comfortable quarters for his rabbits and a few men in Oregon have a finer and more attractive rabbitry or better looking rabbits. There is a demand for rabbits for meat but for the common scrub rabbit, no—they do not pay. Raise only the best, feed them right and give them proper care, that all means success.

The big garden, the proceeds from the nut trees and all the fruit he raises, for the family and for market, makes this one acre place pay well. Everything is done here to make things handy when working. They keep just a small flock of R. I. Red hens, extra fine stock, for the family supply of eggs, also have some of the Buff Cochans bantams, real bug catchers. . . . Next week you will learn about a man at Durham who is helping develop the community by putting up nice houses on some of his farm land for men of good position and who is in the purebred hog business.

Multnomah County Bull Wins National Recognition

Peterborough, N. H.—A Multnomah county Guernsey breeder F. M. Arnold, of Portland, Oregon, has just won national recognition on his pure bred Guernsey bull Chiconia Leander 128823.

This bull, having five daughters which have made creditable official records, has been entered in the Advanced Register of The American Guernsey Cattle Club. Chiconia Leander 128823 will be known hereafter as an Advanced Register sire. Only Guernseys which meet high production requirements are eligible for entry. The five daughters which have completed official records are Theo-Vale Hazell 263684, Theo-Vale Edwina 412923, Theo-Vale Aloha Kate 434920, Theo-Vale Kathleen 434921 and Theo-Vale Darnella 470737.

Shumway Doing Well in Tinsmith Business

H. H. Shumway has a very nice home on the Lower Boones Ferry road south of Jean station and for the last few years has had a well equipped tin shop there where he does everything in tinsmithing. He has just installed a furnace in the Dowsy home at Sherwood, a house that is being rebuilt for the owner who also has interests in Dowsy, California, a town named for his folks. Mr. Shumway has been in this line of work many years but the last three years has been in business for himself.

Five hundred grass-root farmers, asked by Senator Arthur Capper, farm paper publisher, what they wanted in national legislation this year, are reported to have agreed almost unanimously upon these points:

They believe soil conservation should be continued, even if other farm program provisions are eliminated.

They want farm interest rates lowered and kept as low as possible.

They oppose reciprocal trade treaties wherein they affect domestic farm production.

They oppose any increase in taxes. Under no circumstances do they want any action which might eventually lead this nation to war.

Many people believe that the President is and always has been wimpy.

They believe he made his "keep-us-out-of-war" gestures, in September and October, because he found public sentiment unexpectedly strong in that direction. If these people are right, Mr. Roosevelt should be well pleased with developments since the lifting of the arms embargo and adoption of cash-and-carry.

Already, the argument is being advanced in Washington that we must extend credit to England and France if we expect to receive war orders. Also, observers point out that the total of appropriations asked of this Congress for the Navy alone, is more than TWO BILLION DOLLARS and that in eight successive budgets, the President has asked for more than five billions of dollars for the navy. These facts bear out predictions of those who opposed changing the Neutrality.

At last, Joseph Stalin, head Red has a real reason for invading Finland. The Finns have been stealing his war materials, guns and tanks. They play too rough.

In every age, there have been those who cried out that the end of progress was at hand. Back in 1844, a U. S. Commissioner of Patents said: "The advancement of the arts, from year to year, . . . seems to presage the arrival of that period when human improvement must end."

That was before the coming of electricity, motor cars, airplanes, radios, motion pictures—even before the sewing machine. Forty-two years later, a Federal Commissioner of Labor said there would not be room for further "extensive development of industry in the present era of civilization."

So—today we have iceless ice, electric eyes opening doors for us, fertilizer from the air, sugar as a building material. And glass half as strong as steel and three times as elastic, is used for bolts, blackboards and wallpaper.

But there still are doubters who think there are no new frontiers in America.

Here are just a few things waiting to be done. Electrification of all homes; increased use of electrical appliances; improved housing; central heating and air conditioning in homes and factories; road improvements for greater speed and safety; stabilization of aircraft; further development of the food industry, with the goal a balanced diet for the entire nation.

These items will represent billions invested by private enterprise. We do not need Government aid or Government spending to do these things. Every working day, $750,000 is being spent for industrial development and research. Shelves of industry are crowded with gadgets and improvements waiting to be developed. All we need is the "Go Ahead" signal. That will come when men with enterprise and money are sure that a sound, businesslike Administration is functioning in Washington, that taxes will not take all their profits, that the budget will be balanced and the national debt cut, instead of boosted. Not before!

The political Love Feast theme, with an undercurrent of sarcasm, continues to develop. The President now has been cordially invited by the DuPage County (Illinois) Republican Central Committee, to attend a Lincoln Day "two bit" dinner, where the speaker's topic will be "How to keep the state from going haywire in a presidential year."

Tax facts: There are 53 hidden taxes in every loaf of bread you buy, 127 in every roast of beef and 205 lurking in the gas tank of your car. When you pay $5.60 for a pair of shoes, $1.60 of it is for taxes. That's almost 30 per cent.

Most film stars are paid by the picture. If an actor gets $100,000 for a picture, Federal taxes take $41,950; if he gets $200,000, taxes take $118,450.

If a Captain of Industry or a star, don't think you can get rid of taxes by dying, because 167 different taxes are involved in that process.

Money that is paid out for taxes cannot be paid as wages or dividends; it cannot be used to expand business, build factories or hire more people.

From Portland, Oregon, comes the story of the harried-looking taxpayer who stopped before the woman with the white apron, collecting coins. "Would you like to help Finnish relief?" she asked courteously. "Who wouldn't like to help finish relief?" the man answered, dropping a quarter into the apron.

S. B. Hall Holstein Picked for All-American

Ormsby Anggie Tilda, who won the Reserve Grand Champions at the National Dairy Show for her owner, S. B. Hall of Troutdale, has been named Reserve All-American aged cow by a committee of 17 eminent dairy cattle judges of United States and Canada in the 18th annual section of All-American Holsteins. The awards have just been announced.

Ninety-two animals were nominated for All-American consideration, all of them winners at state, sectional or national dairy shows in United States, or Class A shows in Canada. Fifteen animals were chosen for All-American, making up an entire show herd with one entry for each class, and the 15 the second choice animals were named Reserve All-Americans. Forty-six others received honorable mention.

"Tilda" was also the popular choice of over 1500 contestants in an All-American Voting Contest sponsored by the Holstein-Friesian World for honors with the Reserve All-American herd. She received votes from 44 states, Canada and Central America.
