OWAIN—The Bard

"REMEMBERING"

War? You ask us that?
We, who've stayed home, watching and waiting,
Not knowing what for,
But hoping and praying, wondering when
Brothers and Fathers would come home again.

We know what it means to have loved ones away,
Hugging our keepsakes, trying to be gay,
Looking for letters, that, come though they may,
Tell us so blithely, "We had more beans today."

We'll never forget how we'd knit and we'd sew,
Softly dropping a tear while perling a row,
Then hastily smiling, we'd rush to the mail,
Only to hear, "Sorry, his ship has set sail."

War? Yes, we know all about hearts standing still,
And we've had the agony, that dreadful chill
(Of a message that's brought on a yellow slip.)
And we've read with tear-dimmed eyes and bated breath,
"He died for his country, an honorable death."

Aye, a thousand deaths we have died—
We know this about war—'tis hell to try
To walk through the black-muck of the battlefield
While staying (home) waiting, we know not for what.

And our hearts will always be skipping a beat
At the sounding of drums and the marching of feet!
War? Don't offer it, all dressed up with glory—
We know, 'neath it all, 'tis hell, grim and gory!
Gladys Rhodes, a Sister

GRADATIM

THE WAY OF LIFE

Heaven is not reached
At a single bound;
But we build the ladder
By which we rise
From the lowly earth
To the vaulted skies,
And we mount to it's summit—
—Round-by-round.

I count this thing
To be grandly true;
That a noble deed
Is a step toward God;
Lifting the soul
From the common clod
To a purer air
And a broader view.

We rise by the things
That are under our feet;
By what we have mastered
Of good and gain;
By the pride deposited
And the passion slain,
And the vanquished ill
That we hourly meet.

We hope, we aspire,
We resolve, we trust,
When the morning calls us
To life and light;
But our hearts grow weary,
And ere the night,
Our lives are trailing
The sordid dust.

We hope, we resolve
We aspire, we pray,
And we think that we mount
The air on wings.
Beyond the recall
Of sensual things,
While our feet still cling
To the heavy clay.

Wings for the angels,
But feet for men!
We may borrow the wings
To find the way—
We may hope and resolve,
And aspire and pray;
But our feet must rise
Or we fall again.

Only in dreams
Is a ladder thrown
From the weary earth
To the sapphire walls;
But the dreams depart,
And the vision falls,
And the sleeper wakes
On his pillow of stone.

Heaven is not reached
At a single bound;
But we BUILD the ladder
By which we rise
From the lowly earth
To the vaulted skies;
And we mount
To its summit—
Round by round.
—Josiah Gilbert Holland.
