Danger Cited Of Expanding Debts

Babson Park, Florida, March 21— I was brought up in a frugal household in which debt was considered a sin. My father always did the family marketing, going personally to the corner grocery and paying cash. As a young man, I can remember but few bills, except for water, gas, or taxes, coming to the house. Even these, my father paid in cash taking back a formal receipt. My father maintained a creditable bank balance, but drew his checks sparingly. He was a generous man; but he had a healthy respect for the value of a dollar. As a result of his influence and example, I have never borrowed a dollar in my life either for business or for personal reasons.

Today, much of our national prosperity, as reflected by larger pay rolls, higher wages, increased retail trade, and a generally larger volume of business, is based upon our expanding debts. Some of our needs are legitimate, real and economically sound; but others are false and should be abandoned. But note the word "expanding". It is not the debt which gives us good business, but

Huber Garden Club Hear Interesting Talk Mar. 11

The Huber Garden Club held its regular meeting Tuesday, March 11th at 8 p. m. in the Aloha Grange hall. Owing to the length of the program, the business meeting was quite brief. We were fortunate in having as our guest speaker Gilbert Miner of the Portland Rose Nursery. His talk was very interesting and the many beautiful colored slides were greatly enjoyed by all.

The club being one year old this month, it was decided upon to decorate the birthday cake to fit the occasion, and so well were the plans carried out, it is almost beyond description. The cake itself was fifteen by eighteen inches and was made to represent a house with lawn and garden. And in order to be a home, it must be planted, so flowers and shrubs were placed in their proper setting. The house was trimmed with green. The walk was red and the lawn was lighted by a lone white candle. All decorating plans were carried out by the use of different types of colored candles and frosting. The members made and decorated the cake to show just what might be learned and done by being a member of a really worth while club.

Mrs. W. E. Borberg and Mrs. B. R. Pooley were in charge of the table decorations, which were so beautifully done. Bouquets were of Spy, rea, Kerri and King Alfred daffodils. By each plate a tiny basket of spring flowers were placed as favors. The baskets were fashioned from lace paper doilies and the bouquet of flowers were made from different colored miniature candies stuck on green tooth picks, and around the baskets were narrow ribbons tied in a bow. They were truly beautiful.

The mixed quartet sang two very appropriate songs. Ninety persons were present.

West Coast Telephone Convert Scholls Exchange

The West Coast Telephone Company plans to convert the Scholls telephone exchange to dial automatic switching at March 20th. Crews have rebuilt and renovated all the outside plant and the new switching equipment has been installed in the Scholls telephone building. As soon as the installation men have changed the telephone instruments and made the necessary tests, the Scholls exchange will be working by dial calls. The Aloha exchange was converted to dial switching in this era 20th. The next exchange in this era slated for a similar conversion is Sherwood after which Beaverton, Stafford and Tigard will follow as rapidly as the equipment can be obtained and the necessary plant changes made. The latest type of automatic switching equipment, manufactured by the Automatic Electric Company of Chicago, is being installed.

Union Stockyard Broadcast News

The marketing to best advantage of Livestock is in many states a battle of wits and watchfulness on the part of the Farmer. That is where the Oregon Farmer—the Tualatin Valley Farmer—has a big advantage. He receives the expert advice and service of the livest, most cooperative and aggressive Livestock Marketing Organization to be found in any state.

That organization is the Portland Union Stockyards in North Portland. The stockyards and all agencies operating on that market are under Government supervision. Government Anti-Mortem Inspection Service is maintained at all times and Federal Market Quotations go forth daily to all producing sections throughout the Pacific Northwest.

The Portland Union Stockyards Company and the Commission Firms at North Portland now bring you over Radio Station KEX "Your Livestock Reporter" to give you the latest and most complete market quotations, together with pertinent advice and helpful suggestions of outstanding value to stockmen.

Radio station KEX now operates on 1160 Kilocycles which will be changed on March 29th to 1190 Kilocycles. Time of the broadcast is 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. daily, Monday through Friday, and your reporter is Harry H. Burdick, Jr.

We take pleasure in calling your attention to the high type of service and cooperation furnished our Valley Farmers by the Portland Union Stockyards. You can ship to the open, competitive market at North Portland in confidence of highest returns and quick, personal service. Because they supply a great number of Packers, Slaughterers and Feeders with all or a substantial part of their livestock needs, competitive buying insures the highest price for your livestock. You can be assured of consistently good returns when you use this market regularly.

The modern stockman follows the market. Follow your market with "Your Livestock Reporter."

Trainees To Register For Re-Employment

Men inducted under the Selective Service Act are requested to register with the Oregon State Employment Service office at the City Hall in Hillsboro on Friday, March 21, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. or at 1130 S. W. Stark street in Portland any time before March 24, in order that they may be assisted in their reemployment upon completion of the training period.

Those who have previously registered with the Employment Service should renew such registration at once, according to Reuben W. Weill, chairman of board No. 1. Those registering should have their Social Security card or Employment Service identification with them.
