Road Opened

Pick up and follow the crowd out past the city this April day in a year of the long ago. You come to a hill where these Romans who have taken the country, crucify such as break the law. Even now, outlined against the sky are three of their crosses. Nailed to the beams hang the condemned who must suffer until merciful death sets them free.

You note the One in the center cross? So torn is His face that it no more looks like that of a man. Before they had nailed Him there the whipping master had laid on. He spared no strength as his lash, tipped with sharp brass, tore down to the very bone. Centuries before, the Prophet Isaiah had seen that smear of blood and the horror of it—"I gave my back to the smiters," the Prophet makes Christ say,—"and my cheeks to them that pulled out the hair; I hid my face from the shame and spitting." Isaiah 50:6 and 52:14.

Sum it up. Roman soldiers at the foot of the cross, casting lots for His seamless garment; Jewish leaders sneering; the mockers scoffing—"He saved others, Himself He cannot save," they cry. And many a one of us was there in that—"His own self, bare our sins in His own body on the tree."—Bible.

And God was there. From all eternity he had set this as the hour when he would clear the road that leads down to human wreckage. So it is that on this the greatest of all days he cleanses away the sins of the wretch lower down. He blots them out that in all righteousness he might be free to impart his own joy, cheer, peace, wisdom, holiness, truth, gentleness, sterness and all else that is in the almightiness of God.

Sinful man, raise your eyes. You sons who have made a mess of the business of living, look up. With your sins put away, shall any forbid the God of mercy to write your name in his Book of Life? Shall he not now put his Spirit into your heart to make you Christ-like, within and without? Shall he not lift you up beside the throne itself? Christ, the Son paid it all and by the glorious power of the Father was raised back and given His place at the right hand of God and are not His redeemed to be with Him forever? Great the day when we let God add his all to our little nothingness. O Happy day that fixed my choice on Thee; My Savior and my God.

Dean Taylor.

 falcatious by employees. Riot insurance would also come under this heading.

In the case of losses not covered by insurance, we must consider the direct losses suffered by private citizens from crimes against property which would include arson, malicious mischief, theft and robberies from railroads, express, and similar companies, which carry their own insurance.

Loss in Human Values

Losses due to crimes against the person, such as homicides and wounding and sex offenses, form a large item in any tabulated cost of crime. In homicides, there is a direct loss to the community of the victim's services as a human asset and to the victim's family there is a loss of income. In wounding and mayhem, there is a resultant economic loss to the victim and cost of hospitalization, together with the loss of earning power to his family and to the community at large.

Under sex offenses would come prostitution. Although it is quite possible to estimate the actual loss that might be incurred, still there is bound to be an economical loss to the family of the prostitute as the economic loss to the family of the earning power of the family is decreased thereby. Commercialized fraud, organized extortion, and racketeering losses due to the use of mails to defraud cover a tremendous amount of the tribute paid by society annually in these phases of criminal activity.

35% of Administration Taxes

The cost of administration of criminal justice is a large item in the cost of crime. This, of course, would include Federal, state, county, and city courts. The salaries of officials, guards, and other employees of penal institutions, plus the upkeep of the prisons, correctional institutions, reformatories, and asylums must also be taken into consideration and this, of course, would include Federal county, city, and private. All of these costs are paid by citizens and amount to about 35% of our state taxes.

Private expenditures for protection against crime, such as most commercial companies have found necessary, must be considered in the cost of crime. This would include their own investigators, detectives and guards, armored car service for the transportation of money and valuables to and from banks and commercial houses, also certain auditors, bookkeepers, and overhead.

Private citizens suffer heavy losses as victims of gambling or other illegal enterprises, through the bribery of public officials and police officers. These crimes cause alliances to grow up between crooked politicians and organized racketeers and it is the citizen who must pay through taxes for any graft practiced by unethical officer-holders and public servants. Another large loss is suffered by honest commercial firms when they are forced to pay tribute to one racketeering organization for "protection" from other racketeering organizations.

Over $15,000,000,000 in All

Also in the category of indirect losses must be considered the earning power of criminals at large and the earning power of prisoners who are already incarcerated in the penal institutions. When we consider that all these have, to some degree, an earning power which has been diverted from the potential productive class to the "burden" class to be taken care of through taxation, the cost of crime becomes tremendous.

On June 24, 1931, a report prepared under the direction of the National Commission on Law Enforcement and Enforcement entitled, "Report on the Cost of Crime" was published and copies of this report can be obtained from the United States Government Printing Office. The footnotes contained on page 70 of this report reflects an estimated cost of crime and mention is made of an article which appeared in the New York Herald-Tribune of March 21, 1931, which estimated the cost of crime at $18,000,000,000 per year.

This is my solution for the tax problem, the government debt problem, and many other problems.

Oyster Bar Enlarged Again

FRANK DAVIS

Dan & Louis Oyster Bar at SW Second and Ankeny Streets in Portland has again been enlarged. This nationally famous and unique sea food restaurant has enjoyed an ever increasing patronage from year to year.

Louis Wachsmuth, proprietor and sea food specialist, has studied the culture of oysters for many years and has been the motivating force for developing the famous Yaquina Bay oyster beds. These oysters, which grow only on the coast, are considered by most gourmets to be the best oysters in America. Mr. Wachsmuth's Oregon Oyster Company supplies Yaquina Oysters to famous hotels throughout the United States, a few of which include the Waldorf-Astoria, Los Angeles, Biltmore and Palmer House.

The Oregon Oyster Company operated for many years as a wholesale firm and the unique Dan and Louis Oyster Bar just naturally grew through public demand. Passers-by stopped to watch the oysters being opened at the Oregon Oyster Company windows, and in a few minutes, asked if they might purchase an oyster cocktail. As a matter of courtesy, a cocktail was furnished the passer-by. As these passers-by returned again and again, many suggested that an oyster stew would also be just the dish to hit the spot. Gradually the Oyster Bar increased selections until various dishes, including crab and shrimp delicacies, were added to the succulent oyster. As the dishes increased, additional space was added until the Dan & Louis Oyster Bar is the largest seafood restaurant in this section of the country.

When Mr. Wachsmuth decided to enter the restaurant business seriously, he decided that the interior scheme should carry out the food idea by means of nautical decorations. Portholes, panneling, overhead beams, nooks, pictures, paintings and fittings all create an interior such as you would find in the finer seagoing yachts. Now the last enlargement includes use of a hull complete with bowsprit and mermaid figurehead, funnel and superstructure to make up the nautical service bar—completely the truly colorful atmosphere of Portland's most famous eating place.

People from far and wide enjoy the succulent seafood lunches and dinners at this famous eating place and, as old patrons introduce their friends to the Dan & Louis Oyster Bar, the word spreads and the walls bulge with diners. We wonder wonder how long it will be before the bar will again need enlargement. Probably not for some time after this last enlargement—but eventually—for the place just naturally grows and grows.

Mr. Louis Wachsmuth has created an Oregon industry at Yaquina Bay whereby oysters second to none, and superior to any other in the writer's opinion, which will live long after Mr. Wachsmuth retires from business. Oregon industries are created by men who are willing to pioneer and follow through on what they believe. Mr. Wachsmuth is to be complimented on the success he has achieved through belief in Oregon and following through on his idea.
