It Does Happen Here

One night last summer, so-called "harmless brush fires" merged in the edge of Westimber, Oregon, and half an hour later the little community looked as you see it in this stark photograph, taken next morning.

New "City of Beaverton" Bus Christened Wednesday Evening By Queen Margaret Fox

W. T. STRATTON
The Oregon Motor Stages new streamlined bus had a bottle of liquid broken over its hub and was officially christened "City of Beaverton" by Queen Margaret Fox, on Wednesday evening at the high school grounds.
Master of ceremonies for the evening was Dr. J. R. Talbert who introduced R. W. Lemen, of the Oregon Motor Stages. Mr. Lemen made a token presentation of the streamliner to the city and the gift was graciously accepted by Mayor Rossi who went on to say that the fine transportation system now available to our residents was as essential for growth as good schools and roads.
Queen Margaret and her two princesses, Delores Berg and Anna May Long, were presented with corsages by Barbara Sherman. Following this the Fixible company, builders of the streamliner gave Mayor Rossi, R. W. Lemen and M. A. Reed, miniature bronze replicas of the bus.
The "City of Beaverton" will carry a plaque with Beaverton advertising as long as it is in service.
To round off a pleasant evening the Oregon Motor Stages gave the queen and the two princesses round trip tickets to Seaside.

Library Board Thanks Queen Contestants

The community owes a debt of gratitude to Mesdames Bruce Steele, Ted Hetu and Ron Lamont for their fine work in fostering and managing the queen for bus christening contest for the benefit of the library fund.
Miss Margaret Fox was announced as having the highest number of votes for queen, followed by Miss Delores Berg, Anna May Long, Audrey Graham and Miss Thompson.
The library board thank the committee and the contestants for the $50.50 raised by this contest, which will be a welcome addition to the library's allotment of $250 from the City of Beaverton.

Dr. Richardson Reopens In Montgomery Wards

For many years a familiar landmark in the Montgomery Ward store has been the optical department operated by the genial Dr. Richardson. An expert in his profession, Dr. Richardson brought help to thousands with optical deficits. His practice became very large and his friends legion. With the closing of the Montgomery Ward store, Dr. Richardson opened temporary offices in the Morgan building to take care of the needs of his patients. Since Montgomery Wards has reopened however, we see Dr. Richardson back in the same location. It was a pleasant sight to us and we know it will be welcome news to his many friends and patrons in the Tualatin Valley.

PGE Reports Failures In Service Due to Hay Being Caught in Wires

"In the winter it's ice and snow, in the spring and fall it's wind, and now it's hay," declared M. E. Dunston, Portland General Electric Company's local manager yesterday.
Dunston was referring to the fact that his company suffers service failures when its lines are downed or shorted from any of the foregoing causes. During July and August, during haying season, on hot afternoons especially little whirlwinds pick up the hay and lodge it in trees and wires. The dry hay isn't particularly dangerous to the lines, but when dampened by dew or rain, it becomes a definite hazard.
"We have had a number of service outages this summer because of hay in our lines," reports Dunston. "Failures in service from this cause have occurred in the Dayton and Willamina districts, and in the St. Helens, Molalla, Silverton, Mount Angel, and Woodburn areas."
Naturally PGE is anxious to avoid service failures, says Dunston, and asks that anyone seeing hay in the lines, notify PGE immediately (telephoning the company collect if necessary) so it may remove the hay before it does any damage.

Dorothy Seus Top In Queen Contest

Dorothy Seus, candidate of the Liesville Ladies club for Harvest Queen of the Washington county fair, retained her lead in the race of seven despite a late start. In the county Friday afternoon standings of the other candidates were as follows: Lois York, 97,000; Marjorie Will 70,000; Beatrice Hite 66,000; Gerry Raines 52,000. An intense battle seems to be developing in the Harvest Queen race between at least two of the girls, while reports have not been made by One Joyce Cacy and Rose Angela DiLoreto to date.

Committees of the Junior Women's club, sponsors of the Harvest Queen contest, were busily engaged this week in preparing the ward-robe for the royal court, filling the queen's treasure chest, and preparing for the fiesta program which will greet the queen at her coronation.

When the Fair opens Wednesday night August 27, newcomers in Washington county will be given a rousing welcome, according to preliminary plans made at a meeting of the county-wide welcome committee, held in the County Court room with more than 50 members of the big committee present from all parts of the county.

The committee elected Finis Brown of Laurel, chairman of the program committee, Walter Upshaw, Tigard chairman of the reception committee, Mayor L. B. Drake, of Forest Grove, charge of invitations, and Mayor J. E. Morback of Sherwood to head up the mayor's committee for official invitations to townspeople and city officials of towns outside of Washington County. On Mayor Morback's committee will be Mayor Albert Rossi, Beaverton, John Nyberg, Tualatin, William Moore, Banks, Cecil Koberstein, Gaston, Byron Mooberry, Cornelius, L. B. Drake, Forest Grove and Hugh Rogers, Hillsboro.

Visitors to the fair on the opening night will find an almost complete change in buildings and grounds in the construction of an administration building, a second story in the 4-H club building, all buildings repaired and an erection of a burglar proof fence around the front section of the property. Inside the grounds streets have been laid out and graded, and a covered passage constructed connecting the farmers' union and 4-H buildings making it possible for crowds to remain under cover in case of rain.

War or Peace Stocks? Babson Urges Diversification Method

American Legion state Baseball Tournament Aug. 9-10 at Hillsboro

With the city of Hillsboro designated at the last minute as site for the American Legion Junior state baseball tournament on Saturday and Sunday, August 9 and 10, plans for the two-day sports event are being pushed ahead at break-neck speed under guidance of Ed. L. Moore, general chairman, and local committees. Ample and comfortable housing accommodations are being arranged for all visiting Junior League baseball players and adequate hotel facilities will be found by others who come for the two days.

A free baseball entertainment program at Shute park, located across the highway from the Legion ball park, is being considered as a possible added feature of the program on Sunday, August 10. The entertainment would be open to the public.

Each day of the state tournament will see all four finalist teams in action, making two double-header programs. The state tourney entrants, champions in their respective districts, will represent the city of Portland, the Willamette Valley section, Southern Oregon and Eastern Oregon.

Washington County Contributes 1619 Lbs In Aluminum Drive

Washington county's Aluminum for Defense drive was officially closed this week as county trucks gathered the scrap metal from large and small communities according to schedule.

Trucks brought in 1619 pounds of the white metal on Monday and stored in a safe place in Hillsboro awaiting shipment to Portland. Comparable piles of discarded pots and pans were added to the first day's haul with pick-ups on Tuesday and Wednesday.

In addition, there are sizable piles up at Hillsboro, Cornelius and Forest Grove. In these communities, of the metal waiting to be picked located on a main highway, aluminum will be picked up directly by large truck companies volunteering in this defense service.

County truck collections at other communities on the Tualatin highway—Reedville, Aloha and Beaverton—were included in the pickups schedule in order to cut down on the number of stops that would have to be made by the commercial trucks, it was explained this week by L. L. MacIntyre, county engineer, in charge of the county pickup.

Calling attention to the national defense importance of the aluminum drive, County Chairman C. T. Richardson this week issued a public statement of thanks to all organizations and individuals throughout the county who have contributed in any way to the satisfactory results of the metal-producing campaign.

No definite word has been received, meanwhile, as to when the aluminum will be picked up for shipment to Portland and thence to the smelters.

New Subdivision Opened for Sale

Howell tract, a new subdivision, has just been opened for sale by Clara B. French, exclusive sales agent. It is located on Canyon drive, overlooking the Multnomah Country club addition, and five miles from the city center.

In the tract are five building sites, each having a broad view of the Tualatin valley, Coast range and adjoining territory. Restricted, and all city conveniences, these lots range in size from 1-3 to ¼ acre.

Sale of sites in this new tract will be rapid, Mrs. French believed, due to their closeness to Portland and conveniences offered.

Babson Park, Mass., Aug. 8.—Investors of the United States and of Canada are beginning to wonder whether they should begin to hedge by buying "peace" stocks. Obviously the answer largely depends upon the duration of the War and the kind of "peace" which comes. If it is an armed peace, then the present war industries will continue prosperous for some time; but if it is a real peace, then look out for terrific industrial changes!

War Industries
Probably the first to be hit would be the aircraft manufacturers. The largest steel companies, such as U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, and large textile manufacturers, such as American Woolen and Pacific Mills, may also suffer. Manufacturers of munitions, and especially the big machine-tool people and the anthracite coal producers, expect to get in a bump. As to what will happen to retail trade is very debatable. Priorities and price fixing will not prevent a shortage of such goods; but may not such a shortage make people then scramble to buy them or something else?

Personally, I am very bearish on almost all railroads following the War, especially after the reconstruction period. This must apply to such companies as are now prospering from war orders. If the rails are to suffer, then one should expect declines in the rail-equipment industry companies such as Pullman, Baldwin, and American Car and Foundry. The same may apply to shipbuilding. Reading the newspapers, one would think that 50% of United States industrial energy is given to war work. Yet, statistics show that only about 10% is so engaged. What the Canadian figure is, I do not know.

Peace Industries
On the other hand, it seems as if it would keep all the window-glass manufacturers of the world busy for years to re-glass Europe and Great Britain! The movies should also do a great business after the War. The air-transportation lines should do better than ever, while the chemicals, such as du Pont, Eastman, Union Carbide, Monsanto, American Cyanamid, etc., should do well. Some bankers are also recommending the electrical-equipment and food industries as good peace stocks; but I am not too sure.

As to what will happen to the automobile industry,—this is anyone's guess. After the War, the industry will lose war business and increase pleasure-car sales; but labor and other factors may interfere. There is also much disagreement as to how peace will affect our export business.

Cedar Mills Named for Cedar Sawmill of John Quincy Adams Young

ROY L. DAVIDSON
Talk of hardships and harrowing experiences endured by sturdy pioneers who ox teamed their way across the Great Plains to the Oregon country—and they all suffered plenty of privations—but there's bound to come up the name of the Youngs. John Quincy Adams Young is the name best known to old timers of eastern Washington and Multnomah counties. It was he who settled Cedar Mills and gave to that now thriving farm community its name. He operated one of those early day up-and-downer sawmills right up there along the Cornell Road, about where the pond and park is to-day.

The mill that Young owned specialized in sawing cedar shingles and lumber. That's where they got it—the name, Cedar Mills, from that old sawmill. And they say that it supplied the shingles for many an early day home in Portland; that some of the best homes in the city were roofed with shingles turned out by John Quincy Adams Young.

His father was Dr. Elam Young, a very patriotic gentleman who saw service and was wounded in the war of 1812. The Youngs were residents of Ohio and it was from there that Elam Young gathered his family and property together and began the long trek that would eventually end in Washington County, Oregon.

The westward start was made in the early spring of 1846, and John Q. A. Young was at the time a lad of 19. From the very first the Youngs began to experience trouble. Misfortune.
