

Dr. Norman Johnson Opens New Veterinary Hospital In Beaverton

Panhorst & Dugan, designers and architect, who planned and supervised the new Johnson Veterinary Hospital at Beaverton, have many modern homes to their credit in the West Hills district and all over Portland as well.

Elimination of waste space in interiors and careful planning in construction are a feature of importance to present-day home builders. Make the money spread over as much construction work as is sanely within reason and make use of every bit of interior space in the dwelling appears to be the motto of Ralph E. Panhorst, designer and Donald L. Dugan, architect, who make up the personnel of this firm.

Their headquarters are at 2713 N. E. Gantenbein avenue, Portland.

Robert S. Burnside, owner of the Beaverton Lumber company furnished all the building materials. All lumber and material in the new veterinary hospital are of the highest grade and the completed job is the best reference for the Beaverton Lumber company to show the high standard of their material. Mr. Burnside has completely remodeled his office and it is now finished.

Walls and ceilings have been covered with Masonite planks, floors sparkle like those of a ballroom, and the private office has been glassed in to the ceiling. Shelves have been arranged around the walls to enhance the display of merchandise and counter arrangement lend much to the display room utility. The Masonite plank walls and ceilings would look well in anyone's party room and this material is fine for office and business use because of the noise deadening features.

Williamette Blind & Manufacturing company, C. E. Brown, proprietor, furnished the Venetian blinds throughout the building. This company is located on Walker road, near the N. W. Christian Home for the Aged, is always glad to give a free estimate and expert advice concerning type and color of wood or metal blinds for your home or business. The business has grown very rapidly and employs several men. The Venetian blinds in the new veterinary hospital three-plex, lend a homey, soothing atmosphere to the interior and improves the appearance to pass-ser-by.

Mr. Brown also installed the Venetian blinds in the new King apartments, just completed, at Third and Washington streets, Beaverton.

Beaverton Sheet Metal Works provided all sheet metal work throughout the building in addition to sheet metal work pertaining to air-conditioning. Outstanding is the oil burner installation A. Wesco Highboy, in sparkling white finish. Special air conditioning assures, at all times, clean fresh air in the office and surgery at Dr. Johnson's new veterinary hospital.

Ed. L. Bauman, proprietor of this firm specializes on all types of heating, air-conditioning and general sheet metal work, including skylights and the manufacture and repair of dairy equipment. His concern handles gas oil, wood and sawdust heating equipment, sales and service.

Dewey The Plumber, has been continuously in business in Beaverton for over 14 years. In addition to hot water, range and refrigerator installation in the new veterinary hospital Mr. Drorbaugh installed all plumbing throughout the building.

When it comes to plumbing Dewey either has it or he can get it, as he carries the largest supply in the county. Mr. Drorbaugh handles sales and installations of water pumps and automatic water heaters and knows how to do a good job of plumbing installation.

Howard D. Fuller, Hillsboro painter and decorator, added his professional touch in bringing out the beauty of the interior and preserving the beauty lines of the exterior of Johnson's new veterinary hospital.

Mr. Fuller also did the painting and decorating on the Carr apartments, the Beaverton school, Bob Summers new home, the Fisher apartments and many other outstanding jobs in the valley.

N. P. Johnson, builder, contractor, is to be highly complimented on the finished workmanship noticeable throughout. Every minor detail has been completed with care in this new veterinary hospital.

Mr. Johnson has had wide experience as a building contractor. He constructed the new home for Tony Trochael on Walker Road across from the Barnes school. The Trochael dwelling was started shortly after the roof was started on Mrs. Fisher's three-plex. Mr. Johnson built the Barnes school and Bethany Baptist church in 1928. He also supervised construction of the Beaverton Masonic Temple two years ago and is constructing two suburban residences at the present time. In fact, Mr. Johnson has homes and modern dairy barns scattered throughout Washington county.

G. L. Germeyer of Tigard, installed the electrical outlets in Dr. Johnson's new veterinary hospital at Beaverton. The work, as completed, is a fine tribute to modern craftsmanship and meets all safety requirements. Mr. Germeyer specializes in electrical wiring, installations and repairing over a wide area in the Tualatin Valley.

While as yet not completed, a fine job of landscaping will set off the new Johnson Veterinary hospital. The work will be completed during early spring. The West Slope Landscape Co. will decorate the grounds. Perennials and annuals will be planted, so arranged that a fine color scheme will greet the eye of passers-by.

Milo J. Harris of West Slope Landscape Co. located at West Slope, has completed some fine local jobs and will specialize in installing and servicing installations throughout the Tualatin Valley.

Dr. Norman E. Johnson, veterinarian, is to be congratulated on his new veterinary office, established in Beaverton.

The modern structure, representing an investment of more than $10,000 comprises the latest in building designs and equipment, all going toward completing one of the most modernly equipped veterinary offices in the northwest.

Dr. Johnson, in discussing the new premises, stated to the effect that a small animal hospital, in the Tualatin valley was an absolute necessity.

Every facility for professional care for small animals is available in the new building. Not overlooking the influx of racing greyhounds to their home kennels in the Tualatin Valley and the fact that owners of these racing dogs demand the best when hospitalization is necessary, Dr. Johnson has prepared his new quarters to offer every facility for the best of professional care for these and all other small animals in need of treatment or hospitalization.

Special attention will be given to the treatment of large animals. The fine dairy herds located in the Tualatin Valley and the influx of saddle horses in goodly numbers has been the big factor in causing Dr. Norman Johnson to establish his modern office at Beaverton. The new office is located on the main highway, just west of Beaverton junction. The phone is Beaverton 3511.

Dr. Johnson is assisted by Mrs. Johnson, who is in charge of the medical department catering to the farmers medical needs for livestock.

Hot water has a major role in the operations of the new Canyon Road Veterinary hospital just completed here for Dr. Norman E. Johnson, owner and operator.

One of the main uses will be for bathing the dogs and cats and other animals in the hospital—they respond to warm baths just like human beings. Hot water is used to keep the kennels, surgery, examination rooms sparkling clean for cleanliness in an animal hospital is as important as in any other kind, says Dr. Johnson.

The abundant supply of hot water required for the hospital and the residence adjoining is provided by the latest type of automatic gas storage water heater, installed by Dewey The Plumber. It furnishes hot water at the correct temperature for the many uses here.
