Retailers To Register For Sugar Ration

All grocers, retailers and wholesalers, the trade handling sugar for resale, must register at their nearest high school April 28 and 29 under sugar rationing plans announced this week.

The trade will be asked to fill out forms as to gross business and sugar sales upon which their sugar quotas for the month of May will be determined. When this quota is established they will be issued a certificate for the purchase of their base sugar stocks.

All sugar sales will be frozen for a week beginning April 28 while this registration and stocking up is being completed.

Principals of high schools are held responsible for the trade registration, April 28 and 29, according to a joint statement issued this week by Elmer L. Johnson, rationing board chairman, and E. W. Barnes, county school superintendent, in charge of sugar rationing supplies.

The trade registration, the announcement stated, includes retailers, wholesalers, institutions, industrial users, hotels, restaurants, manufacturers, canning factories, boarding houses, bakeries, candy makers, large ranches where a boarding house situation prevails, school cafeterias, hospitals and all clubs and organizations.

All supplies were sent out from Superintendent Barnes' office to all high schools by Wednesday. Rationing officials Johnson and Barnes point out that all people interested in the trade registration should get their blanks at the high schools, so that they may study them, fill them out and have them returned April 28 or 29.

Washington county people will register for the nation-wide sugar rationing program at elementary schools in the county May 4 to 7.

Under the new rationing, no member of a family can register for an entire family. This registration covers only blood relatives. Boarders, maids, guests and others must each register for their own books.

Those registering for war rationing stamps will be asked to declare the amount of sugar in the family's possession. If this supply is in excess of the family's rationed allowance they will not be issued stamps but will be registered for war rationing.

The books will be known as war ration books and not sugar rationing books. Each member of a family, even a six weeks old child, is entitled to a book. The books will contain 28 stamps. A half pound of sugar has been established as one week's supply per individual.

The stamps will not be designated as sugar rationing stamps, but war ration stamps and may cover other commodities. Stamps not used during the designated two months period will be voided and will not be usable after the final date.

Consumers wishing to buy sugar, are warned not to tear the stamps from their books. The books must be presented to retailers, who will tear out the stamps covering the purchase.

Home canners will be asked to inform their local rationing boards of the amount of sugar needed for home canning.

Under the proposed regulations application for war ration book 1, will technically be on a voluntary rather than compulsory basis. No person is required to register or to obtain a war ration book, but failure to do so will make impossible the purchase of any sugar.

All persons should be encouraged to register during the registration period and the serious inconvenience and hazard involved in late registration should be stressed.

Grain Storage Situation Grave Problem, Emergency Measures Seem Necessary

Oregon's acute grain storage situation, as revealed at the special meeting of northwest grainmen in Portland last week, was called to the attention of Washington county wheat growers in a statement released yesterday by the county AAA office.

Unless emergency measures are taken within the next 60 days, at least half of Oregon's estimated 17 million bushels 1942 wheat crop—and it may be even larger—will have no place to go at harvest time.

Whether or not a good portion of the crop will have to be piled on the ground depends largely on the amount of storage space farmers themselves can provide.

Commercial warehouses and elevators are filled 75 percent of capacity with last year's crop. Most of the 18 million bushel carryover, plus three million more bushels in farm storage will still be here when the new crop is harvested.

Commodity Credit will not be able to make much of a dent in the pile, despite programs to release wheat for conversion into alcohol, feeding to livestock and grinding into flour for land-lake shipment.

The supply of new sacks will be extremely limited. Burlap imports—all from India—have been stopped by the war. Present supplies will have to last for the duration, and the Army has first call on burlap for sandbags and camouflage.

Shortage of metals makes construction of new warehouse and elevator space extremely difficult. However, War Production Board representatives have given assurance that nails, lumber and limited amounts of other materials needed for construction of small, non-fireproof farm storage facilities will be available.

The county AAA office asks each grower to find out at once whether or not their local warehouse will be able to handle his crop. If the warehouse will not have facilities available, growers should plan now to provide storage for their own grains.

John W. Kamna, chairman of the county AAA committee, asks growers to give consideration to the acute storage situation when they vote at the May 2 referendum on wheat quotas. Oregon's condition is not unique, he points out—present U. S. wheat supplies are sufficient to make 588 loaves of bread for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Roy Stuart Opens Switch For First Train

Roy Stuart popular section foreman on the Oregon Electric Ry. for many years, had the honor, last Friday noon of opening the switch at Bebug (Old S. P. Car Shops) for the first O-E freight train to pass over the S. P. cut off track between Beaverton and Tigard.

Negotiations and work for the past year between the Hill lines and the S. P. Co. have finally given the O-E trains a good grade and shortened the haul over three miles between Beaverton-Tigard-Tualatin, the three great railroad centers of Eastern Washington county.

Recently a new water tank with a capacity of 50,000 gallons has been erected just east of the O-E depot at Beaverton and water is being furnished from the mains of Beaverton's municipal water system.

The Oregon Electric in the near future will lay 90 lb steel rails between Beaverton and Gresham to replace the old 70 lb rails in use for a long time. Also will raise the track about four inches using 700 yards of ballast per mile. Roy Stuart foreman at present has a crew of eight men including Martin Doeschler former Chief of Police at Cornelius, later residing at Beaverton in section "No. 7" under Jim Hannehan where Doeschler and Hannehan were prominent politicians.

Roy Stuart is a good railroad man so the company gave him 34 miles of track, more or less, to look after Forest Grove, North Plains, Garden Home and way points, which is sure plenty for any hand car crew! Section men nowadays receive over four bucks per day and the boss $150 per month and one week holiday per year with pay—not bad!

The old road bed between Beaverton, Whitford, Garden Home, Multnomah, and Garden Home, Metzger, and Greenburg will be abandoned. Senator Fisher of Washington county, advocates that the counties of Multnomah and Washington obtain possession of the right of way for a new highway between Beaverton, Whitford, Garden Home, Ryan Place, Multnomah and Garden Home, Metzger, Greenburg, Tigard. Fisher is asking strong organized support from the above named communities for this proposed new highway—Now is the time for united action.

Eastern Washington county and auto traffic demands this new highway.

Judge Kerkman Endorses Boys', Girls' Aid Drive

Judge H. D. Kerkman of Washington county has wholeheartedly endorsed the work of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society of Oregon and its county-wide fund-raising appeal to open on May 1.

Citing the support of the society's program as "the responsibility and the privilege" of Washington county citizens, Judge Kerkman issued the following statement:

"The Boys' and Girls' Aid society as a child welfare organization has been giving service to the people of our state for more than half a century. Nearly 7500 Oregon children, from all parts of the state, have been cared for by the organization during the years since its establishment. It is the responsibility and the privilege of the citizens in our county to support its program of home finding and child placing."

"As judge of the Washington county court, I am glad to endorse the society's fund-raising campaign."

During the year 1941 a total of 180 days care was provided dependent children from Washington county by the Boys' and Girls' Aid.

A state-wide child welfare agency, the society cares for more than 350 homeless children. Fifty-five percent of its wards, nearly 200 children, are sent to the BGAS from counties other than Multnomah. The organization functions as a child-placing and home-finding agency, supplying foster or private family home care for each of the 350 boys and girls under its supervision. Board is paid the foster parents, clothing is furnished, and medical and dental service provided by the society.

Purpose of the fund-raising appeal is to meet the increased needs of the nearly 200 children from counties other than Multnomah. The drive is organized on a state-wide basis with a separate campaign unit in each of 35 counties. Multnomah county children are supported through the Portland Community Chest.

County Democratic Ticket Incomplete, Will Name Candidates

Washington County democrats despite having the March 30 filing deadline pass without placing a complete ticket in the field are planning to use the write-in route at the May 15 election to name candidates for county positions, it was learned Monday.

A county wide party pre-election rally was held on Monday night, May 11, at Hillsboro, when a slate will be drawn for an organized write-in campaign according to A. H. Abts of Hillsboro, county democratic chairman.

Democratic candidates for state and district offices are expected to attend a rally and invitations are being sent to a large number of registered bourgeois, including ex-precinct committee members, the party head declared, only two filings for positions in this county were made by democrats, Ralph W. Peoples of Beaverton, secretary of the C. I. O., Oregon Industrial union, is seeking nomination for county representative, and Graham Young, Tigard, is a candidate for county coroner.

Another representative seat and the offices of county commissioner, treasurer and surveyor to date have no democratic aspirants.
