What You Buy With WAR BONDS

When the American Expeditionary Force landed in Ireland recently newspapers reported the citizenry remarked at the similarity of the steel helmets worn by our boys with those worn by German troops. These steel hats are protection from shrapnel fragments and other light missiles. We need thousands of them for they are a regular issue to every American soldier.

A smart strap fastens under the chin and they are padded for comfort. One steel helmet costs $5 so every time you fill a $5 stamp book you are buying protection for an American soldier. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day. Help your community reach its War Bond Quota. U. S. Treasury Department

Sleeps Under Airplanes

Hello Folks:

Dawggon: if I didn't sleep the other night protected by three airplanes a swingin' over me all night! It wuz in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Lentz, Seminole, Okla., where one of the biggest oil fields in the world spouts the Black Gold. Mr. Lentz is manager in one of the refineries. They are ole friends of mine but not so powerful old! They have a son who made a model miniature airplane last winter and won first prize in the High School Contest in that line. The prize wuz a fine miniature model plane and he got another one some place. So you see how it wuz possible fer me to sleep in the boys room while he wuz away with all them planes over me all night! His room is a real nice room. As nice as any in the house.

You know that is the way to encourage your boy to make somethin' out of himself. You see I wuz in a safe place that night. Well, I feel that we all ought to buy more War Bonds and make the world safer. BARB WIRE BILL

HER FACE TOLD IT

Florence Logan worked her way through the U. of W. as society reporter on the Seattle morning paper, the Post-Intelligencer. At graduation she was voted the high student in scholarship, personality and campus influence. This put her into the exclusive Greek-Letter society. For her installation, Seattle's swanky hotel, the OLYMPIC, was chosen.

But let her father tell it.

First came the banquet, he recalled. Then the induction into the Greek-Letter order and after that the ball: all in her honor. She declined the dance numbers and after a time father and daughter left for home.

Language work in the Bible Institute at Los Angeles next called Miss Logan. From there she sailed for China to enter mission work. After some time in China, two native girls sought her out with a question—"We have been studying your face as you pass our place. You have something that we want. It shows in your face. What is it and how can we get it?" So they asked.

Now that something was just this—it was the Wisdom-Joy-Cheer-Hope-Strength-Mercy-Justice-Truth-Goodness of the Living Christ. Like many another who has yielded their all over to Him and enthroned Him in their heart, this missionary could say with the Apostle. It is no longer I that live, but CHRIST LIVETH IN ME.

How is all this brought to pass? First, God has a leading part—almost the whole part, we might say. To begin with, there is our page in the book of his remembrance. This he must cleanse. The record of sin must be blotted out. For love to us, God gave Christ to die for us; to blot out our sins. For the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin.

With the life-page made clean and fit, God can now receive us into his eternal family. Florence Logan or you or I or whosoever will, may come. The instant we come as repentant sinners, claiming Christ as Savior, God breathes himself into our soul. This is the new birth. From that instant, no matter how often we fail him, he will be true to us forever and forever.

The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit. And EXCEPT A MAN BE BORN AGAIN, HE CANNOT SEE THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

These words are life unto life and death unto death. Which for you?

Yesterday Is Tomorrow

BY RUTH TAYLOR

Life is but a collection of memories. By what do we measure time? Not by the swift passage of the years but by intangible, long-remembered scenes, sounds and scents. The brown depths of a little stream seen from a car window brings back the brown-depted quiet pools of half-forgotten woodlands long ago.

The great oak towers in the quiet field. There was once another friendly tree that swarmed with happy children. Our memories are of simple things—laughter, peace, the carefree summer days, tiger lilies flaunting by the roadside, hollyhocks straight against a wall. Since yesterday it is so long ago.

There are those who bewail the passing of time. There are those who feel that in the new purposeful world there will be no time for little things. But they misinterpret the signs.

We fight for one reason only—that we may return to those things that men call little, but which are after all the great things of life. Only this time we will cleave closer to the creed that these simple happinesses are the right of all—and at the end we will see to it that they are the lot of all.

It was not the Germans of the old school, steeped in the quiet peace of gemütlich living, who followed Hitler—but the young whose lives had been warped by war, who grew up without traditions and without the pride of stainless honor. The collapse of France came along before the fall of France. The Chinese, however, fight on because they have known from birth that what has been will be again.

We failed at Pearl Harbor because we had forgotten. But once our memories awoke, not to vainglorious thoughts of Yorktown, Trenton and Manila but to Valley Forge, to the Alamo, to Gettysburg, then we rallied and stood firm.

All of which we are sure lies in the past. The strong, certain things of living—on these we can build, so that again small children may pick from the threat from the sky, young love can dream and plan, the carefree hours away, and those who have loved may go on together, sharing both life and memory.

"Since yesterday it is so long ago—but yesterday is tomorrow."
